Death for Telling

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—Legislation providing the death penalty for divulging atomic bomb secrets to foreign powers was introduced today by Chairman Sumners [D., Tex.] of the house judiciary committee. Sumners said: "We have invested $2,000,000,000 in public funds in it. We have in it the world's most powerful force, yet with all this talking we may be letting the secret out before we formally determine what policy we should adopt."

Alamogordo army air base, Alamogordo, N. M., Sept. 11—The glass splattered atomic bomb crater that sprawls like a huge round scar on the desert northwest of here, in fantastic portrayal of the power of the new weapon, has been shown to the press for the first time.

An inspection group visited the crater Sunday, and the army today granted permission to the press to publish information describing the isolated spot where, in a fateful test on the morning of July 16, the atomic age was born.

Call Jap Claims False

Before the inspection of the area began, army officials held a press conference at which they declared untrue the Japanese claims that the bomb releases rays which make its target a death trap long after the explosion. The conference was followed by a trip into the heart of the blasted area. This would have been fatal if the Japanese claims had been true, army spokesmen said, declaring that the test site was far more heavily contaminated with gamma rays than were the Japanese target areas, because in the test here the explosion was much nearer the ground.

Lifting of the news ban makes it possible for the first time to describe the bomb crater to the millions of Americans who footed the 2 billion dollar cost of the project, which scientists regard as the boldest challenge to the secrets of nature.

Vegetation Disappears

The testing ground lies in a vast flat stretch of mountain bordered desert 85 miles northwest of here. The first sign of the inspection party's approach to the crater came when the usual vegetation suddenly disappeared, revealing what seemed at first to be a huge, gently depressed, seared circular area that was parched brown at the edge, and gray-green in the center. The barren area was about 1,600 yards [nearly a mile] across.

The inner 800 yard wide area, the most spectacular part of the scene, is completely covered with a gray-green glasslike crust which is

Senators Vote for 26 Week Benefit Plan

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11—The senate finance committee today rejected the administration's proposal to increase state unemployment benefits to a maximum of $25 a week for 26 weeks. It thus dealt a body blow to one of President Truman's major recommendations to congress in his message last week.

The committee ordered drawn a substitute bill which would provide government funds to extend the duration of state unemployment benefits to at least 26 weeks thruout the country. State benefits now range from a maximum of $15 for 14 weeks in Arizona to $28 for 30 weeks in Connecticut.

[Illinois provides maximum payments of $20 a week for 26 weeks. The state legislature this year raised maximum benefits in any one year from $360 to $520, and increased minimum payments from $7 to $10 a week. Individual benefits are based on earnings and hence on contributions to the unemployment compensation fund.]

Chairman George [D., Ga.] of the finance committee told reporters that today's committee action was tentative and that senate bill drafters had been instructed to draw up a new measure embodying its suggestions. The original bill was authored by Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.].

Provisions of New Bill

George said the proposed bill would include:

1. Federal funds to supplement state payments to guarantee up to 26 weeks of benefits for all jobless war workers covered in state systems. Payments would be at existing state rules rather than the $25 proposed in the Kilgore bill.

2. Provision for unemployment benefits to all civilian federal workers, at rates prevailing in the states in which the work was performed. The benefits would be paid in the first instance by the states, which would be reimbursed by the federal government.

3. Extension of benefits to all maritime workers not covered by state laws. Rates would be based on those prevailing in the District of Columbia.

4. Transportation allowances up to $200 for workers who migrated from their "bona fide" residences to war jobs to reimburse them for the return to their homes or to a new job location, provided the distance to the new job is not greater than that to a worker's home. No payment would be allowed for shipping household effects.

Plans to Continue Fight

Sen. Kilgore told reporters after the meeting he would continue to fight for his measure and that he may offer his entire original bill during senate debate as an amendment to the committee bill.

George said the principal reason for the committee's rejection of the proposal to increase benefits to $25 a week was that 25 of 42 states reporting to the committee had said they could not accept supplemental federal funds under their laws without reducing total benefits or disqualifying workers from receiving state benefits.

CHICAGO: COME ON, CONVENTIONS

ODT Ban Lifted, City Girds for Big Crowds

Announcement by the office of defense transportation yesterday that all restrictions on conventions and trade shows will be lifted Oct. 1 found Chicago ready to resume its pre-war role as convention center of the nation and forecast an old time, rip roaring American Legion national convention here in November.

Joseph Lumpkin, Legion convention director, just arrived from Indianapolis, Ind., said the size of this year's crowd will be limited only by the city's ability to house the visitors.

Plans for the Legion convention had been announced before the lifting of the convention restrictions and plans had been made for the attendance of some 4,000 delegates of the Legion, the auxiliary, the 40 and 8, and members of national committees.

Legion Expects Huge Crowd

Now that the lid is off, Lumpkin, altho he declined to hazard a guess on the attendance, said it would be "much larger" and recalled that previous Legion conventions have attracted from 50,000 to 100,000 persons.

Possibility of extending the proposed two day convention, Nov. 18 and 19, to a four day gathering will be discussed by the Legion's convention bureau here Sept. 17.

The largest session, to be addressed by President Truman, will be held in Chicago Stadium. Other sessions will be held in the Civic Opera house or the Coliseum.

Stock Show Will Go On

Increased attendance at the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to be held here Oct. 2, 3, and 4, also was predicted, altho officials said delegates will be limited to 150. V. F. W. officials said last year's convention attendance was 2,500, and they predicted the attendance this year will at least double that figure.

Officials of the International Livestock show said there is no possibility of holding the show on the scale of former years, because the army is still in possession of International amphitheater at the stock yards. However, a show will be held from Dec. 1 to 6.

Sherman J. Sexton, president of the Chicago convention bureau, said that before the war Chicago averaged more than 800 conventions and trade shows yearly, with an attendance of a million and a quarter persons who brought more than 60 million dollars' worth of business to the city.

Sextion said a promotional campaign among 3,200 convention groups already had been prepared and the bureau would be able to supply convention dates to hundreds of organizations.

Navy pier, formerly a favored spot for trade shows, is still in the hands of the navy, but Sexton said that 1946 looms as the biggest convention year in the city's history.

Action of the ODT in lifting the convention ban was recommended by the office of war mobilization and reconversion. It was imposed Feb. 1.

Boy, 10, Tells of 'Teasing' for Not Taking Bible Study

BY GUY GENTRY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 11—A grandfather who testified he was proud to say he was an atheist and a grandson who wanted to join religious education classes because he didn't want to sit alone in a deserted class room, were witnesses today in the Circuit court suit of Mrs. Vashti McCollum to ban religious education from the Champaign public schools.

James Terry McCollum, the 10 year old son of Mrs. McCollum in whose behalf she filed the mandamus suit against the Champaign board of education, was called to the witness stand in the closing hours of the court's afternoon session to give a childish but prepossessed account of his experience as the only student of his class not taking the religious education course.

Takes an Affirmation

Tucking in his shirt tail as he walked across the courtroom, James looked solemnly up at Mrs. Hallie Snyder, deputy circuit clerk, as she repeated the words of the court affirmation. An affirmation, rather than an oath, was administered to James as it was to his grandfather, Arthur G. Cromwell of Rochester, N. Y., who had preceded him on the stand. He nodded his head and sat down.

Swinging in the witness chair, James recited under questioning that he went alone to the school library or the music room when his class studied religious education. He said he wanted to take the course because he didn't like to stay alone and that he liked religious education more than arithmetic or spelling, which he was required to study.

Scoffs at Adam and Eve

James said that sometimes he sat in the hall and that students who came by teased him. Told that yesterday his teacher had told the court he had kicked, punched, and spit at other students, he admitted that was true, but added "they beat up on me—they did it first." He testified that when he complained to the teacher, she told him he must fight his own battles but that when the other children complained she told him he must stop fighting.

The grandfather who preceded James on the witness stand testified he was president of the Free Thinkers' society of Rochester and that under the tenets of his belief the story of Adam and Eve is fictitious and founded on superstition, the Bible story of the flood is a scientific impossibility, miracles as described in the Bible are violations of natural laws, there is no such thing as the prophets and no evidence the Bible is the word of God.

Proud to Be Atheist

Cromwell, who declared he was proud to say he was an atheist, declared the proclamation by President Truman of a day of prayer was "unconstitutional" and insisted that belief in God is "insanity to that degree"; he insisted that the minister of a church is "insane and dishonest to that degree"; and reaffirmed the statements of his pamphlet incorporated as part of Mrs. McCollum's petition in which he stated that "religious worship is a chronic disease of the imagination contracted in childhood."

Earlier in the afternoon session, the Rev. Alva R. Cartlidge, chairman of the personnel committee and first president of the Champaign school council for religious education, took the stand and told how the program got its start.

Demand Spontaneous

Mr. Cartlidge said it grew out of a spontaneous community demand five years ago in the face of increasing juvenile delinquency and that beneficial results had been obtained. He said representatives of the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish faiths supervised the program to make sure that the courses contained nothing objectionable to any of them. Mr. Cartlidge insisted the school program taught only those fundamental tenets common to almost all religions.

Most of the morning court session was taken up with the testimony of Mrs. F. A. Jorgensen, one of the teachers in the religious education program, and Mrs. Reta Campbell, a Champaign public school teacher, who outlined the methods by which children were released from public school jurisdiction and turned over to the religious education teachers for a weekly period of 30 minutes.

House Votes Full Probe of Pearl Harbor

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11—The nation was promised the complete and uncensored story of Pearl Harbor today as the house unanimously passed a senate approved resolution calling for a joint congressional investigation of America's unpreparedness against the Jap attack on Dec. 7, 1941. The vote was 308 to 0.

Sen. Walsh

Five senators and five representatives will be selected before the end of the week to conduct the inquiry. Sen. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, has been mentioned as the probable chairman. Senate Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky] also is reported to be considering acceptance of the chairmanship, which he could have for the asking.

Under the resolution, the committee must examine a mountain of evidence, including suppressed testimony, already collected by official inquiring bodies, hold open hearings for which there are several hundreds of prospective witnesses, and report to congress by Jan. 3, 1946. The magnitude of the task may necessitate an extension of this period of less than four months.

Politics Is Charged

Bitter cries of "politics" filled the air as the house debated the resolution. The Democratic majority steam rollered a Republican proposal to enlarge the committee to 12 members and give each major party equal representation. An amendment to this effect by Minority Leader Martin [R., Mass.], was defeated, 168 to 136, on a strict party vote.

As finally approved, a Democratic majority of six—three senators and three representatives—will control the committee. Four Republicans, two from each chamber, will serve. When the shouting was all over the consensus was that the joint committee could be expected to do a good job filling in the gaps of the official reports conducted under the regime of the late President Roosevelt.

The committee will have a $25,000 expense fund. A staff of investigators will be hired. The open hearings cannot be expected to start for several weeks, it was stated, in view of the broadened scope of the inquiry. Barkley has said the investigation should go back to the Japanese invasion of Manchuria in 1931.

Sabath Has His Say

The house discussion was reduced to a low level by Rep. Sabath [D., Ill.], who accused the minority of seeking to inject politics into the investigation by making "utterly unfair and indefensible charges against our late great President, our great former secretary of state [Mr. Hull], and great military leader, Gen. Marshall."

Rep. Martin, replying, said the minority, in seeking equal representation on the committee, merely was trying to assure its impartiality and nonpartisanship and full disclosure of all the facts to the country. A Democratic controled committee could "cover up the real truth" by suppressing evidence and rejecting witnesses, he noted.

Rep. Brown [R., O.], declared the Republicans wanted a guarantee that the committee would not attempt "to protect, whitewash, shield, smear, or injure any individual." He castigated Sabath for converting what should have been a solemn discussion into a political brawl.

Rep. Harness [R., Ind.], observed

ENEMY 4TH RATE NATION NOW, U. S. GENERAL SAYS

Quick Homecoming for Prisoners and Troops His Goal

BY DONALD STARR
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Sept. 11—Japan has been reduced to a fourth rate nation, Gen. MacArthur, commander in chief of allied forces, said today.

The general declared in an interview that complete defeat of the Japanese army has been generally overlooked in reports of Japan's military disintegration, which had a tendency to stress the tremendous naval and air victories by American forces.

Basing his estimate of the situation on service as commander in chief in this theater thruout almost five years of war as well as observations since landing on Japanese soil, MacArthur said Japan would be unable to wage war within the predictable future. Not only has industry been flattened but the army, which had convinced the Nipponese people of its invincibility, is now being returned to civilian life with a record of defeat.

Three Preliminary Moves

Without acknowledging criticism of the uninformed who have expressed impatience with what they regard as slow application of authority in the occupation procedure, the general said there were three preliminary steps necessary to safeguard allied interests and characteristically all three are related to the lives of his fighting men. These were:

1—Transfer of allied prisoners of war from miserable Japanese camps scattered thruout the islands of the Pacific to points of safety.

2—Landing and dispersal of sufficient occupation troops to insure the utmost security without endangering the lives of troops, while at the same time being prepared for any eventuality in event of an outbreak of violence.

3. Complete disarmament and demobilization and return to their homes of all Japanese military personnel from generals and admirals to enlisted men of the lowest grade.

Wants Half Million Men

MacArthur had good news for American troops and their families in his explanation that calm acceptance by the Japanese of the presence of occupation troops has caused him to lower earlier estimates of the size of the occupation army needed to enforce the terms of the Potsdam declaration and his policies.

He said he had recommended the cancellation of sailings of three divisions from the United States and that he would send troops home as fast as shipping became available to carry them. He added that he believed we should give a vanquished people a chance to see perhaps a half million soldiers to impress the high power of American arms. He is fully aware that the thought uppermost in the minds of his soldiers is to return home.

Predicting dramatic and amazing changes in the political rebirth of the Japanese, MacArthur said forces are already in evidence which will lead this movement. They first appeared when the emperor overrode the military dictatorship to sue for peace and then spoke directly to his subjects over the radio for the first time. A vast majority of his

Tojo Is Given 50-50 Chance to Survive Suicide Shot

EYE WITNESS STORY
The dramatic events in Tojo's room immediately after he had shot himself are told by an eye witness in a story on page 2.

TOKYO, Sept. 12 [Wednesday] (AP)—Tightening the occupation grip on Japan, Gen. MacArthur ordered 40 important Japanese held for questioning, and one of them, former premier Hideki Tojo of Pearl Harbor infamy, promptly shot and gravely wounded himself.

Ten members of the cabinet which helped the former dictator plunge Japan into war with the United States were among the ranking personages ordered detained.

Should any of the 40 be accused as war criminals, they would be subject to court martial proceedings, a procedure which MacArthur has specified for all such suspects.

Tojo, 61, today lay as an ashen faced, tight lipped ordinary patient in the American 98th evacuation hospital with a grievous wound from an attempt to shoot himself in the heart.

Penicillin Administered

The wonder drug, penicillin, was injected in large quantities.

Lt. Col. James Peery, Tazwell, Va., chief surgeon at the hospital, said there was a possibility pus might be forming in the left lung, which was punctured by the pistol shot.

Twenty thousand units of penicillin have been given at three hour intervals.

Tojo's temperature this morning was 100.4 degrees. His pulse was 112, as compared with a normal 72.

Still conscious, he asked some questions and was able to say "thank you" in English after being given a glass of water.

Brig. Gen. George W. Rice ordered a bed and mattress substituted for the cot on which Tojo had been lying since he was brought to the hospital last night.

The prisoner was offered breakfast with coffee, but he refused it.

Repeats "I Want to Die"

The one time premier, who shot himself at 4:15 p. m. [2:15 a. m. Chicago time] yesterday at his suburban home, groaned repeatedly, "I want to die; I want to die."

As American army doctors labored to save his life in the hospital at Yokohama, Tojo told them, "I am going to die anyway so don't go to any trouble over me."

But Tojo, given a second blood transfusion, was given better than a 50-50 chance to survive and thus possibly face trial as a war criminal. Tojo was resting easily at 9 a. m. today, nearly 17 hours after he shot himself. His age was declared to be the main obstacle in his recovery.

Brig. Gen. George W. Wright of Carlisle, Pa., United States 8th army surgeon, after a diagnosis, termed his condition as "fair." Col. William J. Shaw of Fayette, Mo., 11th corps physician, said: "For a man of his age he has a good chance."

Eichelberger in Room

Tojo was told that Lt. Gen. Eichelberger, 8th army commander, was in the room, but Tojo didn't comment. Instead he asked for a glass of water, drained it, and then asked for another.

Physicians termed Tojo's wound a "perforating and sucking wound" in the left chest between the sixth and seventh ribs. He is a small man, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weighing about 120 pounds.

Gen. MacArthur had ordered that Tojo be arrested and brought to headquarters for questioning along with 10 members of his cabinet. But Tojo hastily shot himself instead of committing the traditional harakiri by sword.

Wanted for Questioning

The medical skill of Americans was being utilized to the fullest to save the life of the most prized prisoner in the Pacific because authorities still want to question him on affairs which he directed. The treatment and accommodations for the Japanese general were exactly the same as any American enlisted man would receive.

Tojo shot himself with a .32 cali-

Babies on Way, but GIs Can't Wed

BERLIN, Sept. 11 (AP)—The army still is turning thumbs down on marriages between American soldiers and German girls despite the prospect of an increasing number of illegitimate children from forbidden romances.

More and more enlisted men and officers are asking permission to wed, officials said, but the answer remains the same:

"It probably will be a year yet before such weddings will be permitted by the higher command."

Gen. Eisenhower's welfare department said a large number of babies fathered by GI's would be born within six months.

Report Secret Marriages

Some observers expressed belief that the fathers might be permitted to assume support of such children even tho nonfraternization rules were in force when the romances began. Eisenhower's advisers are expected to announce plans to deal with the situation in about two weeks.

Rumors of secret marriages before German pastors are current in the capital.

Will Protect Soldiers

Chaplains, said Maj. George B. Woods, Episcopalian divisional chaplain of the 82d air borne division, are "strictly against 'shot gun marriages.'"

"But as for the couples that are convinced of their love, the army must eventually face up to the issue," he added.

A Catholic chaplain said that "if a marriage between an American boy and a German girl represents true love, then it is a natural law."

ber American Colt automatic pistol. The single shot came close to killing him immediately, said Capt. James Johnson of Newark, O., of the 1st medical squadron, 1st cavalry. Johnson was the first to treat Tojo.

Johnson said that Tojo undoubtedly intended to kill himself quickly, but that the gun was slightly misaimed. The bullet went thru Tojo's body.

Neither Leader Nor Samurai

Tojo left his home—one of history's strangest Elbas—as neither a great leader nor a great samurai. Lying on a stretcher and bundled securely in an American army blanket because he was suffering from shock, the former dictator was simply a short, shaven headed hospital patient.

Tojo was too weak to move himself. Pain rippled across the stern gray face and periodically he pinched his eyes shut and drew his mouth into a sharper line.

None of his relatives nor henchmen was present as American GIs carried him from the house. Present were only foreigners—officers and men of the victorious American army and American correspondents.

Tojo, in the growing darkness, was placed in a regular field ambulance and driven to the 1st squadron clearing station, following the prescribed routine for handling badly wounded cases.

The clearing station is a tent at 1st cavalry headquarters, on the Yoyogi parade grounds which Tojo often visited in other circumstances.

Still ashy faced, he was taken inside the tent and a transfusion of blood plasma was given.

Americans Gather 'Round

Word of Tojo's identity spread quickly and hundreds of American soldiers crowded around, muttering "There's the guy." "Boy, he sure caused me a lot of trouble." "They should have given me a crack at him."

Soon Tojo was driven to Yokohama; the ride over rough roads requiring an hour and 20 minutes. He awakened several times during the trip.

MacArthur's list of important Japanese political, army, and navy figures ordered into custody included Lt. Gen. Masahara Homma, Japanese commander in the Philippines. Homma was responsible for the "death" march from Bataan.

Others, a headquarters spokesman said, were Jose Laurel, puppet president of the Philippines; Jorge Vargas, puppet ambassador to Japan, who was reported by Domei, Jap news agency, to be in allied hands; Heinrich Stahmer, German ambassador to Japan, and Pratap Mahendra, president of the "aryan army," an Indian pro-Japanese organization.

Tojo's Pearl Harbor cabinet associates ordered held were Adm. Shigetara Shimada, Shigenori Togo, Nobusuke Kishi, Rear Adm. Ken Terashima, Michiyo Iwamura, Kunihiko Hashida, Hiroya Ino, Chikahiko Koisumi, and Sadaichi Suzuki.

Mysterious American

"An American named Streeter" from Wake Island [full name not available], a German, two Australians, and a Dutchman were included in those MacArthur ordered taken into custody. All were allegedly linked in some manner with radio Tokyo broadcasts during the war.

Streeter, employed at Wake before the war, allegedly wrote some manuscripts for Japanese broadcasts. Also named in MacArthur's list were:

Lily Abegg [or Sybille Abe], naturalized German citizen, alleged radio propagandist in Tokyo; Maj. Charles H. Cousens, Australian army, formerly a Sydney radio announcer, also allegedly linked with Tokyo broadcasts; John Holland [believed also known as David Lester], Australian who allegedly presented English broadcasts over the Shanghai radio and later reportedly moved to Tokyo.

Josefas van Dienst, who allegedly broadcast anti-European propaganda in Dutch on Tokyo radio; Dr. Thein Maung, puppet Burmese ambassador to Japan and alleged organizer of the Burma independence corps; Benigno Aquino, president of the puppet Philippine national assembly; Col. Josef Alfred Meisinger, police attache at the German embassy, already in custody, and Wathakan. Wichit, Thailand ambassador to Japan.

Others named included Col. Akira Tagahama, commander of Gendarmerie in the Philippines who was declared responsible for tortures at Fort Santiago; Lt. Col. Seiichi Ohto, declared responsible for atrocities in Manila; Dr. Tokuda [Kouda] declared responsible for medical experimentation on prisoners of war at Shinagawa prison hospital, Tokyo, many of which resulted in deaths.

Col. Suzuki, commander at Shinagawa, allegedly responsible for atrocities committed there; James Sakaki, chief civilian interpreter at Ofuna, allegedly responsible for mistreatment of prisoners when he commanded that camp in the absence of its commanding officer; Sgt. Tokio Tobata, guard at Shinagawa, alleged to have mistreated prisoners; Sgt. Mutsuhiro Watanabe Omari, camp guard near Tokyo, and Lt. Honashi Takeuchi.

Bear Kills Boy

RICHARD STRAND

[Acme Telephoto]

Bear which killed boy

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 11 (AP)—Eight year old Richard Strand died last night five hours after he was torn and chewed by a 225 pound Russian grizzly bear, the pet of a neighbor.

The bear also bit Mrs. Vera Guinn as she tried to pull Richard to safety while the owner, Earl Coffrin, and another man pulled at the chain which held the bear.

The victim's father, Harold Strand, said he complained about the animal to authorities a week ago.

Coffrin said he would give the bear, a present to him a year ago from a Russian ship captain, to the zoo where authorities quartered him after he was ordered confiscated.

"I don't trust him now—he's mean," Coffrin said.

TOJO 'BOTCHES' SUICIDE: STORY OF EYEWITNESS

BY GEORGE F. JONES

[By wireless to the N. Y. Times and the Chicago Tribune.]

TOKYO, Sept. 11.—Hideki Tojo, "the razor" who sent millions of people of many nations to their deaths, botched his own suicide today.

I broke down his door with two army officers after hearing a shot and watched from start to finish the attempt of Japan's No. 1 war criminal to use a "Gat" rather than the traditional honorable short sword to end his life.

I found Tojo still standing, wavering on his feet with smoke curling from his .32 Colt automatic. He didn't say a word. He held his chest with his left hand and in his right hand the revolver and dropped its muzzle, pointing in our direction.

"Don't shoot," called out Maj. Paul Kraus who led the arresting party.

Drops Into Easy Chair

Tojo looked at us, then the gun dropped from his hand and clattered to the floor. His knees buckled and he dropped into an easy chair behind him. Welling streams of blood spread over his white shirt front.

A dozen Americans quickly crowded into the room but Tojo seemed oblivious. His eyes were closed and his breathing became a cadenza of racking sighs and moans. The bullet had only nicked his heart, plunging upward and out of his back in the left shoulder blade about six inches below the top of his shoulder. His shaven head glistened and sweat broke out in tiny beads.

Tojo, perhaps, had not had time nor, more probably, the courage to disembowel himself in the samural tradition which he purported to represent. Three ceremonial swords and another gun also were in the room.

High Point of Chase

To all appearances he was a dying man and for some time there was no doctor to save him. Yet 20 minutes after the shot had been fired he was dictating a statement to two Japanese interpreters defending his policies and motives, a grotesque aftermath to his dramatic attempt to escape judgment.

This was a high point of a chase which was as fantastic as the cornering of a desperate man. For the correspondents who witnessed the scene it was highly reminiscent of their days on the police beat.

Within a few minutes after MacArthur had announced his orders to take Tojo into custody, the writer raced over to Tojo's residence, approximately eight miles from the center of the town. I arrived there nearly two hours before the arrest squad and began my vigil. Tojo remained skilfully concealed within his simple terra cotta home.

He Suffers Mightily

Tojo suffered mightily but there was no sympathy in that room among the army officers from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters and correspondents who surrounded him as he reclined in a chair with blood bubbling out of the wound in his chest and splattering onto his whipcord olive-drab trousers and his polished cordovan boots.

Tojo's shot echoed at 4:18 p. m.

Treats Tojo

(Story in adjoining column)

Capt. James Johnson, army doctor who treated Hideki Tojo, Jap war lord, after his attempt to commit suicide by shooting yesterday.

Newark, O., Sept. 11 (AP)—Capt. James Johnson, who is trying to save the life of Japanese Warlord Tojo, is a son-in-law of former Gov. Vic Donahey of Ohio.

"My only hope is that Jimmie saves old Tojo so we can hang him right!" Donahey said today.

Johnson, Newark physician and surgeon before he entered the army in 1942, has completed more than 2,000 major operations in the Pacific war theater. One of the most notable involved saving the life of Maj. Gen. Verne D. Mudge, who was commander of the cavalry division in which Johnson served. The general was torn by a Jap grenade near Anpipolo, southeast of Manila, last Feb. 28. Johnson removed a steel fragment near the heart.

For 20 minutes he wheezed and groaned and occasionally he coughed slightly. Then his lips moved, altho he remained still, with his eyes closed. His reclining head was turned to the left.

Two interpreters were called over and Tojo began his statement:

"I wish to die by one shot," he muttered. "I am very sorry it is taking so much time to die."

Voice Gains Strength

His voice started out in a whisper but gradually gained strength, tho sometimes it was indistinct. "The Greater East Asia war was a justified and a righteous war. I am very sorry for the nation and all races of the great Asiatic powers. I would not like to be judged in front of a conqueror's court. I wait for the righteous judgment of history. I wished to commit hara-kiri but sometimes that fails. I, therefore, wish to die by one shot and please don't make me breathe or care again."

He talked on, a few more sentences. Then his slight, waxen frame shuddered. His right hand, which had been draped over the arm of the chair, raised slowly and he hooked it into his belt. A congealing mass of bubbly blood could be seen thru his unbuttoned shirt front. Slowly he brought up his left hand and dashed it across his brow, but he seemed to regain strength, and, speaking again in Japanese, he intoned: "If by mistake I am alive again, I know the way to cut my bowels. . . . Let MacArthur have my corpse.

"Tell MacArthur I am not to be put on show for people."

Wanted to Be Recognized

Again his breathing became laborious and his statement ended there.

Just before he was moved to a divan Tojo whispered to an interpreter, "I didn't shoot myself in the head because I wanted people to recognize my features and know I was dead."

As the "death watch" continued in the small, plainly furnished room, before a Japanese and then an American physician arrived, the Americans maintained a cold, impersonal viewpoint toward "the razor." The army men wanted to keep him alive for interrogation and trial and the correspondents impatiently consulted their watches and deadlines as he lingered on.

Conversation took a casually better turn: "Well, Tojo has earned himself a Purple Heart," said an officer.

Effusive Jap Bows Himself Off Dock Into the Water

TOKYO, Sept. 11 (AP)—An effusive Japanese civilian bowed himself right off a dock into the water today, as crowds of Japanese turned out to greet the first American ship to tie up at a Tokyo dock since before the war. The crew of the vessel, a small signal corps communications craft—the PCE-849—fished the dunked welcomer from the bay, while officers were greeted by port of Tokyo officials.

314 YANKS LEFT OF 1,619 ONCE IN MANILA PRISON

Find Survivors in Korea; Death Record Kept

BY JOSEPH HEARST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ABOARD U. S. S. NOBLE, Inchhen Bay, Korea, Sept. 10 [Delayed]—Sixteen hundred and nineteen American officers and men started from Bilibid prison, Manila, last Dec. 13 and today only 314 of them are safely aboard this ship preparing to go home. The rest are believed dead.

Lt. Col. Curtis T. Beecher

The liberated Americans, as well as British and Australians who also were freed in Korea and are aboard the Noble, are enjoying American radio music, clean white sheets, good food, and cup after cup of coffee. But they can't forget the men who died along the way.

A comprehensive death list was kept by Capt. R. E. Conn of Geneva, Minn., who formerly worked in a Minneapolis bank. He secretly kept death records of the group for more than three years.

Chicagoan Gets Records

Another who kept records was Marine Maj. R. J. Ridgely Jr. of Baltimore, Md. Ridgely turned his list containing the names of 33 officers of the 4th marine regiment who failed to survive over to Lt. Col. Curtis T. Beecher of Chicago, himself just released from Inchhen prison camp.

[Mrs. Altha Bendell, a sister of Col. Beecher, lives at 515 N. 11th av., Melrose Park. Col. Beecher's father, Bryant L. Beecher, 83, a former proofreader for the Chicago Daily News, now retired, lives at 5502 Thoma st. The colonel's mother died after he went overseas. His wife, Juanita, lives in Saratoga, Cal.]

Conn had charge of graves registration at Cabanatuan and O'Donnell camps in the Philippines and voluntarily assumed the task of keeping records of those who died en route from Bilibid to freedom.

Corpse Stripped of Clothes

"Another officer first started keeping a record but when he died the record was lost," Conn said. "He kept the record book in his coat pocket. When he died the prisoners stripped him to get his clothing and the record was lost.

From the day Conn started his record he has listed 827 dead and is turning the list over to authorities for notification of families.

"Every night I'd question man after man for news of what men they had seen die," said Conn. "At first I kept the record in a book. Later I was able to set up a card indexed file from stolen wooden cheese boxes and stolen cardboard."

Illinoisans Among Group

Among prisoners who survived the ordeal and now are going home are Capt. Kenneth E. Ransom, East Dubuque, Ill.; Maj. J. N. Shanks, Jefferson City, Mo.; Maj. Edward R. Wernitznig, 2009 Vliet st., Milwaukee, Wis.; Maj. Frank C. Kriwanek, 221 Collinsville av., East St. Louis, Ill., and Lt. Linus L. Schranski, Mankato, Minn.

Conn, who was captured with the 45th division, expected to be shot any time.

"They knew we had wiped out hundreds of their troops and kept questioning us about what happened to them," he said. "We said they committed suicide and that seemed to satisfy them. But I always felt they had retaliation in their mind and I expected the worst. Their favorite expression was that we be 'severely punished,' by anything from having our face slapped to our head cut off."

They Learn Pal Escaped

"Don't think we're kidding about having our head cut off," cut in Maj. Ridgely. "Six men were executed at Cabanatuan for slipping out of camp and stealing food. On another occasion at the same camp three were executed for trying to leave camp. How many more were killed in the same summary fashion will probably never be known."

Conn put a question mark after two names on his list. One was that of Lt. George K. Petritz of Rockford, Ill., because Petritz had stated he would try to get away when he went ashore after the bombing of Subic bay. When the writer confirmed that Petritz had made good his escape and gotten back to the United States his friends crowded about asking details.

Plans to Hunt Records

If Conn, who has gained 28 pounds in the last three weeks since the Japs began giving the prisoners more food, permitting them to buy peaches and apples from Koreans, gets back to Manila he wants to go into the hills to dig up hidden records of Americans who died in Camps O'Donnell and Cabanatuan Nos. 1 and 3.

"I was graves registration officer and I kept the records of all those who died," he said. "I can remember the total to this day, probably always will. I was 1,549 at O'Donnell, 2,660 at Camp No. 1, and 69 at Camp No. 3. And five or six hundred more died on the death march from Bataan.

"I put the records listing each man in bottles, sealed them with paraffin, and buried them so the Japs wouldn't find them," he continued. "The Japs didn't want us to keep any records so I had to bury the bottles at night."

3 GENERALS TELL OF WAINWRIGHT BEATING BY JAP

Staggered by Blows, Prisoners Say

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 11 (AP)—Three brigadier generals today related eyewitness accounts of a brutal beating given Gen. Wainwright, hero of Corregidor, by a Japanese prison guard. The generals were among a group of 20 liberated prisoners who arrived by plane today.

Brig. Jen. J. P. Vachon, Seattle, Wash., told of seeing Gen. Wainwright hit four times by a Japanese private. He was hit so hard he staggered back about 10 feet.

Worked All Day in Sun

Present at the interview were Brig. Gen. Carl C. Drake, Cabin John, Md., and Brig. Gen. A. J. Funk, Sarasota, Fla.

The officers said they received their most brutal treatment at a camp in Karenko, Formosa, where they were constantly slapped, beaten, humiliated, and forced to work all day in the sun. They labored in a vegetable garden. When the crops ripened the Japs let them rot rather than allow the prisoners to eat any of it.

Officers Treated Worst

"All of us, and that includes Wainwright, existed on a handful of rice and watery soup," the general said. "We used to steal a few potatoes from the garden."

"They treated the officers worse than the enlisted men," Gen. Drake said. "The Japanese commander told us we had no right to live."

As their plane arrived at Hamilton field, the officers, who had stoically borne the brutal treatment for 39 months, broke down and wept. Some of them were greeted by wives, children, and other relatives.

DEVEREUX ALIVE, SAY PRISONERS FROM HIS CAMP

OMINATO, Japan, Sept. 12 [Wednesday]—(AP)—The full, untold story of the heroic defense of Wake, including the late of its gallant marines—the dead and the imprisoned living—has been presented by the garrison leader, Lt. Col. James P. S. Devereux.

Pharmacist Mate William T. Sterling of Herington, Kas., one of five prisoners of war newly arrived from a Japanese camp on Hokkaido, brought word of Devereux.

"He has all the information on his marines and has a number of them with him," said Sterling today. He had talked with Devereux at camp No. 3 about 40 miles from Bibai prison camp on Hokkaido.

The man who sent out the famous message, "Send us more Japs," before Wake capitulated Dec. 23, 1941, is presently in charge of the camp and will be brought out soon.

Taken to Shanghai

He gave Sterling a receipt for clothing which had been dropped to the prisoners by Super Fortresses on a mercy mission.

Sterling said that after Wake fell Devereux and his men were taken to Shanghai. They were kept there until last fall when the war situation prompted a transfer to Honshu and then almost immediately to Hokkaido. Some of the marines were left at Yokohama, however.

The four men who arrived late yesterday with Sterling at this American occupied naval base were Capt. A. N. Brown, Council Bluffs, Ia.; Seaman 1st Class James S. Burger, Farmville, Pa.; Pvt. Jules L. Beasley, Burton, Wash., and Australian Army Gunner A. C. Crowder, Brisbane.

Flyers Tell of Torture

CALCUTTA, India, Sept. 11 (AP)—Three half starved members of a B-29 crew, liberated from a Singapore prisoner of war camp, told today how a Japanese, educated in the United States, helped torture them.

The story came from Capt. Edward G. Millar, Washington, D. C.; Staff Sgt. Frank Hillebrand, Passaic, N. J., and Tech. Sgt. John S. Gibson, San Fernando, Cal., a nephew of Dr. Alfred Lovell of the University of Michigan engineering staff.

Names of additional survivors of the cruiser Houston, released from prisoner of war camps at Bangkok, Thailand, were announced in Calcutta. From Chicagoland:

Irvin R. Stark, 3339 N. Kilpatrick av., Chicago, Ill.; Marvin M. Beardsley, Richmond, Ind.; Sidney E. Blackford, Sioux City, Ia.; Leroy A. Buckner, Garden City, Mich.; John W. Ranger, Gillespie, Ill.; Leo Rody, Saginaw, Mich.; John P. Feldscher, Detroit, Mich.; John E. Hood, Des Moines, Ia.; Earl C. Humphries, Salem, Ia.; Wallace E. Zabler, Burlington, Wis.; Marine Pvt. Albert M. Kellby, 500 W. Diversey pkwy., Chicago; Ralph E. Morris, Marshall, Ill.; Joseph W. Schert, Oak Park, Ill.; Philip W. Martwick, Phillips, Wis.; O. C. McManus, Cherokee, Ia.

Merchant Mariner Gerald H. Garland, 1830 N. Pulaski rd., Chicago, also was released.

Missionaries of the French Indo-China Christian missionary alliance who have arrived in Calcutta after being freed in Bangkok include Floyd C. Peterson, 325 N. Hale st., Wheaton, Ill.; Leonore Peterson, Grand Rapids, Mich., and her children, Marion, Evelyn, and Carol Peterson.

Freed Yanks Save Japs

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Sept. 11 (AP)—American prisoners of war, newly released from the Japanese prison camp where they had starved and suffered, stopped their train from the camp to give succor to Japanese victims of a train wreck, the 8th army reported today.

The prisoner of war train was halted, the headquarters announcement said, at the request of the prisoners, near Hachioji, 18 miles south of Atsugi air field, while the prisoners provided "comfort and first aid" to the Japanese victims.

FLYER OPENS CHUTE AFTER 22,000 FOOT DROP, LANDS SAFELY

Lt. Donald Lienemann

Miami, Fla., Sept. 11 (AP)—Lt. Donald Lienemann, 27, of Papillion, Neb., told today how he was blown out of a Flying Fortress when 8,000 pounds of bombs exploded and he fell 22,000 feet while unconscious.

"We were flying over the Berlin area, just a year ago today, when 150 German fighter planes jumped us," Lienemann said. "They set the bomb bay afire and ripped the plane with bullet holes. The co-pilot and the engineer bailed out. That left seven of us in the plane.

"Suddenly there was a terrific explosion. We were flying at 26,000 feet and the whole ship blew apart. I was knocked cold. When I came to I was less than 4,000 feet from the ground and somersaulting like a top."

Lienemann said he stiffened his body to stop the somersault and managed to get his parachute open just 15 seconds before he hit the ground.

M'ARTHUR TELLS 3 'MUSTS' FOR JAP OCCUPATION

Enemy 4th Rate Nation Now, General Says

subjects never before had heard their mikado's voice. This was followed by the unprecedented session of the diet, called on Japanese initiative, at which the emperor made a personal appearance to deliver a report to his people thru their elected representatives.

Contrasted with Hitler

MacArthur pointed to the contrast of the Japanese procedure with the tactics employed by Hitler when, as the net drew tighter in a succession of crimes, he assumed more and more authority in complete disregard to his people. MacArthur recalled also that democratic forces in Japan were making great progress in the '20s as expressed, for example, in the rise of a labor organization so potent as to creat the impression among many that the Manchurian incident was initiated to arrest this liberal trend.

MacArthur explained that the emperor takes two separate and distinct forms, temporal leader and pastoral leader. He made it clear the occupation forces would not tamper with the religious faith of the Japanese, thus leaving the emperor as the spiritual and moral guide for his worshipful subjects.

On the other hand, possible changes in the emperor's pastoral leadership are the subject of future developments in which there is room for hope that the emperor himself will display democratic liberalism. But for the immediate present Hirohito's position is a matter for speculation in which MacArthur refused to indulge. He pointed out the emperor has obeyed every order issued under the name of the allied commander since the occupation began, but that on the other hand the emperor has made no requests on his own behalf.

Jailed in Europe

The general was gratified at the obedience to his commands and again pointed to the contrast in Europe. Here an authority respected by every last person is carrying out occupation orders, while in Europe the leaders were of necessity placed in jails.

Elaborating, MacArthur said the Japanese would have an extremely hard time maintaining life itself in the coming months because they must rehabilitate themselves without hope of assistance, whereas civil affairs officers in the American zone in Germany already are compelled to provide coal and are faced with the prospect of supplying other necessities in fear that any other course will precipitate disorders. The Japanese, and not the American taxpayer, are going to pay the price of war here, he added, pointing out that because of widespread devastation the price would be high.

MacArthur expressed belief Japan would be allowed to retain sufficient heavy industry to rebuild the nation, but that this would be controled to the extent war industry will be completely rubbed out. He said destruction in Tokyo convinced him Japan did not have enough war industry left in this area to build a musket.

Can't Be World Power

Japan's rise to trade leadership in the orient cannot be prevented even if desired, but MacArthur made clear that confinement of the nation to the four home islands will prevent her reconstitution as a leading world power.

Enlarging on military possibilities in the future, he said that never in history was an army dealt such a defeat. He admitted Japan still had men in great numbers, but pointed out that man power was absolutely ineffective because the men were in small, ineffective, and unequipped groups, incapable of united action at spots where they were most sorely needed.

The general said that Japanese army supplies were so low troops could not have been fed six months hence.

"They Never Come Back."

He is completely unimpressed with the potentialities of samurai and feudal systems, declaring that the latter is doomed to deteriorate until it leaves counts and other Japanese nobles holding honorary titles as in Britain.

With the return of the defeated and discredited Japanese army and navy personnel to civilian life under an unparalleled blow of defeat, the general recalled an adage familiar to the world of sports: "They never come back."

In Difficulties

Barely discernible beneath his coating of soot, James E. Dore stands in chimney at 609 W. Madison st. as firemen break hole to extricate him. [TRIBUNE Photo]

Firemen early yesterday extricated James Edward Dore, 45, who said he has no permanent address, from a furnace chimney pit at the Fremont hotel, 609 Madison st., into which he fell after crawling into the furnace. The furnace was not fired, but it was warmer than outdoors, Dore said. He would have been all right, he added, except that he got stuck. He was removed thru a hole broken in the chimney. Soot was washed off him with a hose in the hotel basement, and a more leisurely cleansing was administered later in County hospital, where physicians decided to send him to psychopathic hospital.

1 JAP LAUGHED, ANOTHER PITIED AT BEHEADING

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 11 (AP)—The beheading of an Australian airman by a Japanese garrison commander at Salamaua, New Guinea, so sickened a Japanese soldier "that I feel a surge of pity and turn my eyes away," he wrote in his diary.

The feeling was short lived, however, for the Japanese added "the savageness which I felt is gone and I feel nothing but the true compassion of Japanese bushido."

The diary was quoted in full tonight by the Shepparton radio, Australia, and recorded by the federal communications commission.

The story of the beheading was told first about 18 months ago, in paraphrase, after allied troops found the diary on a dead Japanese. It is included in a special report on Japanese atrocities.

Commander to Do It

The diary, with slight unimportant deletions, follows:

"On March 29, 1943, all four of us were taken in front of the headquarters. One of the two members of the crew of the plane which was shot down on the 18th and who has been under cross-examination for some days has been returned to the Salamaua garrison and it has been decided to kill him. Our commander . . . told us personally that in accordance with the compassionate sentiments of Japanese bushido he was going to kill the prisoner himself with his favorite sword.

So we gathered to observe it. . . . The prisoner, who was at the side of the guardhouse, was given his last drink of water there. The prisoner with his hands bound and his long hair now cut very close marches forward. He is more composed than I thought he would be. Without more ado he is put on the truck and we set out for our destination. . . .

"As tho saying farewell to the world as he sits in the truck, he looks about him at the hills, at the sea, and seems deep in thought. I feel a surge of pity and turn my eyes away.

Prisoner Is Told

"In a little over 20 minutes we arrive at our destination. . . . The commander stands up and says to the prisoner, 'We are now going to kill you.' He tells the prisoner he will be killed with a Japanese sword and that he will have two or three minutes grace. The prisoner says a few words in a low voice. Apparently he wants to be killed with one stroke of the sword, for I hear him say the word, 'one.'

"The prisoner is made to kneel on the back of a bomb crater filled with water; he's apparently resigned. He remains calm; he even stretches out his neck; he is very brave. Altho the daily bombing has filled me with hate, ordinary human feelings make me pity him.

"The commander has drawn his favorite sword. He touches the prisoner's neck lightly with the back of the blade, then raises it above his head with both arms and brings it down with a sweep. I have been standing with my muscles tense but in that moment I closed my eyes.

Corporal Laughs Loudly

"Suddenly, the sound of blood spurting from the arteries—it sounds as tho something watery has been cut; the body falls forward; the blade has killed him with one stroke; the onlookers crowd forward; the head, detached from the trunk, rolls in front of them; the dark blood gushes out. All is over; the head is dead white like a doll's. The savageness which I felt only a little while ago is gone and I feel nothing but the true compassion of Japanese bushido

"The senior corporal laughs loudly. Then a superior of the medical unit takes the chief medical officer's Japanese sword, and turns the headless body over on its back and cuts the abdomen open with one clean stroke. Not a drop of blood comes out of the body. It is pushed over into the crater at once and is buried.

Norwegian Liner Docks at N. Y., First Since 1940

New York, Sept. 11 (AP)—The 13,156 ton Norwegian liner Stavangerfjord, first passenger ship to reach the United States from Norway since the Nazis overran that country in April, 1940, docked here today with 677 Norwegian merchant seamen and 58 civilians. Capt. Ole Bull, skipper, revealed that Norway's largest liner, the Oslofjord, was sunk by a mine Dec. 1, 1940, off Engand.

that substantial portions of the evidence collected by the army and navy boards of inquiry had been deleted when the reports were made public recently. He noted that the late Mr. Roosevelt at a White House conference of the "war cabinet" late in November, 1941, had predicted an early surprise attack upon Pearl Harbor by the Japanese.

Source of Information

"The American people are entitled to know from what source Mr. Roosevelt's information sprang," he said. "Certain facts, designated 'top secret,' have been suppressed. There is no secret so 'top' that it should be kept now from the nation. If this evidence is not made public, it will be said that the same administration which concealed facts about the disaster since Dec. 7, 1941, is still hiding the truth."

Two additional Republican amendments were shouted down. One would have enlarged the committee to 14 members; the second would have specified the congressional committees from which the speaker would select the house members.

Furious, Speaker Rayburn descended to the house well to assert that if an attempt was to be made to "tie my hands" in selecting committee members, the house might as well strip him of all his responsibilities.

FIRST 13 SURVIVORS OF HOUSTON REACH AMERICA BY PLANE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—The first 12 survivors of the cruiser Houston to reach the United States said tonight the vessel went down in Sundra strait, between Sumatra and Java, the night of Feb. 28, 1942, after "slugging it out with the Japs for an hour and a half."

The Houston left Panjong Priok after dark on the day following the battle of the Java sea, intending to pass thru the strait under cover of darkness. The cruiser made contact with an enemy force off St. Nicholas point on the coast of Java. There all information about the ship's fate ended.

Lt. [j. g.] Harold S. Hamlin Jr. of Orlando, Fla., said the ship was the victim of both enemy gunfire and torpedoes. Survivors were in the water from three hours to three days, he said, and many made their way to the Java shore, where they became prisoners.

The 13 survivors who flew here from Calcutta, India, looked surprisingly healthy considering their experiences. None was from the Chicago area.

NIMITZ MOVING OFFICES BACK TO PEARL HARBOR

GUAM, Sept. 11 (AP)—Adm. Nimitz tonight announced formally that his headquarters on Guam is moving back to Pearl Harbor, bag and baggage, "in the near future," primarily to speed released navy men homeward. It was said he can do this task best from headquarters closer to the United States.

Evidence of the huge transfer is seen in the packing and boxing of records and equipment which has been under way for several days. The major part of one of the navy's biggest office-moving tasks is expected to be completed by the end of this month.

"The movement is for the purpose of concentrating administrative supervision of the Pacific fleet at Pearl Harbor, in close proximity to the major fleet type commanders," Nimitz' press release said.

JAP PERSECUTION OF CHRISTIANITY IN KOREA BARED

Churchgoers and Church Property Seized

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

SEOUL, Korea, Sept. 11—This is a story of Japanese efforts to stamp Christianity out of Korea.

In the early '30s after almost a half century of work by missionaries, priests, and nuns, there were among the 20,000,000 Koreans 180,000 Catholics and 400,000 Protestants. The churches operated hospitals, orphanages, and schools from kindergarten thru college.

Also in the early '30s the Japs began to fight the church. Christianity is foreign and all foreign influences must go, the Japs decreed.

Bar Other Tongues

One of the first steps was to forbid the use in church and church schools of all languages except Japanese. Japanese attended graduation ceremonies and when diplomas were handed out, asked the graduates, "Who is higher, God or the emperor?" If the child said God he didn't get his diploma and police began haunting his family.

Every church service had to begin with this recitation: "We are subjects of Nippon. We uphold with fidelity the imperial nation. With faith and love we unite to nourish and propagate the imperial way."

Jap police entered the homes of priests and missionaries and said, "We need a place to rest," but instead of sleeping they examined records and checked up on visitors. Clergymen were followed in their calls about town. If they desired to leave the city to visit their subparishes they first were required to apply to the police for permission.

Seized Church Property.

The Japs forbade churches to acquire property. And as war neared they began seizing church property. At least five churches were turned into war factories or barracks. The Japs encouraged church workers to leave and made it difficult for more to enter the country.

They sent college students to the Jap army as laborers. It would not be well for educated Christians to run free in a slave country. They might begin to get ideas. The Japs threatened children beginning to study for the ministry.

When the Japs attacked America they interned all foreign churchmen except about 20 Germans. Two French bishops were replaced by a Jap and a Korean.

While not ordering churches closed, the Japs began a harassing campaign which eventually limited attendance to Korean priests. Among the first measures was to interrupt services with a siren, signaling all Koreans to bow to the rising sun in the east. Later police waited outside churches and asked the worshipers why they had time "to waste" when war work was so essential.

"Must Be Spy"

Later still came wholesale arrests of churchgoers on charges of spying.

"You associate with a foreign organization. You must be a spy," the Japs said. And after they had made the arrests they resorted to torture to get false confessions.

They took church membership lists and called on the families and forced them to sign affidavits that they no longer were Christians.

Chosen Christian college, the largest university in Korea, was turned into Jap barracks. Church hospitals were forbidden to purchase supplies and medicine.

How well did they succeed? Immediately after Sunday's surrender ceremony restored religious freedom, New York's Archbishop Spellman conducted mass in a reopened church atop a hill and 2,000 Koreans filled it while hundreds of others waited outside.

YANK MPs WALK BEAT WITH JAP POLICE IN KOREA

Invaders Are Afraid of Native Populace

BY JOSEPH HEARST
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

INCHHEN, Koreau, Sept. 11—The Japanese police force of 420 men, who were retained in their jobs by the American military government, are so afraid of the native populace that American military police are assigned to cover their beats with them.

Lt. Col. Carl Burnham, Berkeley, Cal., head of the military police, said his principal job was to prevent incidents and preserve peace. His men feel the greatest potential danger of outbreaks lies in the bitter feeling the Koreans have for the Japs, who constitute about 20 per cent of the 200,000 population, and the strained relations between the Koreans and Chinese.

Gen. MacArthur has ordered Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, commanding the 24th army corps occupying Korea, to replace all Japanese in government positions as rapidly as possible "consistent with the safety of operations."

Chinese Beat Koreans.

Yesterday there was an outbreak between Koreans and Chinese in front of the Chinese consul's quarters which Burnham and some of his 600 military police had to quell. Four Koreans were beaten by Chinese.

"I don't know just what started the trouble but apparently the Koreans saw a Chinese moving some army rations and tried to take them from him," Burnham said. "When we got there four or five hundred were milling around. We disarmed 10 or 12 Koreans who had rifles that were so ancient I doubt they could be fired, rescued the beaten Koreans and broke it up."

Burnham said he had anxious moments yesterday when funeral services were held for three members of the "branch of the preparational society of the republic of Korea," who were killed just before American occupation forces landed when Jap police fired into a crowd demanding the right to march to the waterfront in force to greet the Americans.

30,000 at Funeral

The bodies lay in state in a movie house, where 100 Koreans paid their respects, and 30,000 turned out for the funeral, many carrying red hammer and sickle flags and others waving the Korean republic flag. The Japs kept out of sight, however, and no incidents marked the burials.

All of Inchhen is out of bounds for American soldiers and sailors after an American soldier was found drunk and stabbed in an alley in the red light district by another drunken soldier who stumbled over the prostrate wounded man in the dark, Burnham said. He explained Koreans are extremely friendly to Americans and are overwhelming them with offers of saki [rice wine], a drink that the men find hard to cope with successfully after a long period of abstinence aboard ships.

Japs Give Coöperation

"By putting the town out of bounds we hope to keep trouble from starting and also keep down the threat of inflated prices that probably would result if Americans started spending freely."

Burnham was not familiar with Korean reports that a few weeks ago officials in Inchhen discharged the regular Korean police force of 150 and supplanted the men with 420 Jap soldiers.

"I don't know about that but I do know the Jap police has given us every coöperation," Burnham said. "They are most anxious to please us and are mighty glad to have our MPs accompany them about the city. They are really afraid of Korean reprisals."

Probably one reason the Japs fear the Koreans lies in the fact it is known that in the building where Burnham has his headquarters is a torture chamber where, judging by the blood spattered walls, many who refused to collaborate with the Japs had suffered.

JAPS HELPFUL IN KOREA, SAYS U. S. GOVERNOR

SEOUL, KOREA, Sept. 11 (AP)—On the fourth day of its occupation, Korea still is enthusiastically celebrating an independence that may be a disappointingly long time in arriving.

To the rapidly increasing chagrin of the Koreans, the American occupation force is dealing with the Japanese rulers of the land and is likely to continue to do so for some time. But those are the orders under which Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, military governor of the American occupation part of Korea, must work. The orders are from Gen. MacArthur.

Gen. Hodge said in an interview that about 16,000 7th division troops had landed and finished cleaning Japanese troops out of Seoul yesterday. He expected a link with the Russians, who have occupied northern Korea, tomorrow. Russian patrols, he said, had entered the American area but had immediately withdrawn.

Japs Called Coöperative

"Lt. Gen. Yoshio Kozuki, commander of the 17th army group and supreme commander of Japanese forces in Korea, has done everything he could to make our coming much simpler and easier than it otherwise would have been," the American military governor asserted.

"The Japanese are disarming themselves and doing a good job of it. We are supervising the job and taking over the arms.

"We haven't fired a shot. There have been a few incidents between the Koreans and the Japanese, including one in which some Japanese shot into a group of Koreans attempting to welcome us at the docks. I had ordered civilians kept away because they would hinder the landing operation.

"We had to leave the Japanese some small arms as protection against the Koreans, since it is our duty to maintain order.

Must Use Jap Officials

"Because the Japanese government ran everything here—the railroads, the telephone and telegraph companies, the postoffice, and the hotels—we must use the Japanese government machine until we can get the Japanese back to Japan."

"The allied powers have declared Korea to be independent in due course," Hodge declared, and he emphasized the phrase "due course." The Koreans have been under Japanese rule for 35 years.

"There are many factions, each claiming the largest representation and pointing the finger of collaboration at the other factions. Talk to 20 people and you get 20 different stories," the general said.

"Many are trying to see me because I am the military governor, but I refuse to see any because seeing just one involves oriental prestige. One man caught my arm as I walked thru a hotel lobby and now is telling others I indorsed him."

SLAPPED YANK SLAPS BACK AND JAP LOSES FACE

HONG KONG, Sept. 11 (AP)—British sailors, manning a boat taking Japanese officers to Victoria today, said an enraged American, just released as a prisoner of war, slapped one of the Nipponese.

The unidentified American walked past the guards on the dock and with blazing eyes stopped before the Japanese. "You slapped me," he said. "You slapped my wife. Now I'm slapping you."

And the American hauled off and slapped one of the Japanese good and hard before the guards could pull him off. Then he wheeled and walked away to the cheers and laughter of Chinese who had witnessed the slapped Jap's loss of "face."

A-BOMB'S HEAT MADE GLASS OF DESERT SANDS

roughly surfaced and full of holes and cracks. This glassy substance was formed by the bomb's heat, which melted the sandy soil. It varies from ¼ to ½ an inch in thickness. Large sections lie fused in a single hole studded sheet, but the material is so brittle that it is difficult to pick up a piece larger than a hand.

Pit 25 Feet Deep

Occasionally a very clear, bright green section can be found [one scientist said he had one made into a brooch for his wife], but most of this covering appears gray-green when viewed as a large mass.

The outer edge of the 800 yard glazed area remains at the original ground level. From this edge the surface slopes gradually down the 400 yard radius toward the center, dropping a total of 10 feet, like a gently sloping plate. Then, at the center of the glazed circle, is a pit, 300 feet across, which is an additional 15 feet deeper. This means that the 300 foot center is 25 feet lower than the former surface.

Altho surrounded by a huge disc of glassy surface, the central pit is not covered with any of the glass, but with a hard, cracked clay. This was the area immediately under the bomb, and scientists said the molten glass there might have been blown out.

Steel Tower Evaporated

On the site of this central core stood the 100 foot steel tower atop which the bomb was set off. Nothing is left of the tower except four short concrete and steel stubs of what were the legs. The rest evaporated.

The depression made by the blast is not a crater in the usual sense. The explosion did not rip up the soil and blow a hole in the earth by scattering the soil around. It simply battered the surface down, the depression becoming less and less as the force dispersed toward the outer edges.

The slope from the outer edge toward the center is so gradual it is difficult to detect from the ground, but it is readily evident when viewed from a plane. From the air it is possible to see how the molten soil splattered at the outer edges of the half mile glazed circle, somewhat in the way thin pancake dough would splatter if dropped on the floor.

Rays Not Harmful

The glassy covering contains some gamma rays, but not in sufficient strength to be harmful, scientists accompanying the party said. These are the rays which the Japanese claimed killed many at Hiroshima. At the bomb crater, scientists carefully measured the souvenirs picked up by the visitors and found that they contained only a harmless amount of the rays. All of the guests wore protective canvas moccasins over their shoes to keep particles of the glass from lodging where their feet might be exposed to the ray activity for a long period. The visitors were warned not to keep the glass in their pockets or bare hands too long.

The army spokesman said careful investigation of the crater showed that such an area can be entered safely. The Japanese, until a few days ago, were broadcasting claims that persons entering Hiroshima after that city was bombed were fatally stricken by gamma rays left by the bomb which was dropped there Aug. 6.

Speaking for the army, Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, director of the atomic bomb project, said at the conference that the Japanese reports have been disproved by reliable reports from Japanese sources and also by studies of results at the crater. He said the Japanese information shows that very few persons killed at Hiroshima died from gamma rays, and that nearly all of the casualties resulted from the blast or from the instantaneous and intense heat.

He also stated that the best Japanese information indicated that some of the burn cases which proved fatal long after the Hiroshima blast probably would not have been fatal if Japanese medical treatment had been as effective as American treatments.

Gen. Groves and leading scientists connected with the atomic bomb development, including Dr. J. R. Oppenheimer of the University of California, said that a well person could have walked into Hiroshima within an hour after the atomic blast and would have suffered no ill effects from gamma rays.

Rays Do Not Linger Long

They said studies at the crater proved that the gamma ray does not linger in any fatal degree. They did not disclose how soon the crater was free of harmful quantities of the rays after the test blast, but they asserted that the ray contamination of the earth at the test site was many times greater than at Hiroshima, because in the test the explosion was only 100 feet above the ground, while over Japan the blast occurred at a much higher altitude and the rays were dispersed in the air to a much greater degree. Nevertheless, scientists soon were in the crater with no ill effects, they said.

Gen. Groves revealed that considerable information, apparently reliable, about the bomb's effects, is now being received by American investigators from undisclosed Japanese sources. This information leads the army to believe, he said, that the evacuation workers reported by the Japanese to have been killed by rays when they entered the devastated city allegedly after the bombing, actually were in the city at the time of the attack.

Deaths Caused by Blast

Gen. Groves also stated that the best Japanese information indicated that some of the burn cases which proved fatal long after the Hiroshima attack probably would not have been fatal if Japanese medical treatment had been as effective as American treatments.

Most of the Hiroshima deaths were caused by the immediate blast and the resulting collapse of buildings, he said. The next most important cause of deaths was the heat of the bomb and resulting fires, the general added. Relatively few persons died from the gamma radiation produced at the instant of the explosion, he said.

PLAN TO INSTALL ATOMIC POWER IN A LOCOMOTIVE

Belleville, N. J., Sept. 11 (AP)—A New York Central railroad locomotive will roll up on a siding here soon and work will begin to convert it to atomic power-drive.

Ralph Lucas

Ralph Lucas, chief engineer for the United States Industries and Development company, Elmira, N. Y., said last night the locomotive would be fitted with a mercury turbine employing a formula for disintegration of mercury and steel atoms.

He said "One teacupful of the mercury atoms, exploded, would run a locomotive, pulling 120 frate cars, for 45 round trips between New York and San Francisco."

Formula Patented.

Lucas said the locomotive would be run onto a siding of the Belleville plant of the concern and that he would build his workshop around it.

He obtained a patent on the formula in 1939, he said, to manufacture electronic power by fusing steel and mercury thru intense heat created by electronic disintegration of the mercury and steel atoms. Lucas said the formula produced a controllable disintegration of the atom.

How Turbine Works

The turbine, Lucas said, works this way:

"It has a 300 horsepower gasoline driven engine, generating 220 volts alternating current, which is increased to 1,440 volts direct current by transformer coils. This, in turn, creates an electron discharge between two electrodes in an eight inch thick steel casting which will withstand 500,000 pounds of pressure per square inch, altho it will use only 350,000 pounds.

"The horsepower generated from that atomic pressure will be 350 times greater than that created in the ordinary locomotive."

Ready in Four Months

Lucas said he believed the turbine would be ready for installation in about four months and that experiments with the locomotive would last for six months to a year.

Lucas, now a resident of Newark, is a native of Elmira. He was graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic institute, Troy, N. Y., has worked as research and engineering specialist with the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company, the Watervliet, N. Y., arsenal, and the Curtiss-Wright corporation, at Buffalo, N. Y.

UNIONS DEMAND BRITAIN SPEED DEMOBILIZATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 11—Extra compensation for British forces in the western Pacific whose demobilization is being delayed by the transport shortage was demanded today at a session of the Trades Union congress in Blackpool. After charging that Britain was lagging far behind the United States in the switch over from war to peace, the 754 delegates unanimously approved a resolution calling on the government drastically to accelerate demobilization.

The conference also approved resolutions demanding that a basic weekly wage be paid those temporarily unemployed as a result of the industrial switchover from war to peace, that a guaranteed weekly wage be set up in all industries, that men and women receive equal pay, and that there be planned production.

DISCLOSE 3 AIR UNITS COMPRISED ALEUTIAN FORCE

Army, Navy Planes Hit Kuriles

ELEVENTH AIR FORCE, Aleutians, Sept. 11 (AP)—Its strength highly secret thruout the war, the Aleutian based aerial task force—first to strike regularly at the Japanese homeland—today was revealed to have been composed of only two army bombing squadrons and a small force of navy planes.

But, because of the security maintained, the two groups tied up approximately one-tenth of the Japanese air force.

The army said that the units which crossed the North Pacific to be the first allied airmen to bomb the Japanese homeland [in the Kuriles— after Doolittle's Tokyo raid—and continued this to the end of the war—were the 404th heavy bombardment squadron, the 77th medium bombardment squadron and naval bombers of fleet air wing 4.

77th First to Bomb Kuriles

Other bombing squadrons of the 11th air force departed for home immediately after the Kiska and Attu campaigns, leaving only the two army and one navy bombing units, and all forces of fighters and patrol planes which patroled and protected the North Pacific and Bering sea from Annette island, 590 miles north of Seattle, to Shimushiri island 900 miles north of Tokyo in the Kurile islands.

First to cross the 850 miles of North Pacific to bomb Paramushiru and Shumushu islands in the Kuriles was the 77th bombardment squadron, which carried out that mission on July 10, 1943. It was then the longest overwater bombing mission of the war.

The 77th and 404th squadrons, on two subsequent occasions, were caught over the Kuriles by 40 to 50 Japanese fighter planes. In spite of the odds, they carried out their missions and somehow fought off the enemy for almost one hour of the six hour trip back to their Aleutian bases. All the Kurile missions were carried out without fighter support.

Casualties Are Low

Casualties due to enemy aircraft and ground fire were comparatively low, principally because many crippled ships—unable to return the long distances to the Aleutians—found havens in neutral Russian Kamchatka. It is only a few miles across the first Kurile strait from Shumushu island.

Thirty-three bombers and their crews were saved by this means. Water landings in the North Pacific means death by exposure, in a short mean death by exposure, in a short

In addition to harassing the enemy troops in the Kurile garrisons, pounding their huge Kataoka naval base on Shumushu, and tieing up considerable of their air force, the Aleutian air task force continually bombed and strafed shipping and the Kurile fish canneries and fisheries—one of the principal sources of enemy food production.

On shipping "sweeps," four engined and two engined bombers went in at altitudes under 50 feet and often sank small ships with machine gun fire after all bombs were expended.

The 404th squadron was patroling the Bering sea from the Nome sector when the war was declared, and the 77th was the first army air forces combat unit to go overseas after the declaration. The 77th was alerted for shipment two days after Pearl Harbor.

SURRENDER AT SINGAPORE TO BE 'FACE SAVER'

British Seek to Recover Dignity Today

BULLETIN

LONDON, Sept. 12 [Wednesday]—(AP)—The New Delhi radio said today that envoys representing Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi, commander of the Japanese southern armies, formally surrendered his forces to Adm. Mountbatten at Singapore this morning.

SINGAPORE, Sept. 11 (AP)—Britain reaps vengeance for her rankling defeat of three and one half years ago when Japan's southern armies formally surrender tomorrow at this mighty naval bastion.

Everything consistent with imperial dignity will be done to recover in the surrender ceremony the "face" Britain lost when the tide of Japanese conquest washed over Singapore Feb. 15, 1942, and Lt. Gen. A. E. Percival yielded unconditionally to haughty Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita.

Ceremony to Be Public

The surrender ceremony will be public. The British want all Singapore residents to see the Japanese humbled.

Japanese labor parties, under Indian guards, toiled today to manicure the turf on the Padang for tomorrow's outdoor show, which will precede the actual signing of the surrender.

High ranking Japanese army and navy officers, headed by Lt. Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, commander of the Japanese 7th army, will be drawn up in their brass and braid for the formalities.

They include the chief of staff of Japanese southern armies, with headquarters at Saigon, French Indo-China, and the commanders of the 3d area, Burma area, and 18th armies.

Jap Chief to Be Absent

But the ceremony will be robbed of some of its savor by the absence of Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi, Mountbatten's opposite number as commander in chief of Japan's southern armies.

While British doctors who visited the 66 year old Terauchi at Saigon found valid his plea that he was too ill to come—he suffered a stroke last April and is a semi-paralytic—the British still regard him as the chief contriver of the campaign to dim the British triumph.

However that may be, Terauchi will be brought here later, it was announced today.

Indication of Japanese attempts to deprive the British of the full measure of their revenge was seen in the nonarrival, by midafternoon, of three Japanese lieutenant generals.

Borneo, New Guinea Surrender

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 11 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Baba, commander of Japanese on Borneo, and Rear Adm. Saburo Sato, commander of Nipponese naval forces on New Guinea, have surrendered to the Australians, it was announced today.

Maj. Gen. G. F. Wotten, commander of the Australian 9th division, accepted the surrender of Baba and his staff in the presence of about 30 senior United States, royal Australian air force and navy officers. Baba and his staff declined luncheon, turned over their swords and signed the surrender.

Sato reluctantly turned over his sword to Maj. Gen. H. C. H. Robertson, commander of the Australian 6th division.

Give Up Dutch Timor

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 11 (AP)—Japanese forces on Dutch Timor have surrendered to the Australians, a radio message to Australian army headquarters here reported today.

The surrender was signed aboard the Australian ship Moresby in Koepang harbor. Brig. Gen. Dyke acted for the allies.

WAR COST ARMY 737,714 TONS OF CARGO AT SEA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—The war department reported today that 737,714 ship tons of army cargo were lost at sea during the war as the result of the sinking or damaging of 148 vessels outbound from the United States.

The total included 200,058 tons from the sinking of 31 vessels and the damaging of two others in the Pacific and 537,656 tons thru the sinking of 105 vessels and damaging of 10 others in the war against Germany.

These figures, the army emphasized, cover only losses on vessels of American and foreign registry sailing from this country. The army calculated the losses amounted to 62 tons out of each 10,000 tons shipped from this country from December, 1941, to Aug. 1, 1945.

Rivalry Grows

William Evertson, 45, of 3326 S. 49th av., Cicero, a restaurant owner, complained to Judge Frank E. Donoghue in Women's court yesterday about his competition in love and business. He was appearing against his estranged wife, Hilda, 45, of 3228 S. 48th ct., Cicero.

A few months ago, Evertson said, his wife opened a restaurant on the floor above his at 2502 S. Cicero av., Cicero. He put up with the business competition, he said, but called police Monday night when he found his wife with Roy Brinker, 43, a switchman, in Brinker's room at 1505 Jackson blvd. Before court opened, Evertson said, Brinker hit him in the eye.

Mrs. Evertson and Brinker were charged with disorderly conduct. Judge Donoghue continued the case to Sept. 26. Mrs. Evertson is suing for divorce on the ground of cruelty. Evertson said he will file a cross bill charging adultery.

IDENTIFY PILOT WHO SHOT DOWN JAP NAVY CHIEF

Tell How U.S. Flyers Caught Admiral

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—Lt. Col. Thomas G. Lanphier, army pilot, was identified by the war department today as the man who shot down the plane carrying Adm. Isoroku Yamamoto, commander in chief of the Japanese navy.

Lt. Col. Thomas G. Lanphier

Lanphier, 29, is the son of Col. Thomas Lanphier Sr. Washington. Lt. Col. Lanphier's wife lives at Boise, Idaho.

The army announcement said that acting on information sent to commands in the Southwest Pacific by the late Secretary of Navy Knox, Lanphier and a group of army flyers in P-38s led by Lt. Col. John W. Mitchell [then major] of Enid, Miss., left Guadalcanal on the morning of April 18, 1943.

Admiral Right on Dot

"Riding in one of his newest bombers at over 200 miles an hour," the army announcement said, "the [Japanese] admiral was accompanied by virtually his entire high command in similar aircraft. For cover six Zeros were known to have been assigned and many others were expected to have been in the area for the protection of their commander.

"When identified by Col. Lanphier's group of flyers, the admiral was, as always, right on the dot. The rendezvous had been accomplished as scheduled within seconds of the predicted time. Leading his flight, which had been directed to attack the Jap planes while the others flew protective cover, Col. Lanphier successfully shot down the admiral's plane which was seen to fall in flames from an altitude so low as to preclude the possibility of any one escaping.

Awarded Navy Cross

"The second Mitsubishi was destroyed by his wing man, Maj. Rex Barber [then Lt.] of Culber, Ore.

"Adm. Yamamato was officially announced by the Japs as 'killed in combat with the enemy.'"

Lanphier, now assigned to Washington headquarters of the army air forces, was awarded the navy cross for his achievement.

CHINESE TROOPS ENTER HANKOW, OTHER CENTERS

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 11 (AP)—The Chinese high command said today its troops marching to take back battle-lost areas had entered Hankow on the Yangtze; Nanchang, the capital of Kiangsi province; Kaifeng, capital of Honan; Hingho, on the Chahar-Suiyuan border, and Suikai on the Luichow peninsula in south China.

Other forces assigned to occupation of northern French Indo-China have entered Hanoi, an official announcement said.

An OWI correspondent reported that the war-shattered central China metropolis of Hankow was economically dead after repeated air raids and Japanese looting. Only in the former French concession is business being transacted, he said.

750 Australian Brides of Yanks Leave for U. S.

BRISBANE, Australia, Sept. 11 (AP)—More than 750 Australian brides of American service men, many of them with babies in their arms, sailed for the United States today aboard the Matson liner Lurline. There were 972 brides waiting to make the trip, but 206 were forced to remain behind because of lack of accommodations. Relatives and friends laden with flowers and presents crowded the docks as two bands, an Australian and an American, played a farewell.

TOLD ROOSEVELT OF WAR DANGER, KURUSU CLAIMS

BY DUANE HENNESSY

KARUIZAWA, Japan, Sept. 11 (AP)—Saburo Kurusu, dapper Japanese diplomat who was on a special "peace mission" in Washington, D. C., when the Pacific exploded into war, claimed here today that he had told the late President Roosevelt in November, 1941 that a spark would set off the conflagration.

Kurusu said that prior to leaving for Washington he had visited Manchuria, Formosa, Hong Kong, and Manila. What he saw there, he said, caused him to tell the President "if any one touches a match the explosion will come." To which, he said, the President replied, "Yes, and what for?"

Kurusu, who claimed he had no knowledge that Japan was moving against Hawaii, represented President Roosevelt as anxious to end the conflict between Japan and China. He quoted the President as having said, "Japan and China are not on speaking terms. I don't know if there is such a term in diplomacy but how about me acting as introducer."

Says Hull "Intervened."

Kurusu said the then Secretary of State Hull "intervened" because he did not trust "the party then in power in Japan." He added, however, that "Mr. Hull was sincerely working for peace" and claimed that he too "worked for peace to the very end."

Kurusu, at his mountain summer home 100 miles northwest of Tokyo, thinks that for Japan to rush into democracy would be disastrous. He declared the government needs many changes so that the people will have a greater voice.

Retention of the emperor is paramount, said Kurusu. Getting rid of him, he added, "would do Japan more harm than occupation." He predicted that changes within Japan "must be gradual or the world will find Japan in a grip as bad as that of the military clique which precipitated the war."

Climaxed on Nov. 26

Kurusu asserted the grave period from Nov. 20 to 26 was climaxed by the Nov. 26 note in which the United States demanded that Japan get out of China, Manchuria, and Indo-China. He remarked that the Japanese navy could have sailed even the next day for the strike at Hawaii altho he did not say it did.

Kurusu also commented: "At the time I started for America Ambassador Grew [then United States diplomatic chief in Japan] warned that Japan might strike with dramatic suddenness."

MILITARY ELIMINATED

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

TOKYO, Sept. 11—The one objective of new imperial government is an elimination of the military from the social and political life of Japan, Prince Fumimaro Konoye, three times premier, a member of the new cabinet, said today.

Konoye said the outside world has distrusted Japan because its government had long been a "two headed dragon with the regular government promising to do one thing and the other separate head, the military, ordering another to do another. Now when we promise something we can do it."

Konoye, premier at the time of the China incident, disclosed that he and Chiang Kai-shek probably could have reached an agreement, but that when he dispatched a personal emissary to China's leader, the Japanese military physically grabbed him as he boarded a ship, breaking up the peaceful negotiations.

Blocked Roosevelt Meeting

He was again premier until just prior to Pear Harbor when he gave way to Tojo. Konoye said he proposed a personal meeting with President Roosevelt to reach an amicable settlement of American Japanese differences. Mr. Roosevelt received the message via Adm. Nomura, the Japanese ambassador to Washington, on the Sunday after the President's return from his first Atlantic meeting with British Prime Minister Churchill. Mr. Roosevelt answered Nomura with a flat "yes" of acceptance, Konoye said.

It was thereafter, Konoye said, that the Japanese military began to inject stipulations and Mr. Roosevelt's advisers, allegedly became suspicious and the proposed meeting broke down.

"The emperor and I and most of the cabinet were for acceptance of the American terms that we withdraw from China, but Tojo, with the backing of the military, violently opposed. I had no choice but to withdraw."

Konoye claimed that when Hirohito finally signed a rescript declaring war he did not know it would be used the way it was—which would mean it was undated—and still hoped it would be just a club and that the negotiations would be successful.

APPROVE BILL ABOLISHING WAR TIME ON SEPT. 30

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 [Special]—War time will be abolished Sept. 30, congressional leaders decided today. The house interstate committee voted without dissent for a bill to end war time at 2 a. m. on that date, a Sunday. The senate interstate committee is considering a similar measure and members predicted it would vote for the Sept. 30 termination. There appeared little doubt that both chambers would approve the bill. The house may vote tomorrow.

Nothing in the legislation, however, prohibits the practice of advancing clocks an hour in summer time, a local option. Chicago, for instance, has announced it will continue to enjoy an extra hour of daylight until at least Oct. 28, in accordance with a city ordinance establishing summer time from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October.

The nation's clocks were advanced an hour on Feb. 9, 1942, as a war measure, intended to increase daylight hours of production and to save fuel, light, and power.

THE ATOMIC BOMB

The Underlying Principles Behind the Atomic Bomb

APPLIED NUCLEAR PHYSICS

By ERNEST POLLARD and WILLIAM L. DAVIDSON, Jr.

The atomic bombshell has become more than a legend . . . today it is a prophecy of a new world in the making. We may yet see a small lump of coal serve as sufficient fuel for a transatlantic voyage . . . we may permit our imaginations to run as far as they will . . . and believe that what man can conceive . . . man can do!

Censorship has not released any additional information on the principles underlying the atomic bomb since this book was published. It is written by two scientists—scientists who write so that the layman can understand . . yet whose facts are absolutely sound and authoritatively correct. 253 NAVY SHIPS SUNK OR HIT IN OKINAWA BATTLE

Greatest Losses for a Single Operation

BY WILLIAM STRAND
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11—The Okinawa campaign cost the American navy 253 warships sunk or damaged in 82 days of fighting, figures released by the navy department disclosed today.

The losses were the greatest ever suffered by the navy in any single operation and again emphasized the bitterness of the struggle for the narrow island on the threshold of the Japanese homeland.

A total of 30 combat ships was sunk outright, the navy announced, and 223 others were damaged, including 10 battleships and eight big aircraft carriers. Most of those hit were victims of Jap suicide planes.

Hit by Own Gunfire

Indicative of the tumult and confusion caused by the kamikaze blows, however, was the disclosure that 12 of the damaged craft were hit by our own gunfire as the fleet stood off the island to protect the landing and later to provide air cover for the ground forces.

Destroyers were the largest ships sunk. There were 12 of these sent to the bottom and another 67 destroyers damaged, the announcement said. Lesser craft sunk included transports, minesweepers, and one submarine chaser.

The list of the damaged craft carries the names of some of the most formidable warships in the navy. There were the battleships Missouri, on the deck of which the final Japanese surrender took place; Nevada, West Virginia, Tennessee, Maryland, Idaho, New York, New Mexico, North Carolina, and the Mississippi. Heavy cruisers damaged were the Indianapolis, Wichita, and Louisville; light cruisers, Biloxi and Birmingham.

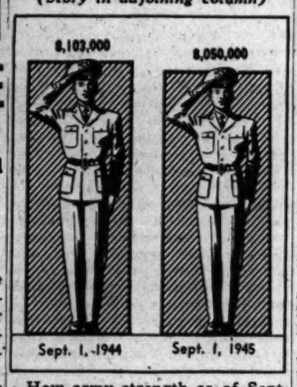
Carriers Hit

Aircraft carriers hit, beside the historic Enterprise, were the Franklin, Intrepid, Yorktown, Wasp, Hancock, Essex, and Bunker Hill. Others were the small carriers San Jacinto and Bataan and the escort carriers Wake Island, Sangamon, and Natoma Bay. The remainder of the damaged craft were minelayers, minesweepers, cargo ships, transports, one hospital ship, one drydock, two submarines, and many types of landing craft.

Against these losses, the navy reported a total of 3,836 Japanese aircraft destroyed in the same period. There was no new report given on the number of killed or wounded in the attacks upon the ships. Overall casualties of 10,000 in the taking of Okinawa previously have been reported by the navy, including 5,000 dead or missing.

Army Strength

(Story in adjoining column)



How army strength as of Sept. 1 almost equaled that of a year ago.

OWN DISCHARGE CENTERS SET UP BY AIR FORCE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—The army air force is setting up its own discharge centers to speed release of about 150,000 A. A. F. men caught in the jam at other separation centers, it was learned today.

Establishment of the A. A. F. centers, which will process only men in this country, the bulk of them low point men, culminated a lively tiff between the A. A. F. and the army service forces, which operate the regular separation centers.

The A. A. F. wanted the A. S. F. to process the A. A. F. men thru the centers ahead of other service men with high point scores, it was said. The A. S. F. was reported to have refused.

ARMY MAY CUT RELEASE SCORE OF NURSE CORPS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—The war department is considering lowering the discharge score for army nurses from 65 to 35 points, it was learned today. It is estimated that under this plan about 25,000 will be released by the end of this year. The corps strength is now 55,000. About 300 have been released.

DRAFT STRIPPING FARMS OF HELP, SENATE IS TOLD

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11—Food output faces a new setback because farm workers deferred during the war are now being drafted, Sen. Wiley [R., Wis.] charged today as congress continued to hammer at demobilization snags.

Wiley told the senate that in some areas farm deferments are now being "arbitrarily canceled" and experienced farm hands inducted.

"If this atrocious policy continues," he said, "it will strike a body blow against the American farmers who have already been stripped down to a bare minimum of help."

Asks Hershey Halt Inductions

In a letter of protest to Draft Director Maj. Gen. Hershey, Wiley called for an immediate halt to this "intolerable" policy "lest further serious injury be inflicted on the food production of America."

Meanwhile, both senators and congressmen denounced the military's policy of seeking post-war promotions for high officers at a time when, they asserted, demobilization plans call for demoting and discharging many officers.

Chairman Thomas [D., Utah] of the senate military committee said his group will delay action on proposed promotions of army officers until it has studied the administration's plans for reducing the fighting forces.

He announced that Gen. Marshall would outline the army demobilization program to the committee in open sessions, and that both army and navy discharge programs will be thoroly investigated at hearings. Marshall was scheduled to testify tomorrow, but he is out of town. He will be called on his return.

Yesterday's recommendation by President Truman to the senate of 23 promotions—six to major and 17 to brigadier generals—was criticized today in both houses.

Calls Request Ridiculous

"This is ridiculous," exclaimed Sen. Johnson [D., Col.]. "We ought to be demoting instead of promoting army officers at this stage of the game."

In the house Rep. Bender [R., O.] declared that "some high ranking officers are more interested in retaining their rank and position than in speeding discharges."

"I am calling on the war department," Bender said, "to cut out immediately those high ranking officers who are no longer necessary."

The war department in a statement defended the policy of continuing to promote some officers on merit as an "incentive" to those with army careers.

Rank of 100 Reduced

The statement said that 70 general officers have been retired from active duty and that 100 others have had their rank reduced. As of June 30, the army had 1,537 general officers. Commissioned officers of all grades totaled 771,064, of whom 109,346 were majors or higher.

An outright end to the draft was demanded in the house by Rep. Miller [R., Neb.], who also urged that all men with two years or more of service and all freed American war prisoners be released.

"Congress should put an end to the military rule of this country," Miller said.

Chairman May [D., Ky.] of the house military committee begged the house to have faith in the military leaders who led the nation to victory to handle the demobilization problem. He said the army has set up 37 separation centers and will have more than 100 within a week, and that "all is being done that can be done" to speed discharges.

Adding much fuel to the demobilization controversy was a war department report that the army totaled 8,050,000 on Sept. 1, a net reduction from a year earlier of only 53,000.

NEW EYES FOR THE LOOKOUT...

Drawing from an actual photograph of the radar screen on a ship steaming westward in the Mediterranean Sea, showing the Straits of Gibraltar and the Atlantic Ocean beyond. This illustrates one of the navigational uses of radar.

RADAR by RAYTHEON !

COMPLETE SAFETY AT SEA . . . goal of centuries . . . comes closer today as Raytheon turns radar to peacetime applications.

Raytheon is the sole maker of the indispensable Model SG surface-search radar with which every combat ship of the U. S. Navy from destroyer class up is equipped. It has long been a leading designer and maker of vacuum tubes. For the past two years, its production of radar-type microwave tubes has equalled that of all others combined.

Using radar's "wave-echo" principle, Raytheon is planning a complete line of marine navigation equipment that will probe through darkness, fog and storms, revealing obstacles far beyond a lookout's range of vision. It will outline icebergs, other ships, and compute their distances. It will even guide ships into harbors and to the entrances of locks.

Raytheon navigational radar will be the same precision equipment that Raytheon has had such long experience in building. It will be marine navigation equipment equal in design and efficiency to the world-famous radar with which Raytheon equipped our Navy's every fighting ship from destroyer to capital class.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11—The Anglo-American economic conference, which is expected to shape the fiscal pattern of the post-war world, opened with a 35 minute meeting in the state department today on the familiar note of cancellation of obligations owed the United States and the negotiation of billions of dollars of American loans or gifts.

John Maynard Keynes

At the head of the British delegation with British Ambassador Halifax is John Maynard Keynes, the English economic theorist who fathered British repudiation of World war debts and sired many of the economic experiments put into effect by the New Deal.

Assistant State Secretary Clayton headed the American delegation which included Secretaries Vinson of the treasury and Wallace of commerce. The British delegation, in addition to seeking cancelation of 29½ billion dollars advanced to the empire thru lend-lease, is believed prepared to appeal for 3 to 6 billion dollars as a gift or long term low rate loan.

Denounced Them in House

As the British thus began their quest for vast American financial assistance, Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.] and Curtis [R., Neb.] denounced them in the house.

"Just what kind of saps do they think we are," Knutson asked in a speech. "If the British treasury is in such precarious condition why did a majority of the voters of the United Kingdom go to the polls at the recent election and vote to have the government take over the coal mines, utilities, transportation, and the banking system, not to mention the liberalization of old age assistance.

"Where did they think the billions to finance such an ambitious program were to come from? From the United States, of course. The American people are being asked to finance the socialization of the United Kingdom thru the forcible acquisition of business and industry. Why should we finance this journey to Utopia.

United States Not Consulted

"We were not consulted, neither were we allowed to vote on the proposition. Wouldn't that be 'taxation without representation' and didn't the heroes of the Boston tea party reject that philosophy 170 years ago?"

Knutson said that "We should tell the government of the United Kingdom that if they wish to forcibly take over all private activities, they must themselves finance it and, failing in that, they should look to Moscow for such financing."

Rep. Curtis said part of the purpose of the reported British request for help is to provide funds so the British government can buy the Bank of England, their mines, and their railroads.

Tax-Burdened America

"The already over-burdened taxpayers of the United States should not be called upon to pay for the socialization of the industry of England," Curtis said. "No American official has a constitutional right to make such a loan."

The American and British delegations in their first meeting approved a four-part program of discussions for the conference. The topics are financial problems, a final settlement of lend-lease, discussion of commercial policy, plans for disposing of surplus war property.

Opening of the conference renewed interest in a book which Economist Keynes wrote 25 years ago. In the book, "The Economic Consequences of the Peace," Keynes said that the money the United States advanced in the World war was not "in the nature of an investment" and that "the financial sacrifices of the United States have been, in proportion to her wealth, immensely less than those of European state."

Slurs on America

The book regretted the passing of the German, Russian and Austria-Hungarian empires, slurred America, and slighted other allies while justifying Britain's territorial acquisitions and financial plans.

"On the one hand, Europe must depend in the long run on her own daily labor and not on the largesse of America; but on the other, she will not pinch herself in order that the fruit of her daily labor may go elsewhere," Keynes wrote in arguing for cancellation of the war debts. "In short, I do not believe that any of these tributes will continue to be paid, at the best for more than a very few years. They do not square with the spirit of the age."

THE QUESTION

What changes have you noticed in returned service men you know?

WHERE ASKED

Union station.

THE ANSWERS

Mrs. Donald Jacobs, housewife, Richmond, Ind.—Some service men are very bitter. My husband was quite bitter when he came back from the Mediterranean, but he was not so bad after returning from the South Pacific. He says a soldier is a hero today and forgotten tomorrow. That is the way in war.

The Rev. Robert J. MacDanel, Fort Wayne, Ind.—The greatest change I have noticed is the maturity of the boys who return. They seem to have changed and grown older more rapidly than they would have in peace time. They went away boys and they are coming back men. This was to be expected.

Mrs. Ellen Laurence, housewife, Farmington, Mich.—I live in a very small village and do not have much opportunity for meeting many returned service men. However, the ones I have met don't like to be asked questions. They want to do all the talking. They just want to tell you so much, and then stop talking.

C. A. Foster, watch worker, Detroit, Mich.—I can't see much change in the boys. In fact, they seem just as happy-go-lucky as when they went away. Of course, most of them are delighted to be home and that may have something to do with their present attitude. We can tell better in a year or so.

Mrs. C. A. Foster, housewife, Detroit, Mich.—I disagree with my husband. I think the boys are more reserved and older. I have been shocked to see the difference in most of the young men we knew. They are definitely men now. Their young looks are gone and there is a mature cast to their features.

Joseph L. Ogle, railroad employe, 3516 Clinton st., Berwyn—The boys I have met who have returned from overseas are more mature and settled in their dispositions. In one way, the war was an invaluable experience. The men will appreciate more what this country has to offer. They will be better Americans.

SHANGHAI PORT WILL OPEN TO U. S. SHIPS SATURDAY

SHANGHAI, China, Sept. 11 (AP)—The port of Shanghai will be opened Saturday to provide support of allied forces in the China theater and to help carry out the "home by Christmas" motto of a majority of the American troops in this area.

Maj. Gen. Douglas L. Weart of Chicago, American base commander at Shanghai, who announced the port's opening date, said several United States ships had been waiting since Aug. 1 to enter the harbor. They will come in as soon as the navy clears the waterways of mines.

Prime purpose of the harbor will be to receive gasoline, which formerly had to be transported to the China theater by air over the "hump" route from India. Weart said the "hump" route would be closed down soon after the Shanghai port opens.

BIG 5 OFFICIALS BEGIN CHARTING EUROPE'S PEACE

BY WILLIAM FULTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 11—The Big Five council of foreign ministers, charting the steps toward a return to peace, held its first session today.

It was announced after the secret four hour meeting that the officials had decided to broaden their discussions to include questions that might be proposed by the United States, Great Britain, the soviet union, China, and France.

Meeting in Lancaster house, formerly the London museum, the foreign ministers agreed to proceed first with matters referred to them at the Potsdam conference.

Peace for Italy First Item

In order of their priority these are:

1—Drafting a peace treaty for Italy.

2—Drafting treaties for Germany's Balkan satellites.

3—President Truman's proposal for internationalization of inland waters in Europe.

This was the official description of the council's task:

"To continue necessary preparatory work for peace settlements and to consider any other matters which may from time to time be referred to it by agreement of the governments who are members of the council."

France is especially desirous of bringing up the question of detaching the industrial Ruhr basin and the Rhineland from Germany, and soviet leaders are anxious to gain the atomic bomb secret now shared by the United States and Britain.

United States Secretary of State Byrnes earlier said that neither the atomic bomb nor Germany's fate would be discussed.

Complications Are Likely

Drafting of the Italian peace treaty is complicated by the disposition of Italian colonies in Africa and boundary claims of several nations. Yugoslavia wants the key port of Trieste on the Adriatic. Greece has claims arising from Italian occupation of its country and the nearby Aegean Islands. Other powers are interested in the future of that part of the Tyrol handed from Austria to Italy after the last war.

Ernest Bevin, Britain's new foreign secretary, presided at the first session as host. It was agreed the post of chairman would rotate daily. Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov will take over tomorrow. The top men of each delegation will meet every afternoon, with their deputies meeting in the morning to plan the agenda. The council proceedings are interpreted in English, Russian, and French, with the Chinese representatives participating in English.

The conference chamber is a rococo gilded ballroom with wall mirrors reaching from the floor to the ceiling. Large windows open on a garden blooming with yellow chrysanthemums. Beyond them a row of acacia trees screens the proceedings from the public.

British First to Enter

Bevin and members of the British delegation were the first to enter the room today. Secretary of State Byrnes and the United States group came next. Byrnes shook hands vigorously with Bevin. John Foster Dulles, who was Gov. Dewey's adviser on foreign affairs in the last Presidential campaign, towered above the other Americans.

The Chinese delegation, headed by Dr. Wang Shih-chieh, came into the room next, closely followed by Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and the French delegates.

The soviet representatives arrived last. However, Molotov went completely around the table to shake hands with his colleagues.

There were 25 red leather backed chairs, five for each delegation, ranged about an oval mahogany table covered with blue felt.

Byrnes was flanked on the right by Assistant Secretary James C. Dunn and Dulles on the left by Charles Bohlen, assistant to Byrnes and interpreter, and Ben Cohen, state department counselor.

PROMISE MORE FOOD TO BRITAIN FROM OVERSEAS

LONDON, Sept. 11 [Reuters]—More food for Britain, including beef, butter, and oranges, has been promised by both Australians and South Africans, but Minister of Food Ben Smith today warned the British people that they probably would have to endure the present cut in the meat ration until 1946. A decrease in the milk ration is possible, Smith said.

South Africa may soon organize a national fund with a target of $4,000,000 for sending gifts of food to Britain. A shipment of 498,000 cases of oranges is on the way from South Africa.

A gift to Britain of 5,000 beef carcasses and 1,000,000 pounds of butter was announced by Robin Stratford, member of the South African parliament, at a Johannesburg meeting called to discuss a "food for Britain" fund.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—A bill granting permanent rank to the nation's war time generals of the army and fleet admirals won unanimous approval today of the senate military committee.

ARMY AIR TRANSPORT COMMAND PLANS DEEP CUT IN PLANES, MEN

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 [Special]—The army's air transport command, which served every war theater, will reduce its strength from about 3,000 planes and 210,000 personnel to approximately 650 planes and 80,000 men by July 1, the war department announced tonight.

Lt. Gen. Harold L. George, commanding general, said ATC's aerial routes, foreign and domestic, will be reduced from 180,000 to about 79,000 miles by that time.

ATC already is releasing large numbers of two and four engine transports as surplus property. A great number will be absorbed by civil air lines.

ATC will turn over its local intra-theater services to other air force units, but will continue to conduct thru service between the United States and American occupational forces overseas.

Opening of a port on the East China coast is expected to eliminate the need for air transport service over what has been termed the most dangerous aerial route in the world—the Hump—between India and China.

AIR TRANSPORT'S RIP VAN WINKLE: THAT'S CHICAGO!

Aviation Leader Says We Are 15 Years Behind

Chicago's airport is 15 years behind the times and is "almost an international disgrace," Wayne W. Parrish of Washington, D. C., publisher of American Aviation publications, told the Junior Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Parrish, who spoke at a dinner in the Morrison hotel celebrating the 25th anniversary of coast to coast flights, asserted that such trips soon would be on an hourly schedule. He warned Chicago that it faces a "real problem" unless something is done immediately to provide adequate airport facilities.

City's Response "95% Talk"

Chicago's reaction to the need for an adequate airport and terminal facilities has been "95 per cent talk, 3 per cent vision, and 2 per cent action," Parrish said.

"This year more than a million persons will land at the Chicago airport, and there are only 25 seats in the terminal building," he said. "Chicago's great destiny is as a commercial air traffic center, but talk about it will amount only to lip service unless some action is forthcoming."

Copenhagen, Denmark, and Winston-Salem, N. C., tho smaller than Chicago, are far ahead of this city in airport facilities, and bomb smashed airports in Germany are more impressive than the airport here, Parrish said.

He asserted New York's airport program is far ahead and that New York will "get its money back because it is good business." The new terminal building at the Chicago port will be obsolete "before the teel rises from the ground," he dded.

New Developments Ahead

Planes reached high combat efficiency in the war just ended, but research promises far reaching developments in pilotless missiles and the atomic bomb, Parrish said.

Parrish declared American and British air power won the European war "without any question." Recently returned from a tour of European air fields, he said the average American has no conception of what strategic bombing did to knock Germany out of the war.

A plaque commemorating the first regular coast to coast flight, which will be hung at the airport, was presented to Ralph Rohweder, president of the Junior Association of Commerce, by Hainer Hinshaw, assistant to the president of United Air Lines.

HOOSIER HELD IN TWO KILLINGS GETS ARMY STAY

Motive for Officers' Slaying Not Told

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 [Special]—Details of the double slaying which brought a court martial sentence of death for Pvt. 1st Class Robert a Colby of Geetingsville, Ind., in Germany last June were disclosed today by Rep. Harness [R., Ind.] as he began an effort to assemble evidence bearing on possible clemency.

Execution of the sentence on Pvt. Colby has been deferred pending action on clemency appeals, Harness was informed by Undersecretary of War Patterson. Colby is 22 and a veteran of North African and European combat.

Shooting Called Deliberate

The Indiana congressman said Patterson told him Colby had been given light punishment for disobeying an order confining his unit to a certain area and that two days later he picked up his rifle and walked to the officers' quarters.

Colby saw two of his superior officers, Capt. Richard Brown and Lt. Donald H. Wade, sitting before a fire and "deliberately shot them both," Patterson's statement to Harness said. Both officers died within an hour.

"Returning to his area, Colby handed his sergeant his rifle and said, 'I just shot the old man, but I'm sorry I killed the lieutenant,'" the statement continued. "Colby repeated this statement at his trial. But when asked whether he had been angry with the captain over the light punishment, he said, 'No, I didn't have anyhing against the captain.'"

Former Neighbors Seek to Aid

This is the first account of the double slaying to be made public in this country. Mrs. L. O. Colby of Geetingsville had previously been informed only that her son had been sentenced to death for shooting two officers. She had appealed to Harness for assistance and yesterday 50 residents of Geetingsville sent a petition to Gen. Eisenhower asking him to show leniency because Colby had been a good boy in civilian life.

Harness said he has wired Mrs. Colby and Gov. Ralph Gates of Indiana for statements regarding Colby's character, conduct or record prior to induction. He will transmit this information to the proper army officials, he said.

HABITUAL INDICTMENT RULING DUE FRIDAY IN VAULT LOOT CASE

A question raised by defense counsel of whether Willie Niemoth, one of five men charged with the looting of the safety deposit vault in the E. H. Rumbold real estate office Jan. 19, can be tried on a habitual criminal indictment will be answered Friday by Judge William J. Lindsay in Criminal court, he said yesterday after listening to arguments.

Attorneys James M. Burke and George Crane contended that the habitual criminal count included in new indictments against Niemoth last month is not legal because the charge was not brought within four months' of Niemoth's arrest last February.

Burke and Crane and Assistant State's Atty. Clement Cody told the court they want Niemoth and a codefendant, Patsy Flaherty, to go to trial Monday. Niemoth and Flaherty were acquitted on a burglary charge arising from the looting. Thomas Leahy, Michael Kosar, and Llewellyn Morgan are defendants in the same case, awaiting separate trials.

GLOVE GUNMAN QUESTIONED ON POLICE SLAYING

A 25 year old gunman was being questioned in Detroit, Mich., last night as a suspect in the slaying of two Chicago detectives at Clark st. and Lunt av. the night of Sept. 2 after his arrest there in connection with a holdup murder.

He is Douglas M. Anderson, in whose room Detroit police found a copy of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for Sept. 3, containing a complete account of the slaying of Detectives Charles Brady and George Hellstern.

Carries Gun and Black Gloves

When arrested in a Detroit bar, he carried a loaded revolver and six bullets, and had a pair of black rubber gloves in a pocket. Detective Brady, before he died in St. Francis hospital, said the man who shot him wore a black rubber glove on his left hand.

At first, Anderson refused to talk to police about his Detroit crimes, but when they began to question him about the Chicago shooting, he talked volubly. He admitted a drug store robbery in Detroit Sept. 9, the attempted robbery of a beer garden Sept. 10, and the kidnap-robbery of a John D. Webster Sept. 7.

Denies Being in Chicago

But he denied being in Chicago Sept. 2, the day of the shooting. He insisted he was in Grand Rapids that day, but gave no reason for being there. He likewise failed to account for the presence in his room of the paper containing the account of the Chicago shooting.

At the request of Lt. Philip Breitzke of the Chicago homicide division, two test bullets fired from the gun found on Anderson were sent by air mail to Chicago police for comparison with bullets taken from the bodies of the slain detectives.

Detroit police said Anderson fits the general description of the Chicago slayer, and that he also fits the description of a man who killed a customer in the holdup of a Detroit tavern Aug. 28. The victim was Harry Stinson, 34, of Detroit. Lt. Hubert Hale of Detroit police said Anderson is on parole from Jackson prison.

Does Not Look Like Him

Mel Ogren, 2952 Belle Plaine av., who witnessed the shooting of the two detectives from across the street, said that a photograph of Anderson, shown him last night by Capt. Michael Ahern of the Rogers Park district, didn't look like the man he saw running away from the shooting scene. "The man I saw was much shorter than Anderson, much stockier, and with a rounder face," said Ogren.

OAK PARK FLYER TELLS OF BEING BEATEN BY JAPS

Thin and nervous after only 19 days as a prisoner of the Japanese, Ensign John M. Petersen, 24, of 629 N. Harvey av., Oak Park, a navy flyer, came home yesterday.

He was met at the airport by his mother, Mrs. Charlotte Petersen, and his fiancee, Miss Patricia Rex, 23, of 7201 Adams st., Forest Park.

Petersen left home in January and was shot down Aug. 10. He said he was kept awake for four days without food or water for questioning and later was beaten with baseball bats until he collapsed. His plans, he said, include taking it easy and just looking things over.

SEA COOK SWINDLED

Raymond Johnson of Fayetteville, N. C., a merchant marine cook, reported to police yesterday that he was defrauded of $200 by two men in a penny matching game that soon involved much larger stakes. He met one of the swindlers in Union station, the other when the game was moved to the sidewalk at Canal and Van Buren sts.

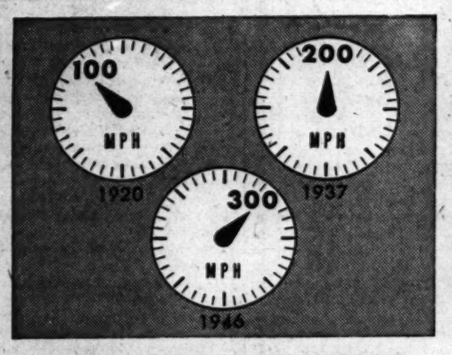
THE ROUTE HAS GROWN. When passengers first flew across the nation, there were 14 stops. Today the Main Line Airway serves 53 cities from coast to coast, linking major centers in the East with the Midwest and the whole Pacific Coast.

25 YEARS AGO THIS MONTH

the nation's first coast-to-coast air route was opened—

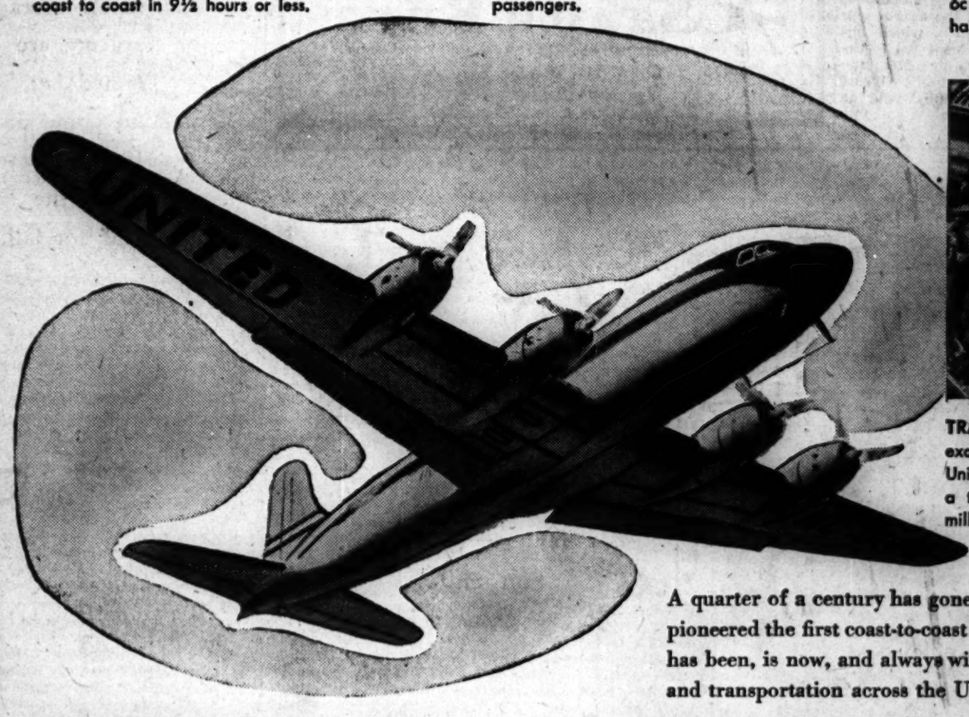
THE MAIN LINE AIRWAY



SPEEDS HAVE INCREASED TREMENDOUSLY. At first, three days were required to transport a letter across the continent. Present United Mainliners span the nation in sixteen hours. The great new 4-engine, 300-mile-an-hour Mainliners now on order will fly from coast to coast in 9½ hours or less.

PLANES ARE HUGE. Pioneer air mail planes on the Main Line Airway carried one pilot and 400 pounds of mail. United Mainliners now carry 5,000 pounds of payload, including 21 passengers. The new 4-engine Mainliners will carry 30,000 pounds, including 52 passengers.

FARES HAVE BEEN RADICALLY REDUCED. To fly from coast to coast in 1927 cost $400. Today, United's new reduced transcontinental fare is only $119.10, including complimentary meals en route. The air mail rate has dropped from 24c a half-ounce to 6c an ounce before the war—express is carried at half the initial tariff.



WHAT ABOUT THE FUTURE? Soon United expects to receive the first of its new fleet of 4-engine, 300 mile-an-hour Mainliners. Just as much of the history of the first 25 years of this nation's aviation progress has been written on the Main Line Airway, United will be a leader in the tremendous development in the still greater progress which will be made in the next 25 years—the Age of Flight.

TRAFFIC FIGURES HAVE SOARED. In 1944, for example, carrying essential war personnel and cargo, United's fleet of 61 Mainliners and Cargoliners flew a total of ½ billion revenue passenger-miles, 19 million mail ton-miles, 4¼ million express ton-miles.

A quarter of a century has gone by since the U. S. Post Office Department pioneered the first coast-to-coast air mail service over the route that always has been, is now, and always will be the straight, strategic route of travel and transportation across the United States.

In the years between, the very history of commercial aviation—constantly improved passenger, mail and express service at faster speeds and lower costs—has been written along this very same route . . . laid out by U. S. Army Engineers and known today as United's Main Line Airway.

This Silver Anniversary of the first coast-to-coast air route is a fitting reminder that commercial aviation has reached maturity and that the Age of Flight is here.

United Air Lines has been presented an Award of Honor by the National Safety Council for having flown more than a billion passenger miles in the past three years without a fatal accident. We are proud of our flight personnel and ground employees who made this record possible.

TELLS HOW NAVY SPIED ON JAPS WITH CHINA'S AID

Daring U.S. Force Worked Behind Enemy Lines

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—A daring United States navy force, guarded by Chinese guerrillas, operated behind Japanese lines in China during the war, regularly supplying weather and other intelligence to the fleet and the army.

The navy tonight drew back the curtains of secrecy on the combined Chinese-American group, known officially as SACO—Sino-American cooperative organization. Its code name was "friendship."

The story of SACO began a few weeks after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. The fleet had to have information on weather from Japanese held Asia and western Pacific areas.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek threw the resources of his bureau of investigation and statistics into the project. Fleet Adm. King and Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, supplied a naval group under Rear Adm. M. E. Miles of Kenwood, Md.

Start by End of 1942

By the end of 1942, Sino-American teams were operating behind Japanese lines. It soon became apparent that this work could be expanded and SACO emerged early in 1943 with Gen. Tai Li as director and Adm. Miles as deputy director.

It spread from the border of Indo-China to the northern reaches of the Gobi desert. Most of the work, however, was concentrated along the China coast, where Japanese sea operations were kept under constant surveillance.

The American force at its peak numbered 3,000, but not a single one was killed. One, a coast watcher, was captured and 10 were wounded. The Chinese in the project at one time totaled 100,000 of whom approximately 10,000 were killed and an equal number wounded.

Deeds Are Made Public

Here are some of the accomplishments of SACO:

Weather observers and other agents equipped with radio supplied information promptly to SACO headquarters where it was analyzed, condensed and relayed to Pacific fleet headquarters, to air, surface, and submarine units at sea, to the Chinese and to army forces in China.

These reports, the navy said, helped in planning "hazardous carrier strikes" despite treacherous weather in the area of Formosa and the Japanese homeland.

Maj. Gen. Chennault's 14th air force was given data on shipping, troop movements, supply dumps, bridges, and other strategic targets. Liberator bombers, using this intelligence, sowed mines in enemy controled waters and harbors as early as October, 1943.

Thousands of tons of shipping went down as a result of mines, paralyzing supply routes and forcing the closing of ports. When Japanese ships tried to avoid the mines by swinging out to sea, United States submarines promptly sent them to the bottom.

In October, 1944, during Gen. MacArthur's invasion of Leyte, SACO supplied the first word that a Japanese carrier task force was approaching for the crucial battle of Leyte gulf.

VETERAN SEA LEADER, REAR ADM. HARDISON, RETURNS TO PACIFIC

Rear Adm. Osborne B. Hardison, chief of naval air primary training since Jan. 30, 1944, was detached from that command yesterday and ordered to report for another tour of duty in the Pacific. His headquarters were in the Glenview naval air station.

Rear Adm. Hardison

From Oct. 8, 1942, until April 7, 1943, including the critical battle of Santa Cruz Islands where 84 planes attacked the carrier Enterprise, Adm. Hardison was commanding officer of the Enterprise.

TRAIN HIJACKED BY REDS, YANKS ASK TOMMY GUNS

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Sept. 11—American soldiers guarding trains traversing the Russian zone en route to Berlin will be armed with tommy guns instead of Garand rifles henceforth if transport officers' recommendations are accepted by the United States high command.

Three nights ago a Russian railway crew of about 10 men stole an American train from Tempelhof switching yards, menacing four Yank guards with rifles and pistols and forcing them to get off a string of 40 box cars while a Russian piloted the switch engine which dragged the rolling stock away.

A Mistake, Red Says

American railway officials protested to the Russian commander, who asserted it must have been a mistake and promised to trace the missing train and return it.

"Four to six soldiers guard all American food and supply trains coming over Russian controled railway lines to Berlin," said an officer. "The GIs carry Garand rifles, but are instructed to shoot only in self-defense and even then only to wound and not kill the attackers. However, tommy guns are better protection for close quarter fighting and we recommended they be substituted for Garands in case our men are jumped by a crowd of Russians.

"It's a pretty ticklish business with the Russians trying to grab all railway rolling stock and equipment they can lay their hands on. Frate cars and locomotives are scarce and we need everything we have ourselves. We've been warned not to permit any incident to occur which might cause international complications."

Tells of Bottlenecks

The informant explained the Berlin bottleneck which threatens to cause freezing and starvation here during the winter because of congested traffic and interminable delays and lost trains in the Russian zone.

"Before they let us cross the Elbe," he said, "the Russians ripped up one track of former double track main lines between Oebisfelde and Berlin on the Hannover line and between Helmstedt, Magdeburg, and Berlin on an alternate line, leaving them single track lines. They sent these rails back to Russia to build lines there.

"Yesterday's council decision to use each one track line as a one way route to Berlin does not solve the traffic jam because the Russians use these one track lines for two way traffic inside their zone and are extremely slow about moving trains. If they would permit us or the Germans to operate any one of these one track lines we could move frate on time."

SCIENTISTS FOIL 'PERFECT CRIME' OF A HUSBAND

PARIS, Sept. 11 (AP)—The Paris newspaper France Soir reported today that a man who tried to plan "the perfect crime" failed because of the alertness of the scientists at the Pasteur institute.

The newspaper said he tired of his wife and planned to kill her when he fell in love with another woman. He wrote the Pasteur Institute, asking for two test tubes of tetanus germs. The scientists answered that they could not send such dangerous potions. The man then had the Pasteur letterhead copied and tried again. This time he received two test tubes.

He poured their contents into his wife's coffee. She merely enjoyed it because the scientists had filled the tubes with sugared water. Police, notified by the scientists, arrived at the man's home in time to gather the vials for evidence.

LONDON, Sept. 11 (AP)—The liner Europa, the world's third largest ship and one time pride of the German passenger fleet, was en route to Southampton tonight to pick up 4,500 United States soldiers and ferry them home.

The 49,746 ton luxury liner, bearing the scars of two bombing attacks while docked in German waters between 1941 and the war's end, left her berth at Bremerhaven, Germany, and moved down the Weser river into the North sea.

Due at Southampton Saturday, the liner probably will sail for the United States a few days later and reach New York between Sept. 22 and 25. United States naval forces headquarters in Europe said Capt. Benjamin Franklin Perry, Jefferson, O., was commanding the Europa.

ARMY JOB DONE, GEN. S. T. LAWTON AWAITS THE 33D

Maj. Gen. Lawton

Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, who again will command the 33d infantry division when it is released from federal service and becomes the Illinois national guard, donned civilian clothes yesterday and prepared to take up his private law practice in his office at 7 S. Dearborn st.

The general, 61, applied for and received his release from the regular army in Washington, D. C., on V-J day. His terminal leave ends Nov. 13.

"The national guard units have certainly proved themselves in this war," Lawton said, "and I will be glad of the chance to head the 33d during the reconstitution period for such outfits. After that period and after the 33d is launched successfully for its peace time duties, I plan to retire and have a younger man take the job."

The 33d is now in the Philippines and is expected to arrive at Wakayama, Japan, on Sept. 25.

Gen. Lawton commanded the 33d from May, 1940, until May, 1942. From January, 1943, until March, 1944, he was in charge of the defense of the locks at Sault Ste. Marie. He then was assigned to the war department dependency board in Washington, D. C.

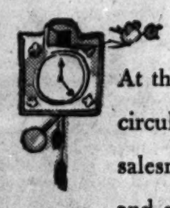
"Better than Cuckoo clocks"



At the turn of the century, the newspaper circulation manager was a high pressure salesman. He sold cuckoo clocks, dishes and encyclopedias that came, incidentally, with newspaper subscriptions. But when Sunday comics sections became common, the circulation manager found that they sold more Sunday papers than pressure or premiums, made Sunday circulations regional rather than local...Twenty years later, advertisers learned that the color comics sections sold other things besides Sunday papers!

The Sunday comics section has been an established institution in American life for forty years . . . is read more regularly by more people than any other form of literature, sacred or profane, classic or contemporary . . . is currently read by three out of four adults and virtually all children, at home, on Sunday, every Sunday! And the Sunday comics require no fixed reading time.

METROPOLITAN GROUP has made the Sunday comics section a national medium...in a newspaper network of forty-three major newspapers, with more than fifteen million total circulation—covers half of the better buying families in the whole market, gives the national advertiser more concentrated coverage in more major markets than any other single medium. One order, one piece of copy and one bill. Learn more about the most magnificent advertising opportunity of our times!

THE TRUTH THAT IS HIDDEN

Congress is undertaking an investigation of Pearl Harbor and the background of events leading to that debacle. The party that was in control of the national administration when the actions were taken which brought on the Japanese attack is still in control of both houses of congress. That party, thru its executive department, already has conducted two so-called investigations of Pearl Harbor.

The report of the Roberts commission was, by design, a whitewash. The army and navy boards whose reports were made public recently uncovered many new facts, but they themselves confessed that they had suppressed some of these. The country is in no mood for another whitewash nor for any further suppression of the truth. It is to be hoped that the Democratic majority in congress recognizes this. Whether it does so will be indicated by the vigor, or lack of it, with which the joint committee goes after facts concerning Pearl Harbor which are still withheld from the public.

One of the first acts of the committee should be to subpena Secretary Hull and require him to divulge the contents of the letter, or letters, which he exchanged with Mr. Roosevelt after Pearl Harbor, on the subject of our diplomatic course preceding the Japanese war. Those letters are known to exist. They have never been made public. They are most significant as disclosing the respective intentions of the late President and his secretary of state.

The joint committee must also, if it proceeds in good faith, remedy the omissions and suppression of facts in the army and navy reports. These reports confessed that findings on two subjects had been suppressed. One was the result of the investigation of the failure to complete the air raid warning system on the island of Oahu on schedule, a failure which undoubtedly contributed materially to the success of the Japanese attack. The officer in charge of this work was Col. Theodore Wyman Jr. The contractor was Hans Wilhelm Rohl, who retained his status as a German alien until very shortly before Pearl Harbor.

This section of the report very obviously was suppressed at the direction of Secretary of War Stimson, who in his comments on the report repeated a previous finding, totally unsupported by the evidence, that any misconduct, neglect, or disloyalty on the part of Rohl or Wyman did not contribute to the Pearl Harbor disaster. This unsupported statement is at variance with some of the facts brought out by a committee of the California legislature which, in an investigation of un-American activities in that state, received some testimony discreditable to both Wyman and Rohl.

The Rohl-Wyman affair is more or less collateral to the main issue before congress and the public. The other evidence that was suppressed strikes directly at the heart of the principal issue, however. It concerns the Japanese reply to Roosevelt's ultimatum, which was in effect that nation's declaration of war against the United States. Altho formally delivered an hour after the attack at Pearl Harbor started, the contents were known to the President and several members of his cabinet the night before Dec. 7, and their failure to act on this information is the blackest part of the record against them.

The naval court of inquiry said of this information in its report: "The details of this information are not discussed or analyzed in these findings, the court having been informed that their disclosure would militate against the successful prosecution of the war." It is to be noted that the veteran naval officers who made up the court did not state of their own opinion that this information, with which they were thoroly familiar, should be suppressed for security reasons. They said only that they had been told that this was so—obviously by higher authority. The war is over. Any reason for suppression that may have existed has vanished. Congress must see that this chapter is thoroly aired.

We have spoken of the findings of the two boards and the Roberts commission as evidence. Actually, of course, they are not. They are at best hearsay testimony or, more accurately, the opinions of judges. The transcript of testimony, the real evidence on which these findings are based, is still kept a close secret. Until the full testimony taken by the boards of inquiry is made public it is impossible to say whether the boards themselves were justified in their findings. It is the duty of congress to see that this testimony is open to public inspection.

The country has had enough hearings in secret. The proceedings and hearings must be open. Any reason for secrecy has vanished with the surrender of Japan. If facts are suppressed or ignored in the congressional investigation, or if they are received in private, the people of this country will be justified in the conclusion that such procedure has only one purpose, that of shielding the guilty.

AUTOMOBILE DEATHS

Gasoline rationing in the war years meant fewer automobiles on the streets; tire conservation led to lowered speeds of operation. Together, these two influences brought about a marked reduction in the number of highway accidents and deaths.

Now the accident curve is rising again, no doubt because the gasoline restrictions have been lifted. Almost every day the papers report deaths resulting from reckless driving, speeding, running the traffic lights, carelessness at grade crossings. Perhaps some of the drivers have lost their skill during the years in which they had little use for their cars. Probably the police have grown lax in enforcement of the traffic regulations.

So far as the drivers are concerned, they should remember that their automobiles are now old and, therefore, none too reliable mechanically. More particularly, they should remember that tires for civilian use are not going to be generally available for some time; accordingly, there is almost as much need for moderation in the use of the accelerator pedal as there ever was.

In addition, the patroling of the streets and highways should be more vigilant. The police can prevent a great many accidents by impressing motorists with the fact that the speeder and the reckless driver are going to be caught and taken to court. The cancellation of a few dozen driving licenses for cause would serve as a warning and thus save many lives.

Of course there is only one sure means of preventing automobile accidents, and that is to build safe arterial highways, elevated or depressed to avoid cross traffic. Now that the war is over, a start can soon be made in this direction. Meanwhile—and that means for a good many years to come—the responsibility lies with motorists and the police.

"THE RAZOR" RESORTS TO THE GUN

If the Nazi leaders at Nuernberg can be tried as war criminals by the United States in association with other powers, Gen. Hideki Tojo, who as prime minister of Japan launched the war with the attack on Pearl Harbor, certainly deserved similar treatment. For the same crimes that are charged to the Nazis were committed by Tojo, with some refinements which they overlooked. Germany's invasions without a declaration of war were never quite so treacherously conceived and executed as the attack on Pearl Harbor, and the outrages which the Nazis condoned did not exceed the enormities of barbarism Japan practiced under Tojo's direction.

If, therefore, the former Japanese war leader succumbs to his self-inflicted bullet wound, he will have saved America trouble.

Tojo was a typical product of the cult of the samurai, a type which it is to be hoped that Gen. MacArthur will find ways to eradicate. He went from the military college and the military staff college to Germany as military attache after the first World war and there perfected the ruthlessness of the Jap militarist thru association with his hard bitten Prussian opposite numbers. As head of the Japanese secret police later and then as chief of staff of the Kwantung army, which engineered the invasion of Manchuria, probably against the sentiment of the Japanese government and people, Tojo logically became the choice as front man for the military fanatics who were waiting their chance to institute a program of conquest. In 1941, when the day arrived, he was their man.

Tojo's only philosophy was expressed in the Japanese phrase, Hakko Ichiu, literally translated as "eight corners under one roof." He defined this as the process of "making the boundless virtues of the emperor prevail thruout the world." Tojo's thoro if plodding mentality so impressed his military colleagues that they nicknamed him "The Razor." But he wasn't quite sharp enough. The American army, navy, and air force took the edge off his grandiose aspirations. Even a bullet in his brain instead of his chest could hardly have slowed down his ambitions any more than they had already been slowed.

LABOR IS NO ASPIRIN FOR THIS HEADACHE

The departure of Mr. Churchill and the Tories and the advent of Mr. Attlee and the Labor party have not altered the role of India as a headache to the British empire. During Mr. Churchill's day it was customary for English liberals to say that the headache was of the migraine type, restricted to the Tory side of the British head. Just vote Labor into power, the saying went, and reconciliation with India will follow at once.

It hasn't worked out that way. Mahomed Ali Jinnah, the head of the Indian Moslem league, finds the proposals of the Labor government hardly more acceptable than those of the Tories. He says the Moslems are "ready and willing" to put an end to any foreign domination. That doesn't sound as if a Socialist solution of the Indian problem is going to find much more favor than a Conservative solution.

The crux of the question still is whether the British are going to pack up and get out and let Indians run their country. Mr. Attlee has shown no greater disposition than Mr. Churchill to do so, and Mr. Churchill at least had the excuse of a war to justify Britain in holding on. The only difference to date in the conduct of the two prime ministers is that Mr. Attlee has been a trifle more tactful. He doesn't keep Gandhi and Nehru locked up. But as for any significant steps toward liberation, they are not apparent to Indians.

The Labor party is in a very peculiar position in regard to India. It won its election in England by letting its great heart beat in public for the working man. It was all in favor of the common people and was going to ameliorate their lot. Where in the world can the ruling British Socialists find more common people than in India, which has about 400 million of them? And where can it find any that need more help and higher standards of living?

Apparently Mr. Attlee's heart goes pitty-pat for the downtrodden if they are British, but he borrows a banker's vascular organ when he contemplates the brown skinned brothers similarly situated. From this distance it looks as if the good old British empire is still in business at the old stand.

Cricket to be revived in this country. But some Britons will continue to insist that we don't play it. —Philadelphia Inquirer.

"WHAT HAS BECOME OF—?"

This is the era of "What has become of—?" All over the world people are thinking of kinsfolk or friends who have vanished into the ominous abyss of war and censorship, and are wondering how, since peace has come, they can find an answer to the question. The iron curtain, as Winston Churchill called it, lifts too slowly.

We will ask such a question, impersonally. What has become of Agnes Newton Keith, author of "Land Below the Wind."? Because of this book, she is or was the best known citizen of British North Borneo. She was last heard from in a Japanese prison camp. Here is an opportunity for some enterprising newspaper reporter on the East Indian beat.

"Land Below the Wind" is the sort of book that results when an American woman marries a British colonial official, settles down in a remote corner of the so-called glamorous orient, and writes her impressions. We suspect that it may be the best of this familiar kind. We picked it up a month or two ago to supplement the news of the Borneo invasion—and forgot the war until we reached the last page, which reproduces Mrs. Keith's message of 1942 on a Japanese army postcard form:

"I am interned in Kuching, Sarawak, Borneo. My health is usual. I am working for food. Please see that Jean is taken care of."

In other years, whenever we wanted to sniff the atmosphere of Borneo, we would read Joseph Conrad's stories, but we didn't learn much because that stylistic mariner seldom got off his ship, except in civilized ports. But now, thanks to Mrs. Keith, we are much better informed. Her book was issued in 1939 and had 20 American printings. Early this year it was reprinted in a pocket edition for the drug store trade.

INHERITANCE

Heat waves danced where the corn bent low,
No whisper of wind passed over;
The westering sun, in a fiery glow,
Drew up the soul of the clover.

The clouds grew tall and black in the east
And spoke with a voice of thunder,
And my father's father was lashed from the feast,
With his great bow snapped asunder.

He fled to the north where the mountains frown
In a land of frozen water,
But his dream of warmth was handed down
From father to son to daughter.

Conversation in a Tavern

Jed's career as a migratory worker ended with the cutback at the button factory. A kinsman said to him, "You're going to stay on here and draw your weekly unemployment pay, aren't you?"

"No," replied Jed. "I'm going back to the mountain country."

"Better stay here," said the cousin. "You can draw $520 by going to the employment office every week, and jobs for inspectors of holes in buttons are going to be scarce. You can get your money each week by just calling for it."

Jed answered: "I figure I'm better off back home. Here I got to report every week and go down to get the money. Back there I can send the wife down to get it for me."

AN EXILE'S SONG

Five thousand miles across the sea,
I sing the ice cream soda
(And those who wish to praise this dish
Please join me at the coda).

The visions of that cool delight,
I think, will drive me frantic;
Sodas invisible render me missible
This side of the Atlantic.

In Naples, Rome, Marseilles, Paree—
Where'er I made abode, a
Frenzied chase at breakneck pace
Produced no ice cream soda.

O when, say, when will my name be
Upon that home-bound quota
For the land of the free, and the brave, (and me)
And the luscious ice cream soda?

E. T. Asks: "How long will a wife continue to receive her monthly check for family allowance after her husband has been reported missing in action? My husband was reported missing eight months ago. I have not had any further word from the government."

The family allowance check will be continued as long as the man is carried as missing on the rolls of the government. This may be for a year, when the secretary of war or the secretary of the navy may declare the man to be officially dead, or he may be carried as missing for a longer period. When the man is declared dead the family allowance will be stopped and his widow will receive accrued pay and allowances, six months' gratuity pay, his insurance, and a pension as long as she remains unmarried.

LOCKJAW PRECAUTIONS

TETANUS [lockjaw] is a disease which few of us have ever seen but a description of its consequences is enough to make us fearful. In spite of the rarity of the disorder, physicians go to great lengths to prevent its occurrence. Since an outbreak in the British army during World War I., prophylactic injections have been administered to all who enter the armed services.

The malady usually occurs subsequent to an injury, often trifling. Contaminated splinters or nails commonly carry the offending organism to the open wound. The culprit may be found in the soil and in garden mold, usually in and about stables and farm yards.

The first symptoms manifest themselves from one to 20 days after the accident. Ordinarily, the shorter the period, the more violent the attack. Initially, the patient complains of restlessness, irritability, headache, or slight fever. Stiffness of the neck ensues and soon difficulty is encountered in chewing or swallowing because of tightness in the jaws. This manifestation may be so marked that the mouth cannot be opened, hence the term "lockjaw."

Severe muscle spasms follow. None of the fibers appears to be exempt including those of the face, extremities, and trunk. Should those regulating breathing be involved, the illness may take a turn for the worse. These contractions come and go and may be started by the slightest movement or irritation. They are painful and impart a feeling as if the body were in a vise. The victim is unable to move or utter a word.

At this stage, every attempt is made to induce relaxation. Sedatives and anesthetics are useful. Artificial resuscitation may be needed should the respiratory system become affected. In the meantime, antitoxin is administered in tremendous doses.

Prevention is the watchword. Children are exposed constantly to mishaps of the type that invites infection. That nature is kind is evidenced by the infrequency of the ailment. But we must also realize that the organisms are not in every back yard or empty lot. However, the penalty for throwing all caution to the winds is too high to pay. Common sense must be used and dirty lacerations, puncture wounds, or powder burns must be cleaned thoroly and disinfected. Antitoxin should then be utilized.

More recently tetanus toxoid has been employed and many physicians advise it in childhood, either alone or in combination with other shots and vaccination. Three injections, three or four weeks apart, will produce immunity for a short interval but at any time in the future, should protection be necessary, a fourth or stimulating dose is given. This is capable of warding off the disease.

SEES SPOTS

Mrs. R. writes: What would cause spots before the eyes? My 18 year old daughter, who is quite nervous, is bothered all the time by this condition.

REPLY

An eye examination will be necessary by a competent ophthalmologist to determine whether abnormalities exist. Should no disorder be disclosed, nervousness can be considered. She may not understand that normally all of us may see spots, under certain conditions. This is the reflection of the blood flowing thru the tiny capillaries in the retina.

DIABETES

T. Y. writes: Is there any test to determine whether a person will develop diabetes?

REPLY

None. But some individuals are classified as potential diabetics because of their reaction to the sugar tolerance test.

IODINE

W. R. writes: Is it advisable to use iodized salt even when the thyroid has been removed?

REPLY

In all probability, a small part of the gland remains and can use the iodine. This is especially true if the individual lives in the goiter belt.

GLANDULAR LAZINESS

R. Y. writes: What are the symptoms of pituitary gland deficiency?

REPLY

To a Youth on His Death

[On a Pacific beachhead]

With sunken eyes I view you, Phaedrus, dead,
My heart regrets its beat. No tears can flow
On holy ground—your pain has made it so—
Now prostituted to the lust of war.
Lie silent now in Death's still, stiff embrace;
Death cannot your beauty mar;
He gives a cold, new sternness to your face.

Before I go I touch your hand for one
Last time to find that mine by pain has been Made colder than your own—
The dying sun I turn to view alone
And over death's demesne
The desecrated palms have sadly bent

How to Cross Water

The longest article in the V-J issue of Brief, the army air forces magazine in the Pacific, carried the title, "So you wanna go home?" It also carried six or seven drawings by its artist, Allen Kleinwaks, to illustrate a few simple plans on how to get there.

The first drawing showed a soldier stretched at ease on a magic carpet made out of an army blanket. He lolled and the carpet flew. The next, our favorite, showed 10 warriors complete with ammunition belts, walking on the water. This was accomplished by strapping a case of Spam to each foot, Spam apparently being a substance that refuses to sink. This is known as the water-wing method and worked so well [in the picture] that one doughty soul was seasick.

The third showed two gentlemen with a rectangular kite strapped across their backs. When the wearer extended his arms above his head in a straight line, this made him into an airplane. A target was painted on the seat of his pants. The take-off was accomplished by a billy goat, who butted the target, thus forcing the gentleman off the cliff into the great blue beyond. The cliff naturally was pointed toward home.

The fourth picture showed three fine fellows seated in tubs labeled "droppable fuel tank capacity 175 gals." They were on the ocean. One, his feet perched pleasantly on the rim, was reading a newspaper. Another was declaiming. Probably Hamlet's soliloquy. The third was fishing.

The next three homeward bound were going under the water attired in deep sea diving suits labeled "Golden Gate in '48" and "California or bust!" One, the smartest, carried a suitcase. Ten gentlemen of midget size next were squeezed into an enormous firecracker labeled "Jet express." A comrade was applying a match to the fuse at the bottom. On their heels came three perched on a palm above a sign, "Travel by air." The palm was bent almost to the ground, tied there by a string. A soldier on the ground had an ax high over his head. He was about to chop the string. They then would be catapulted to some place like the eastern shore of Maryland.

The last homegoing soldier was, by any standards, the most desperate, for he had shrunk himself to miniature size, tacked on a coat of bronze, tied a big "Via air mail" tag to his shoes, and jumped into a row of art objects awaiting mailing. Buddha was on one side of him, a New Guinea chieftain with spear on the other.

Brief's best suggestion could not be reduced to a drawing. It calls for taking all GIs in the Pacific and moving them to Hawaii. This is easily done, for the army bottleneck on transportation is only between Oahu and San Francisco. As soon as every one gets settled, congress declares Hawaii the 49th state in the Union. See? Every one back in the United States again. The sole drawback seems to be that the Honolulu newspapers, which devote most of their space to demanding statehood, then would have nothing to write about.

HE READ NOTHING NEW

Harrisburg, Ill., Sept. 7—When I read the text of President Truman's message to congress in THE TRIBUNE today, I finally concluded that it was just an old Roosevelt idea dressed up by a modern haberdasher.

The plan makes wonderful and ample provisions for all of us except the taxpayers who are ill and sick from economic distempers and in a serious state of malnutrition from industrial vitamin deficiency.

It provides unemployment insurance of $25 a week for those who will not work for less, and suggests 65 cents an hour as a minimum wage. With these working conditions made possible, who would want a job? No one, of course. Then, there would necessarily follow federal employment as it previously existed under the Roosevelt administration.

It suggests the construction of a million or more of federal homes to be paid for by the taxpayers. What boy or girl would want to build a modest little cottage on the back end of Dad's lot or elsewhere with such favorable offerings in view?

It provides for the marked extension of social security, the burden of which must be borne by the taxpayers with the end results of subsidizing the New Deal racket as we already know it.

Lend-lease is to be reconstructed so that the American taxpayers may be sucked bloodless by the beggar countries of Europe. The Johnson act must be repealed as it stands as a barrier against burocratic dissipation of our national wealth and resources.

And finally, the bid to our congressmen for their support in this measure by suggesting a ridiculous increase in their salaries is nothing more than a kiss on the cheek which smells of bribery.

HITLER'S PRAGUE PUPPET

Chicago, Sept. 7—"Prague's Mayor Doomed to Die, Served Hitler." Under this heading you published an article today which gave the reader the impression that the Prague mayor, Dr. Pfitzner, who was hanged after being sentenced, was a Czech collaborationist. In reality, Dr. Pfitzner was a Sudeten German Nazi. No Prague mayor ever coöperated with Germans.

The Czech Prague mayor at a time when Prague was taken by the Germans, Dr. Zenkl, spent all the war in a nazi concentration camp, and his Czech successor, Dr. Klapka, was executed by the Germans. Only after Dr. Klapka's death did the Sudeten archnazi, Dr. Pfitzner, come to power.

B. SOUMAR

LAME EXCUSE

Waukegan, Ill., Aug. 30—Now I have heard everything! Stettinius says that lend-lease books were not kept in dollars as England lacked the man power, paper, and bookkeeping machinery to keep the record in dollars. Now what, I ask you, would have happened if the situation were reversed and we were the recipients of lend-lease from England? Can there be any doubt but that England would have found the paper, man power, and machines to keep accurate records down to the last red cent? Of all the flimsy excuses to load the already overburdened American taxpayer with 42 billions of lend-lease debt, this one takes the cake.

FLOYD A. THOMPSON

UNNEEDED SPECIALISTS

Boca Raton, Fla., Aug. 26—There are a large number of former college students now stationed at this field. It is obvious to any sane person that the present administration is making no attempt to expedite the return of men to civilian life. The crux of the unwarranted delay has been admitted by various government officials to be their fear of aggravating the unemployment problem. We were proud to be in service, and proud to do our part. But we are not interested in any peacetime army. Most of us have a minimum of two years' service. We have completed, or are completing, training in radar. Our services are not, and will not, be needed by the air corps or any branch of the army. We have been trained for one specific job. Our technical training is no longer needed.

The air corps technical training command's numerous schools are costing our taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars every day. These men will never be used against an enemy of the United States. The training they are receiving isn't worth two cents to them as potential civilians. Taxpayers, you should demand that members of the air corps technical training command be returned to civilian life immediately. A continuation of these schools is wasting their time and your dollars. Yes, we could be used for occupational duty, but this would require complete new training.

Our return to civilian life will not shame the Democrats because we won't be in the labor market but will return to school. If we are permitted to return to college to complete our scientific and professional training, it is our sincere belief that we will be making our greatest contribution to post-war America.

ONE TO GO

LE HAVRE, France, Aug. 25—Three down and one to go. No, that is no mistake, that's the truth. The only enemy the GIs have left now is the United States army and its ally, red tape. I mean just that, and any right-minded GI will agree.

I won't say a thing about the point system, except this—did you ever meet a soldier who voted on the point system? That's a big pill the army is giving the public to swallow, that soldiers from all parts of the world had ordained the point system.

U. S. TASK FORCE IN NORWAY SOON TO COME HOME

Aid British in Disarming German Prisoners

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 11—United States task force A, an organization of 4,500 men commanded by Col. Edwin A. Walker, 35, a Texan, is expected to arrive in America before Thanksgiving day. Its final mission, assisting the British in disarming and screening the capitulated German army in Norway, is nearing completion four months after V-E day.

Its final mission took these specialists for the first time to the theater for which they were trained originally in the United States in 1942. They are from two outfits designed for an invasion of Norway which never took place.

Part are from the 1st United States special service force of parachuting ski troops with air borne vehicles dubbed weasels. The weasels are light armored cars with tracks designed for fast travel over snow. Two-thirds of the men are American and a third Canadian.

First Action at Kiska

The first combat experience of this American-Canadian team was in the capture of Kiska. Thence they were shipped to Casablanca. In Italy they fought as night raiders at Naples, Cassino, and Anzio beach. They were called "black devils" by the enemy because their faces were camouflaged. For the crossing of the English channel they assaulted two islands from rubber boats the day before the beach landing.

Also in task force A is the former 99th battalion of the 1st special service force, all Norwegian Americans, which landed in Europe as Rangers in the assault on Cherbourg. Thru France and Germany it was with the 1st army, sometimes as a complement to the 2d armored division and sometimes as a headquarters security group.

In Norway before V-E day it was only one small American group, 20 men of the office of strategic service. Under Maj. William E. Colby, 25, of St. Paul, they parachuted into central Norway last March 25 and were supplied by planes with skis, weasels, weapons, and demolition material.

Check Nazi Reënforcements

They succeeded in their first mission, severing the main north and south railroad to prevent the Germans from sending divisions to the western front.

The main force of Americans arrived in Oslo June 4, about four weeks after the British. In Norway was the German army of 364,000, well armed and supplied, which never had been defeated in the field.

Disarmament is now complete with the exception of clearing marine mine fields, but there are still 106,000 German soldiers in Norway. The main bottleneck in transportation to Germany, army headquarters said, is the inability of American and British occupation zones of the reich to receive them.

Also, there still is work to be done by the Germans—the removing of bomb shelters, clearing of road blocks, and the razing of their camps and depots. Besides, there is the shipping shortage.

The former wehrmacht is in 250 reservations distributed thruout Norway. Of the 364,000 in the army, 34,000 were Austrians, 13,000 Czechs, 13,000 Poles, 2,000 French, and 12 presented claims to American citizenship based upon statements that their fathers were Americans.

Other Nationalities Abound

The problem of disposing of a variety of nationals has been further complicated by the thousands of prisoners of war and forced laborers who were here during the German occupation. Eighty-four thousand Russians, 3,000 French, and 1,800 Yugoslavs, all prisoners of war, have been sent home. Fifteen hundred Czechs have been repatriated and another 7,000, principally Sudetens not acceptable to the Czech government, are awaiting further screening. Another 1,500 Sudetens have been shipped to Germany.

Fourteen thousand five hundred Poles are still here awaiting arrival of a screening mission from Red dominated Poland.

Eleven hundred have been labeled "stateless," because their war time naturalization papers are not recognized by the allies.

Left to the Norwegians is the problem of what to do with 1,500 Norwegian girls who were married to German soldiers during the five years of occupation. Some of the husbands have been shipped to Germany. At present, no transportation is being provided for wives.

WAR CRIMES POST MAY GO TO CAROLINIAN

G. O. P. Judge Pays Visit to Truman

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—President Truman was reported today to have asked Federal Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina to serve on the international tribunal which will try European war criminals.

John J. Parker

Another federal Judge, Orie L. Phillips of Denver, Colo., was said to be among those being considered by Mr. Truman for appointment to a vacancy on the United States Supreme court.

Parker's acceptance of the post of American representative on the international court which begins trying war criminals at Nuernberg, Germany, in November, was regarded as likely. However, he refused all comment after a White House visit today.

Parker, 59, a Republican, is senior judge of the 4th United States Circuit Court of Appeals. He has strong support among his state's leaders for the United States Supreme court, but it appeared likely today that this appointment would go elsewhere.

Back Parker for Post

A few hours before Parker appeared at the White House, Senators Bailey and Hoey, North Carolina Democrats, called on Mr. Truman to back Parker for the Supreme court vacancy resulting from the retirement of Justice Owen J. Roberts, also a Republican.

The two senators said the President did not commit himself, and told them he had not definitely made up his mind as to his choice.

Hoey told reporters Mr. Truman mentioned Phillips, judge of the Tenth Circuit court, as under consideration, the President noting his long service on the bench. A Republican, he became circuit judge in 1929.

Some congressmen have expressed belief the appointment will go to War Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson, a Republican and former circuit judge.

Parker told White House reporters:

"All I want to say is I came to see the President at his request, and that I did not come to see him about a Supreme court appointment. He will announce what I came to see him about at a press conference tomorrow."

Urged as Alternative

Bailey told reporters he and Hoey urged the Supreme court appointment go to Chief Justice Walter P. Stacey of the North Carolina State Supreme court if the President decided to pick a Democrat.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, announcing a Truman press conference for tomorrow morning, told reporters the President "may have some appointments" to announce at that time.

Mr. Truman promised to visit North Carolina early in November, the senators said, and will work out an itinerary to include attendance at the 165th anniversary celebration of the battle of King's mountain at the town of King's Mountain.

TWO YOUNG MEN SEIZED IN THEFT OF INDIANA PLANE

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 11 [Special]—Two Chesterton High school students who were described as "nuts about airplanes" were arrested at their homes this afternoon by state police on charges of stealing an airplane from the Valparaiso, Ind., airport at 3 a. m. today and flying it in the darkness to the South Bend airport 50 mile. away. They are Ronnie Smilley, 15, the pilot, and Richard Fenters, 14.

The boys hid in the hangar until it was locked for the night, then unlocked it from the inside, pushed out a Piper Cub belonging to the Chesterton Aerial club, and took off. Airport Manager Claude Lindberg was awakened by the barking of a watchdog and notified police.

When their gas supply grew low, the boys looked around for a landing spot, saw the South Bend field's lights, and made a good landing. When called to the control tower for questioning because their plane did not carry navigation lights, they walked away and hitch-hiked home.

Smilley had done some flying during the summer at Lake Wawasee, Ind. Lt. Rex Risher of the state police said prosecution of the boys depends on what the Chesterton Aerial club decides to do.

ITALIAN BISHOPS WARN CATHOLICS ON COMMUNISM

Declare Reds' System Opposes Church

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 11 (AP)—The Osservatore Romano today published excerpts from a pastoral letter warning Catholics against joining the Communist party.

Issued by the bishops of the Veneto region in northern Italy, the letter said Catholics who became Communists would be guilty of deserting the Catholic faith and of collaborating in a system opposed to Catholicism.

"Enslavement of Church"

The Vatican newspaper said the letter was read in Veneto churches Sept. 2.

Entitled "Catholics' Duties to Face Present Dangers," the letter asserted separation of church from state would mean that the state would become "atheistic and agnostic," resulting in "enslavement of the church to decisions of law authorities."

Should communism control Italy, it added, there would be "no real guarantee of freedom of religion; there would be a foreseeable unleashing—on short or long terms—of a battle against religion.

"Is Fear Unfounded?"

"We can not know if and to what point this plan enters into the aims of the program of the communist movement in Italy, but is the fear that this can occur in the near future unfounded?"

Saying there were "some Communists in good faith with straightforward intentions," the letter added:

"To these beloved sons . . . we are obliged to declare . . . that the church's condemnations of atheist communism retain their full vigor. Formal adhesion to so-called economic communism implies apostasy of the Catholic faith. Practical adhesion represents grave danger of perversion of faith . . . Besides, such adhesion becomes real illicit collaboration in the triumph of the idea of a system which is opposed to Catholic doctrine."

168 IDLE HOURS IRK SAILORS AT DISCHARGE POINT

Sailors at Great Lakes were complaining yesterday about the week's delay they undergo before they are started thru the 72 hour discharge process at the personnel separation center. All are agreed that the processing is a fine project, but they cannot understand why they should sit idly for an average of 168 hours before it begins.

"We are mustered in at 7:45 a. m.," said one sailor. "Then we sit around with nothing to do until 4:30 p. m. After that we are free until the next morning."

Naval public information representatives said the dischargee crop had grown from a trickle of cases to some 1,400 daily. "The separation center has been pressed by a greater flow of cases than can be handled," said a navy spokesman. "By Oct. 1 we'll turn out 2,800 cases daily. By that time the sailor should be able to start the processing immediately on arrival at Great Lakes."

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Sept. 12—St. Mihiel Offensive

UNDER a roaring barrage of artillery fire, American infantry and tanks lunged against the southern face of the St. Mihiel salient in the darkness and fog of early morning. Shortly after daylight, other Americans, accompanied by a French colonial division, struck the salient's western face. The date was Sept. 12, 1918.

So began the historic St. Mihiel offensive. For the first time, Gen. Pershing's recently constituted 1st American army, which included some French elements, was fighting as a unit under its own commander. The world watched. Would relatively inexperienced Americans be able to make any dent in the 18 miles deep salient between the Meuse and Moselle rivers which the battle wise German army had held for four years?

The answer was not long in coming. The Yanks crashed into the area, cleaned up one German strong point after another, and sent the enemy scurrying from the dense woods and the rugged hills of the salient. In 36 hours the German bulge which had constituted a standing threat to allied operations was flattened.

The tireless Americans immediately began transferring troops to the Meuse-Argonne front for the next big offensive.

The American divisions which took an active part in the St. Mihiel offensive were the 1st, 2d, 5th, 26th, 82d, 89th, 90th, and part of the 4th. In reserve were other parts of the 4th, as well as the 3d, 35th, 78th, 80th, and 91st. In all, these numbered about 550,000 men. The four French divisions, plus auxiliary French troops, totaled perhaps 110,000 men.

Pershing's army took nearly 16,000 prisoners and 460 guns in the St. Mihiel battle and the engagements which grew out of it.

"The American first army under your command," Marshal Foch wired Pershing, "has won a magnificent victory by a maneuver as skilfully prepared as it was valiantly executed."

Then he became the main speaker on the official Hilversum radio, a position which he held until the allies entered Holland. He was arrested on April 8 this year. Blokziji's lawyers addressed the court. The trial was then adjounred for two weeks.

CIO TO SUPPORT FUND DRIVE BUT SETS ITS PRICE

Share of Service, Voice in Policy Demanded

More than 700 business and labor leaders attended a rally of the final and victory drive of the Community and War Fund in the Palmer House last night. The drive starts Oct. 1, the goal $13,404,700.

One by one key spokesmen told the needs of the army and navy relief and morale organizations and of the community, and pledged full coöperation. Then rose W. Brewer Grant, campaign director of the national war relief committee of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. He pledged coöperation, too, but—

He demanded [1] that labor [the CIO] receive adequate service from those agencies getting fund money; [2] a voice in carrying out the policy of those services; [3] an active part in the campaign, and [4] recognition of organized labor for its achievement in the campaign.

Some Listeners Startled

Grant's demands obviously startled some of his listeners, but the meeting continued, with other labor representatives voicing their attitudes.

Thomas J. Murray, co-chairman of the fund coöperation committee of the American Federation of Labor, said the American, Illinois, and Chicago federations were solidly behind the announced purposes of the fund. He mentioned that the Chicago Building Trades council had set aside the week of Oct. 28 during which it will contribute to the fund all overtime pay which the council's members are permitted to earn.

Frank L. Noakes, speaking for the railroad brotherhoods, said briefly that "the brotherhoods are behind the drive 100 per cent and intend to fill their quotas 100 per cent."

Poor Digestion? Headachy? Sour or Upset? Tired-Listless? YES NO

Do you feel headachy and upset due to poorly digested food? To feel cheerful and happy again your food must be digested properly.

Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable.

Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly—often in as little as 30 minutes. And, you're on the road to feeling better.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any drugstore. Only 25¢.

BILL WILL SEEK FACTORIES FOR FARM STATES

Wallace Chief Sponsor; 3 Agencies Back Plan

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—A new administration plan to put factories in the farm country will go to congress soon.

It proposes to give government help to private industry for the creation or expansion of industries in "underdeveloped" areas of the south, great plains states, and elsewhere.

Commerce Secretary Wallace, known as the advocate of "60 million peace time jobs," is a leading sponsor. The plan was developed jointly by the departments of agriculture, commerce, and labor.

Millions Sought at Start

A proposed bill, calling for an initial 5 million dollars appropriation for the three departments, is on the desk of Sen. Bailey [D., N. C.]. He is expected to introduce it shortly.

The measure, tentatively titled "the industrialization of underdeveloped areas act of 1945," is based on these theories:

[1] That this country cannot achieve full peace time employment or prosperity while there exist large areas which are lagging behind in standards of living and purchasing power;

[2] That the reconversion period gives an opportunity to stimulate such areas, because industry wishes to expand and many war veterans want to set up small businesses.

Resources Survey Planned

The sponsors describe the bill as a "supplement to the full employment act." Three million dollars would go to Wallace's department and $1,000,000 each to labor and agriculture, with subsequent funds to be voted as congress sees fit.

The initial funds are intended to start the work of surveying underdeveloped areas as to raw materials, power, labor, and other resources, and to discover needed and suitable types of industry which might be opened in each locality.

The commerce department would recommend loans to the federal lending agencies to help finance the industrial development, whether it is undertaken by community groups or by individual companies, and would give advice on where to get loans.

The three secretaries—Wallace, Labor Secretary Schwellenbach, and Agriculture Secretary Anderson—would work as a committee to recommend legislation which they believe needed to stimulate industrial growth, or to remove handicaps.

FONTAINE TRIO TO JOIN SWING SHOW ON W-G-N

The singing Fontaine Sisters are joining the W-G-N-Mutual Swing's the Thing show at 9:30 tomorrow night. The Fontaines are Bea, Marge, and Jerry. The trio, who have appeared in numerous radio shows and in the moving picture, "In Society," came from their home in New York for this series.

The Fontaines started out as a duo—Bea and Marge. Then their brother Frank joined them. Frank was killed in combat in France in 1944. Sister Jerry took his place. Their most prized possession is a 40 foot cruiser, The Three Sisters, anchored on the New Jersey side of the Hudson river across from their Riverside drive home in Manhattan.

JOBS OFFERED 2,000 WAR VETS BY POSTMASTER

Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen wants to hire 2,000 more discharged service men to carry mail, sort it, and to operate mail trucks, he said yesterday.

"Infantry men should make fine mail carriers," he said. "They could just exchange their packs for mail sacks and go out on routes. But we can use men from any branches of service in the Chicago postoffice and its branches."

Applicants for postoffice jobs, he said, may apply at the civil service office on the 10th floor of the postoffice building.

Awarded $95,364 in Loss of Balloon Car in Blaze

The Goodyear Aircraft corporation was awarded a judgment for $95,364.44 against the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad yesterday by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe for the loss of an observation balloon control car that was destroyed by fire in a railroad car in the Mojave desert, California. The Goodyear company charged in its suit that the railroad failed to deliver the car to the naval air station at Moffett field, Cal. The fire occurred while the car was in transit Nov. 30, 1943.

UTILITY UNION FILES 30 DAY STRIKE NOTICE

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 11 [Special]—Threat of a utility strike such as paralyzed the Saginaw Valley industrial area a few years ago was renewed today when a formal 30 day notice of intent to strike was filed with the state mediation board in behalf of Consumers power company employes by E. W. Sanders, Flint, director of the utility workers council, CIO.

Phillip Weiss, mediation board chairman, said arrangements had been made for a conference between representatives of the union and Consumers' officials next Monday at the board's Detroit office. Weiss, who emphasized that Michigan statutes require a full 30 day waiting period after notice before a utility strike may be called, said he would direct efforts to settle the dispute.

The issue between management and union, according to the notice, Weiss said, is the company's alleged refusal to increase pay rates under a recent WLB ruling permitting raises if they do not force an increase in the price of the product. The union contends the Consumers company, a Commonwealth and Southern subsidiary which serves a large part of southern and central Michigan with electrical power and gas, could pay higher scales without increasing its rates.

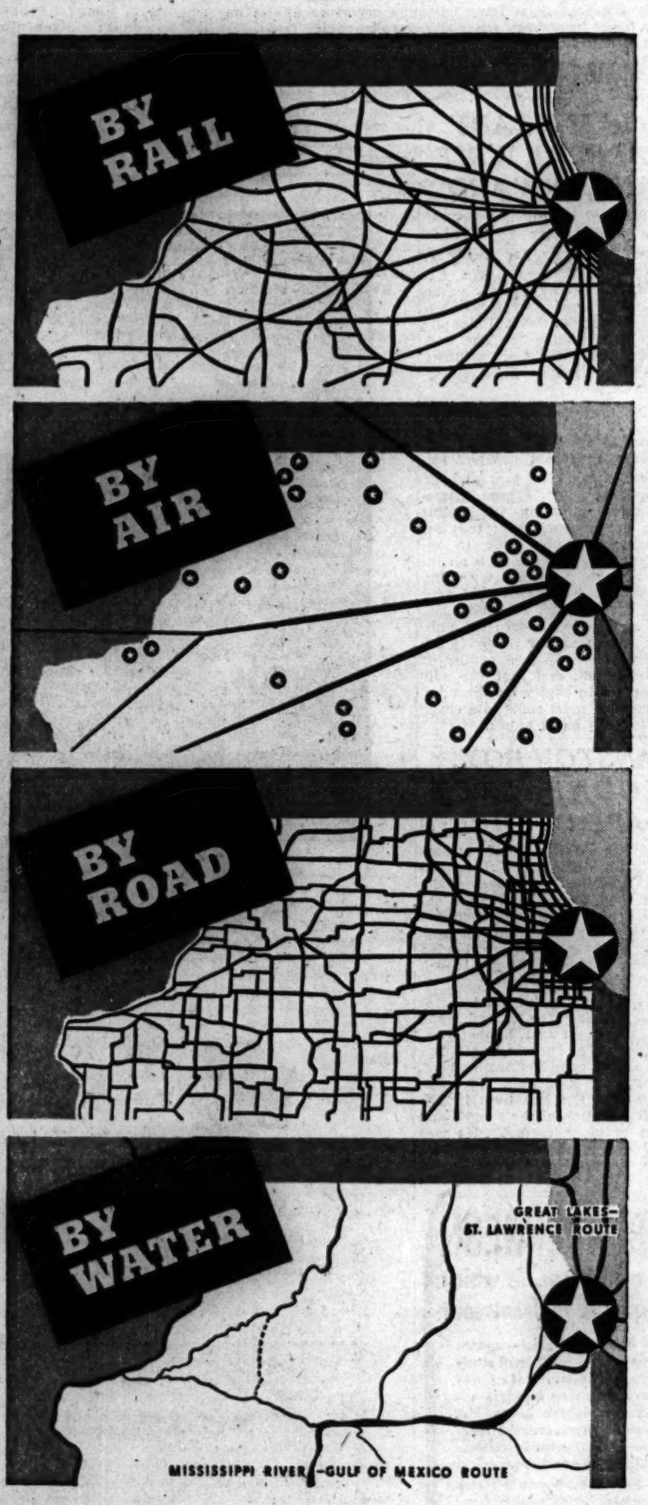
Chicago and Northern Illinois Transportation Facilities— Unsurpassed in all the World



Like spokes of a wheel . . . rail, air, truck and shipping lanes fan out from Chicago and Northern Illinois to all parts of America. To the manufacturer located in this area, these facilities mean quick receipt of raw materials . . . speedy delivery of finished products to every corner of the United States, to markets on the far side of the world. There is a wide choice of available plant sites with ready access to all transportation.

By rail—22 trunk line and 17 belt and terminal railroads serve Chicago and Northern Illinois. 7,726 miles of railroad track converge in the Chicago industrial area alone. This is greater than the main line mileage in 39 of the 48 states. Here shippers find excellent pick-up and delivery service, facilities for loading and unloading cars with greater efficiency than any other rail center in the nation. Here, too, passengers are assured frequent and unexcelled service.

By air—For any operation where the element of speed in transit is essential, Chicago and Northern Illinois is the ideal place in which to locate postwar plants. Nine principal airlines connect this territory with every major city on the North American continent. With airports accessible to nearly every city and town of Northern Illinois, these principal airlines are available to all. Geographical features which have made this area the crossroads of commerce, are now making it a great international airport. Specific plans for air routes from Chicago to the leading markets throughout the world have been approved.

By truck—Over 600 truck and bus lines offering 24-hour-a-day service speed parts, products and people from Chicago and Northern Illinois to 24,000 United States communities. More than 600 miles of new superhighways, now projected, will enable fast carriers to express products to all parts of the territory—and additional highway facilities will speed delivery to every corner of the nation.

By water—10,000 miles of inland waterways serve Chicago and Northern Illinois. Trans-Atlantic vessels can come direct to Lake Michigan ports via the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes. The Illinois deep waterway provides a direct link with the Gulf of Mexico. In 1940, a record 43,500,000 tons of lake and Illinois waterway traffic totaled more than the traffic passing through the Panama Canal.

To industry and business seeking locations, transportation is only one of the many advantages offered by the Chicago and Northern Illinois territory. As an aid to business, agriculture and industry, we have established a department to assemble and distribute factual data concerning this area. You are invited to make use of the services of this department. Communicate with the Territorial Information Department, Marquette Bldg., 140 S. Dearborn St., Chicago 3, Ill.—'phone RANdolph 1617.

PROTEST FORCES SENATE TO OPEN M'KEOUGH QUIZ

Union Calls Him Unfit for Maritime Post

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11—Open hearings on the nomination of Raymond S. McKeough, Chicago, as a member of the maritime commission will open Thursday before a senate commerce subcommittee, Sen. Overton [D., La.], subcommittee chairman, announced today.

Presidential nominations of former members of congress to public offices usually are accepted by the senate without question. But protests against McKeough's appointment on the grounds he has no experience in maritime affairs were understood to have led Chairman Bailey [D., N. C.] of the senate commerce committee to order the hearings.

Senators Robertson [R. Wyo.] and Bilbo [D., Miss.] will serve with Overton on the subcommittee.

Headed PAC in Midwest

McKeough, formerly in the investment securities business in Chicago, served four terms in congress, from 1934 to 1942. In 1942 he ran unsuccessfully against Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] for the senate and shortly afterwards became midwestern administrator of the office of price administrator. Last year he became midwestern director of the CIO political action committee.

McKeough's CIO political activities were the basis of a protest received by Bailey and Brooks from Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois state federation of labor. Olander is a member of the AFL Seafarers' International union.

Seems "Purely Political"

Pointing out that there are sharp differences between the AFL and CIO maritime unions and that McKeough is identified with the CIO wing, Olander telegraphed that "the proposed appointment seems to be purely political regardless of the effect on the merchant marine."

Olander said he had known McKeough for years and believed the former congressman is "entirely devoid" of the experience necessary for a member of the maritime commission. Olander said he was speaking for the officers and members of his union.

Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] said in an interview today Olander's protest "states the case well" and that a thoro investigation of McKeough's qualifications should be made. Robertson said he was gathering information on McKeough's record and would fight the nomination in committee.

RAILS OPPOSE WIDENING OF SANITARY CANAL

Railroad representatives offered opposition to a proposal to widen the Chicago sanitary and ship canal at a hearing yesterday before the army engineers in Washington, D. C.

A war department division engineer had recommended that a plan authorized by congress to provide a 160 foot wide channel, 9 feet deep, from Lockport to and including the Indiana Harbor canal be changed to provide a 225 foot channel.

G. P. Palmer, speaking for the waterway projects committee of the Association of American Railroads, said the proposal was not justified economically. Major Joseph E. Finerty of Gary, Ind., told the board his city was willing to bear certain expenses for bridges and for acquiring necessary land. John Phrommer, representing the Hammond [Ind.] Chamber of Commerce, said the 225 foot channel was desirable.

LOOT OF BURGLARS TOTALS $1,310

Burglars who broke into the Builders Supply and Lumber company, 2228 Madison st., stole $50 and office equipment, clothing, and a revolver, all valued at $1,310, Joseph R. Wellens, 3737 Olde st., the owner, reported to police yesterday.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of cleaning the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

DAY by DAY on the FARM & GAIL COMPTON

Sept. 11, 1945

THE haying season finally has ended. The men first started to mow hay June 20 and have been at it almost continuously since then. Haying was interrupted from time to time by weather, the oat harvest, and a few other jobs, but getting the forage in has been the main task for almost three months.

Last year haying began June 18 and ended Sept. 6, almost as long a period as this year. In 1943 the work started June 22 and was finished about Sept. 5. This is about the time haying takes up every year on most midwestern farms, where a considerable amount of forage is harvested. During the periods when the men waited for the second crop of alfalfa to ripen they cut clover hay or threshed the oats.

Tremendous Hay Crop

The farm has a tremendous crop of hay. There are more than 5,200 bales of clover, alfalfa, and timothy stored in the various barns. There are about 25 tons of chopped hay in one barn. It was cured with the hay drier. There are approximately 25 tons of hay in the hay keeper near the dairy barn and the silos are packed with about 400 tons of hay silage.

The subject of rabbits came up the other day. One of the men suggested that many persons who started raising rabbits as an answer to the meat shortage probably will continue the work. Rabbit breeders usually are glad to spend hours convincing any listener that the rabbit offers farmers and suburbanites a double cash crop for little labor and expense.

Get Little Exercise

Rabbits bred in captivity are considerably different from their wild cousins. They have been especially bred to produce large and meaty carcasses and also excellent fur pelts. Thus breeders cash in not only on the meat but also on the fur of their animals.

The rabbits are housed individually in hutches and get very little exercise. Usually a beginner starts with two does and a buck. Good breeding rabbits cost as much as $15 each. A doe will kindle [give birth] in about 28 days after breeding. Litters run between four and eight as a rule. Commercial feeds in pellet form are available which give the rabbit a balanced diet. Clover, lettuce and cabbage leaves, and clover or alfalfa hay make up supplementary feeds.

Does, as a rule, are excellent mothers and will nurse their young from six to eight weeks. The young rabbits then become accustomed to eating other foods. At this point the rabbits are classed as friers and will weigh between three and four pounds each.

UNION IS READY TO APPEAL WRIT GRANTED WARD'S

An appeal to the Appellate court will be made today by Francis Heisler, attorney for local 20, United Retail, Wholesale, and Department Store Employes' union [CIO], on a temporary injunction issued by Superior Court Judge Joseph A. Graber June 15. The writ restrained the union from printing untruths against Montgomery Ward & Co.

In his decision, Judge Graber agreed that courts may not enjoin libel, but asserted that courts are empowered to enjoin conspiracies.

Heisler, in the brief prepared for the Appellate court, argues that a labor union pursuing its lawful aims is not a conspiracy; that an injunction may not issue to restrain publicity because such an injunction would interfere with the constitutional guaranty of free speech; that a court of equity has no jurisdiction to restrain the publication of a libel, nor power to set itself up as an advance censor of any publication, and that the suit has no place in equity on the principle that one must come to a court of equity with clean hands.

EVANSTON BOY, 16, CONFESSES RAPE OF GIRL, 8

A 16 year old Evanston boy confessed to Lt. William L. Calderwood of the suburb's police last night that he had raped an 8 year old girl on Sept. 6 and had attempted to attack a 10 year old girl on Aug. 24. The prisoner formerly attended Evanston Township High school, but quit his classes there.

The rape occurred in the forest preserves near the Lincolnwood school, Grant st. and Bennett av., Evanston. The previous attempt was in a park near McCormick blvd. and Dodge av., Evanston.

Police said the boy lives in the northwest section of the suburb and had no previous record. He was turned over to juvenile authorities.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

WINTER storage of vegetables in basement sand boxes or in outdoor pits is an important method of food preservation. A common error, however, is starting this storage procedure too early in the fall.

Gardeners who have beets, carrots, radishes, celery, rutabagas, turnips, and other hardy crops in their plots can harvest these vegetables for winter storage, but the harvest should be delayed as long as the vegetables remain in good condition in their growing space. All of the vegetables in the above list will withstand light frosts. They, therefore, need not be harvested until severe weather is forecast. Many gardeners also prefer to protect celery with hilled soil until December. Small plantings of root vegetables also can be mulched with leaves or straw and similarly harvested from the row sometime in the next 60 to 80 days.

Root vegetables will remain in better condition in their natural growing space than in boxes of sand in a basement, and should be left in the ground as long as the weather permits.

WIFE OF INVALID MAJOR IS LOSER IN ALIMONY PLEA

Judge Edwin A. Robson in Superior court yesterday denied temporary alimony to Mrs. Eva K. Davis, 43, of the Southerland hotel, 4859 Drexel blvd., from her husband, Maj. David H. Davis, 46, a veteran of both world wars.

She has pending a bill for separate maintenance charging desertion. The court granted Maj. Davis' attorney, Sol R. Friedman, leave to file a cross complaint for divorce charging cruelty.

Friedman told the court that since his client's release from the army last Nov. 26 he has spent most of his time in veterans' hospitals. He is suffering from jungle fever, malaria, undulant fever, and from an injury suffered early in the war in the China-Burma theater, the attorney said.

After denying Mrs. Davis' appeal for temporary alimony, Judge Robson assigned the case to the court of Judge Peter M. Schwaba for hearing.

OPA Sues Auto Dealer for Overcharge Refund

The office of price administration yesterday filed suit in federal District court to compel Frank Weinman, operator of the Brady Motor Sales, 6323 S. Ashland av., to refund an alleged overcharge to the purchaser of a used car. The action, said to be the first of its kind in the Chicago area, was taken after George A. Roat of 1622 W. 79th st. complained he had been forced to pay $367 over the ceiling price for an automobile.

Close of War Brings Return of Chicagoans

BY JUDITH CASS

A NUMBER of Chicago families are welcoming home members who have been absent during the war years. Here from Honolulu on their first trip in five years are Mr. and Mrs. John S. Coonley Jr., popular former Chicagoans who moved to Honolulu some years ago. They have been having quiet reunions with old friends in the home of Mr. Coonley's sister, Mrs. Thomas I. Underwood, and Mr. Underwood. Mr. Coonley now is in New York on business and some time next month the Coonleys and the Underwoods will go to the Virginia Hot Springs for a long-deferred holiday that was planned before the war.

Mrs. Coonley has received several decorations for her war time services in Honolulu as a colonel in the WARDS [Women's Air Raid Defense] and chief supervisor of radar. The Coonleys' son, William S. Coonley, is serving with the navy in the Pacific. As his parents expect to return to Honolulu early in December they will miss the debut tea of their niece, Miss Nancy Underwood, Dec. 27, in the Casino club. Miss Underwood is a sophomore at Vassar college.

The Lester Armours' daughter, Mrs. Gerald V. Hollins Jr., and her sons, Peter and Danny, have arrived from Santa Barbara, Cal., and are house hunting in Lake Forest while waiting for Lt. Comdr. Hollins to receive a medical discharge from the naval reserve and join them. Lester Armour Jr. and his wife and baby daughter left Monday night for Tucson, Ariz., where young Mr. Armour will enroll in the University of Arizona to study architecture. He recently was released from active duty in the army air forces, in which he served as a captain.

Other Service Notes

The Edward B. Smiths, who have been war time residents of Washington, D. C., will be coming home to stay Saturday. Mr. Smith formerly served as a lieutenant in the naval reserve but became a civilian in the contract termination department a month ago. The Smiths and their three children, Louise, Marie Suzette, and Edward Jr., who have been spending the summer with their grandparents, the Solomon A. Smiths, will stay with the senior Smiths until the house they have rented in Lake Forest is ready for them the first of November.

Young Mrs. Smith's father, Charles S. Dewey, is back in Washington after two months in London, Paris, and Berlin. He went abroad as executive assistant to Winthrop Aldrich, who presided over the recent sessions of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Before settling down to civilian life after he gets out of uniform next week, Sgt. Donald A. K. Brown hopes to take his wife, the former Mary Ryerson, away for a short holiday. Sgt. Brown, who has been overseas for 32 months, arrived in Lake Forest last Thursday.

Just released from the navy, in which he served for three and a half years, is Paul L. Fentress. He was a fire controlman second class on submarine duty and spent one year overseas. Mr. Fentress is with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fentress, in Hubbard Woods for the time being.

Following a leave spent in Chicago with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler, Maj. Henry McIntyre left last night to return to his post at Fort Benning, Ga. Mr. McIntyre will remain here until Tuesday. Also here on leave are Mrs. Wheeler's son and daughter-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Robert T. Wheeler, who will return to Denver Monday.

End Meat Rationing at Once, Grocers' Association Demands

The National Association of Retail Grocers yesterday sent telegrams urging government officials to end meat rationing immediately in order to prevent the loss and spoilage of "millions of pounds" of meat. The action followed a nationwide survey to determine the amount of meat on hand.

The telegrams were signed by Mrs. R. M. Kiefer, secretary-manager of the association, and sent to Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, to Price Administrator Bowles, and to the chairmen of several senate and house committees.

The survey concluded that ration points in the hands of consumers are insufficient to purchase all the meat available. Wires from association secretaries thruout the country indicated that supplies for civilians are ample and that in some areas there is a "real surplus of meat which portends spoilage and loss of millions of pounds."

The survey showed further that heavy poultry supplies in some areas are causing low grade and rough cuts of beef to go begging and that three areas reported meat actually is being dumped, while others said they are threatened with a similar situation. Chicago is one of the sections in which dumping was disclosed.

"Oct. 1 has been indicated in some reports as the date set for the removal of meat rationing, but even that date may be too late to save certain threatened meat supplies," Mrs. Kiefer declared. "Retailers and packers are now refusing meat and poultry in order to avoid spoilage and waste which can be caused by the lack of red points.

"Meat producers, notably the National Live Stock association in Denver, Colo., already have requested real merchandising and sales effort to distribute the utility grade beef from range cattle now coming to market, but there can be no real effort to move these cattle so long as the dealers are limited by consumer rationed budgets."

Charles W. Kaiser, secretary of the Food Retailers of Greater Chicago, said: "A survey in the Chicago area indicates great supplies of meat, but buyers are out of necessary red points. Surplus must be moved now to avoid huge spoilage."

Cheese Rationing Ends

All cheese becomes ration free today under an order issued yesterday by the office of price administration.

Price Administrator Bowles said the action will make possible a small increase in the amount of meat and butter that may be purchased on red points. Technically, cheese stays on the ration list, but now has a zero value. This means that it could be restored to rationing on short notice if conditions should warrant.

Sugar Deadline

The deadline for accepting canning sugar applications at local ration boards will be Sept. 30, James F. Riley, director of the Chicago area OPA, announced yesterday. Applicants who thus far have received less than 7½ pounds a person and who need more sugar for fall canning may apply before the deadline for supplementary rations up to the 7½ pound maximum set for the Chicago area, Riley explained.

Demands for canning sugar soared unexpectedly this year, so that some boards limited issuance to less than the maximum amount per person, he said. He added that he had requested government supply agencies to make sufficient sugar available in retail outlets here for the new canning quota.

New Washing Machine Does the Dishes, Too

BY EDITH WEIGLE

One of the most amazing units of household equipment to appear in these peace days is a washing machine which also takes care of the dirty dinner dishes. By means of interchangeable, separate inner tubs and agitators, one set for each job, the housewife can quickly change the performance from one task to the other.

The heaviest mechanism that has to be lifted weighs only 14 pounds, which is about the weight of a six months old baby. It is not necessary to use a screw driver or to loosen or tighten any bolts or screws. The whole tub and the agitator [upright arm] simply lift out. And this transforming process requires less than a minute and a half.

The Chicago company making this household help has manufactured washing machines for many years. This new one, however, has several improvements. The agitator, for example, has much shorter veins [ridges] and thus is easier on the clothes as they are whirled around it. Then, there's a deep power overflow in the final rinsing action which lasts for four minutes and which forces out all left-over soap curds, floating them off thru holes in the top of the tub.

The two rinsings which this machine gives clothes can both be with cool water, a saving on gas bills. There's no need for hot water for this part of the job, according to experts.

The final step is the damp-drying process, accomplished in about eight minutes by the spinning of the tub. There are no wringer troubles such as broken buttons, wrinkles, and the like. The clothes are removed slightly damp and the hands never touch hot, soapy water.

About eight pounds of clothes can be washed at a time, the task requiring only 30 minutes—less if garments are not badly soiled.

A new device on this machine is a balancer or stabilizer which eliminates vibration. The motor is easily accessible since it does not need to be cushioned by masses of springs.

When these new machines come on the market around the first of the year you can buy simply the washer or the dishwasher. Then later you can add the other inner unit which performs the second job. Or you can buy the combination.

A feature of the dishwasher mechanism is that only a small amount of hot water—from four to six quarts—is needed. If water is fed in fast, it is forced up against the dirty dishes and pots and pans at the rate of 35 miles an hour. If it is fed in slowly, the force is diminished for delicate china and glassware.

The compartmented wire basket, which is placed inside the special dishwashing tub in the machine, is big enough to hold a complete service for six persons. There is no need to rinse the plates beforehand; they are simply scraped lightly.

After the dishes are placed in the basket a detergent is added, the lid is closed, and the dishes are washed by high speed water action and then are rinsed and "fanned" dry.

This new double purpose machine is 36 inches high and two feet wide, so it doesn't take up much space in a kitchen. Its corners are rounded and its appearance is simple and clean cut. It weights 212 pounds. And it's definitely designed for the moderate budget. It's another of those man made answers to a woman's prayer.

This is the second in a series of stories by Edith Weigle, home furnishings editor of The Tribune, on new labor saving equipment for the American woman. Midwest factories being converted from war to peace time production are being visited by Miss Weigle to give readers a first hand report of newest inventions.

Double Duty Household Helper

(Story in adjoining column)

With the inner tub and agitator (for laundering clothes) removed and the dish washing section inserted, this new combination washing machine is ready to perform its second job, that of cleaning the dirty dishes.

Chicago Public School Enrollment Climbs to 354,678 in First Week

Enrollment in the Chicago public schools increased 27,755 to a total of 354,678 at the end of the first full week of school, Supt. Johnson said yesterday. The grade schools climbed from 228,525 on Sept. 4 to 246,307, and the high schools from a revised enrollment of 98,698 on Sept. 4 to 108,371. At the end of September the enrollment is expected to approximate last year's figure of 368,680 for the first month, Johnson said. The Catholic board of education reported enrollment was so heavy that pupils were turned away in both grade and high schools. Johnson has issued 151 work certificates to 151 pupils under 16 years of age since Sept. 1.

Fall Fabrics Are Ready for Dressmakers

BY REA SEEGER

The fall fabric parade is ready to start. All the smartest of new fall colors, strong and vigorous, in checks, stripes, and fancy mixtures, some bold and forthright, others neutral and subtle, are tempting the shoppers who are eager to make their own clothes.

There are 54 inch wide scotch plaids for the first colorful suit or coat or three piece ensemble in both bright and not so bright colorings. These fine woolens are used for children's first fall dresses and skirts and coats as well as for grown up creations and they're infectiously bright and breezy, to match the exhilirating fall weather.

Checks and stripes in strong and unusual color contrasts such as saffron with navy blue, crimson with green, gold with kelly green, and the bright colors over the checks of dark, are ideal for slim tailored spectator sports suits, for college wardrobes, and for office suits as checks and the minuscule patterns are plentiful with a grand color array for selection.

Dress parade woolens, some as soft as angora, are fascinating because of their light weight and luscious colors. Imported fabrics are conspicuously missing, but the American woolens are flawless as well as beautiful. There's a big interest in flannels, thin stuff in a grand variety of colors and creamy white. There are prints in chiffon thin wool, to make smart unusual dresses, and tho they are not inexpensive, every penny spent for this sheer stuff is justified. Velveteens and corduroys are promised within the next two weeks.

Clubwomen to Plan Program Adjusted to Post-War Needs

The rechanneling of war service activities of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs to assist with post-war problems will occupy attention of the 60 members of the federation's board of directors today and tomorrow. Mrs. Theodore S. Chapman of Jerseyville, recently elected state president, will conduct the two-day session of the executive group at federation headquarters, 30 W. Washington st.

The society has taken initial steps in changing its war time club work to meet peace time needs. Its former war service committee is to be known as the committee on rehabilitation. Mrs. Walter Hermsdorf of Evanston heads the rehabilitation group.

One of the important post-war projects of the clubwomen thruout the state will be the canning of additional amounts of fruits and vegetables to assist in the relief program for war torn nations.

SYNOPSIS: It was expected that Erica Pomeroy, whose parents had died and left her a fortune, would marry Huntley Price, whom she had known all her life. Returning from Boston, Erica brings a fiance, Toby Newcomb. Huntley asks Mr. Izenga to help him win back Erica. Mr. Izenga had been in love with Erica's mother and had shared with her grandmother the upbringing of the girl. He dislikes Toby's mocking air and is horrified to learn his last job was as a waiter. They would have been married in Boston but Erica couldn't hurt him and her grandmother like that. She wants to feel Mr. Izenga is on her side when she breaks the news to her grandmother. Mrs. Pomeroy's brother, Ridge Dawson, drops into Mr. Izenga's for cocktails before his sister's birthday dinner. Ridge is charming, unreliable, has had several wives, and is always in debt.

INSTALMENT III.

AN APPEAL

Before Mr. Izenga could rise from the telephone, it rang again. He answered it without waiting for Harrison. A peremptory, cultured, familiar feminine voice said, "Cornelius, I have had a terrible shock. Have you seen Erica?"

"Yes."

"I thought so. And that . . . that man?"

"Yes."

"Cornelius, I must see you alone as soon after dinner as we can manage it. When I give you the signal, meet me in my study."

"Very well."

"I feel shaken! Hurt to the quick. Tonight, I feel every one of my 65 years, my dear."

"Poor girl!" He was glad Mrs. Pomeroy had let him know what age she'd decided to be for this event.

He hung up, sighing deeply. Walking to the window he gazed pensively at the shadows of late afternoon crawling across the lawn.

Cornelius Izenga was the final twig on what had been, years ago, the flourishing tree of a proud Netherlands family. As an ailing child he had been pampered and indulged.

One by one, his sturdy, solvent relatives had died, until at last everything was his. Even after keeping up his house with its luxurious grounds, his fine motor car, and settling with the sublime Harrison, there was an excess.

There were two distinct strains in the Dawson-Pomeroy interrelated clans. One was a driving, forceful, moneymaking type. The other was lazy, charming, and unreliable.

Mr. Ridge Dawson, Mrs. Pomeroy's only brother, was regrettably of the latter school. He was a handsome man with a highly colored face, roving dark eyes, thickly lashed, and curly dark hair. The general effect was a gay and exuberant masculinity. He had been a member of the most important firm of attorneys in the near-by city, for 40 years, and had done well.

He had tried hard to find a congenial wife. In fact, he had tried too hard. He had not even stopped looking while he was trying out each of the three successful contestants for the job. This had annoyed these ladies to the point of alimony. Mr. Dawson found an income with a four way stretch was quite cramping.

"Good afternoon, Ridge." Mr. Izenga's keen eye detected strain under the genial surface. Harrison brought cocktails and Mr. Dawson partook. Mr. Izenga merely sipped to be polite.

"How's the weather out at Westerly, old boy?" Mr. Dawson tried to be casual as he poured his second cocktail from the frosty silver shaker. "Fair and warmer? Festive birthday spirit? Softening of the purse strings? If I had a million I shouldn't hang on to it to the bitter end, make people glad to see me go. I'd like to share it. Make others happy."

"How much?"

"Fifty thousand would help," Ridge Dawson kept an appraising eye on Mr. Izenga's mobile face. "But a hundred would be better. Don't wince like that, Cornelius. That is only chicken feed to Letty. This is the last time I'll ask. Positively. I know I've said that before, but this time I mean it. This really is serious. Don't you suppose she'd rather give it to me now . . . what she'd be leaving me anyway . . . than see me behind the bars as an embezzler?"

Mr. Izenga was not impressed. It was Ridge's custom to throw on as much agony as was necessary to get what he wanted.

"You don't mean that, Ridge. Not an embezzler."

"Hmmm? What? Why yes, I do mean it. I suppose the police would put it crudely like that, if they found me out. But I consider it mere borrowing."

Mr. Izenga didn't believe a word of it. One of Ridge's ex-wives or lady loves was needling him for a new mink coat, no doubt. He always needed money and he always asked for twice what he expected to get.

"But I'm hoping Letty won't let it come to that," Mr. Dawson said lightly. "The dear old girl loathes scandal so, you know."

"But, blast it, that's all the more reason I need it. Now don't be hard, Cornelius. You can always get around her. You must help me. Just put in a word for me."

Ridge was off on his favorite subject. His sister's astounding luck.

Ridge and Letitia had been left equal shares of their father's money. Dawson, senior, was a man who was always making or losing fortunes. He couldn't act in timid, prudent ways. His very taking-off was in keeping. He was pitched over a ravine by a wild spirited horse he would ride despite all entreaties. Luckily it happened at a time when he was temporarily on the up, so his orphaned son and daughter were left quite well off.

Letitia had been snapped up quickly by Enright Dawson Pomeroy, a 37th cousin. He had put her money into his banking business. She had never thought of it again until he died, leaving her five hundred thousand. He left an equal sum to be divided among his three children, Enrigh [Erica's father, now dead], Hester, and Bennet.

Mrs. Pomeroy had been prayerfully implored by friends and family to put her money into a trust fund, an annuity, or some other safe haven for widows.

But an amazing dormant instinct suddenly came to life in her. She began to investigate all manner of wild appearing, harebrained propositions, exactly as her father had once done. Worse, she made lightning decisions and acted upon them. In no time, the bulk of her capital was placed in this or that mad scheme. According to all the copybooks she should have lost every cent.

Instead, almost everything she touched turned to platinum. The money came rolling in and rolling out and in again, leaving an affluent deposit of luxuries. Nobody knew exactly how much she had, but it was known she had passed the two million mark.

Her male relatives were divided between the hope that she would lose it all for the salutary effect on her and the hope that she would not, in case they would inherit. Meanwhile she could tell every one how to run his business and with that record behind her, no man could shut her up.

The bidding.

2 clubs	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: king of diamonds.

The bidding left nothing to be desired. East's refusal to sign off at two clubs showed that he held definite values, tho not enough to justify a jump bid. West held considerably more than his previous bidding had shown and now that his partner had rebid hearts the A-9 became normal trump support which justified his raise to three.

Had South elected to open the queen of spades there would have been no story to tell, but lacking X-ray vision, he naturally led the king of diamonds. This was taken and trumps immediately attacked by declarer. Holding eight of the suit he decided to finesse by leading first to the ace and then back to the jack. This lost to the queen and South, mindful of his partner's discard of the deuce of diamonds at the first trick, shifted to the queen of spades, and three tricks were promptly snatched in that suit. East bewailing his hard luck, moaned, "Partner, if the queen of hearts had been right, or if the ace of spades had been right, or South had tried to cash a diamond trick, I would have made the hand." True enough. But if declarer had been right he could have made the hand notwithstanding.

The only danger in the hand lay in the possibility of South obtaining the lead and shifting to a spade. If South is kept out, no harm could befall declarer. He should have planned therefore to lose his trump trick to North. At the second trick a low trump should be led and when South plays low, the nine should be played from dummy. North will win with the ten, but there is no way to put his partner in to come thru the king of spades. Trumps are then drawn and two losing spades are discarded on dummy's good clubs.

Parley Studies Illinois Youth Conservation

BY IRENE STEYSKAL

Representatives of organizations and agencies sharing the conviction that America's greatest asset is her younger generation met yesterday in the Hotel Sherman to discuss means for youth conservation in Illinois. They were advised by Dr. Howard Y. McClusky of the University of Michigan to back the establishment of an Illinois Youth commission as the first practical step toward putting their program into operation.

The meeting, a Youth Conservation conference sponsored by the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, was conducted by the group's state president, Mrs. Theodore S. Chapman of Jerseyville. It was motivated by the newly established youth conservation committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. One of the principal speakers was Judge Anna M. Kross of the Magistrate's court of New York, who is chairman of the G.F.W.C. committee. She shared the afternoon program with Judge Frank H. Bicek of Cook County Juvenile court and a score of other speakers.

Dr. McClusky, in addressing the evening session, said that while there is "nothing wrong with this country's conscience" toward youth and both volunteer and professional organizations offer many "excellent services" for young people, these are reaching fewer than 25 per.cent of the country's boys and girls. The immediate problem, he said, is to stimulate and coördinate existing services and agencies, and to bring them to bear on the local level after community needs have been determined.

In suggsting the setting up of an Illinois Youth commission of volunteer and professional representatives, Dr. McClusky cited the 2-year-old Michigan commission, which he was instrumental in organizing. In its brief period, he said, the commission has rewritten the state's juvenile code, which now is one of the most advanced in the country. It has established the visiting teacher program, set up county and local committees, increased services for delinquent children, and increased and strengthened clinical services for prevention of delinquency.

Calling for immediate action, Dr. McClusky emphasized that it was the "disgruntled and dissatisfied kids who had nothing to look forward to" after the last war who became the "backbone" of Hitler's power. "The youngsters are the sensitive edge of our culture," he said, "and they take the impact of change." Youth must be given an active part in solving its own problems, he asserted, advocating "finger tip control" from the adults.

This was emphasized by Judge Kross in her talk earlier in the day. "We have overprotected the privileged children and over-serviced the underprivileged," she said, "and should ask ourselves how carefully we have evaluated our services and to what extent we have preempted the field."

Tired Mother Cannot Cope with Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The children are terrible, you say to yourself as wearily you get ready for bed. They haven't been like this always, you go on thinking drearily, other people's children don't seem to be so impossible. What's the matter with them, anyway? "Or," depressing thought, "perhaps the whole trouble is with me. As a mother, I'm just a failure, that's all," you conclude—and crawl into bed feeling utterly futile.

Did it ever occur to you that the reason for all the children's chaotic behavior and your own despair may be a simple one? Namely, that you're completely tired out, chronically overfatigued? Being overtired can make you nervous, bring you way below par, affect your digestion, and sleep. When this is the state of affairs you are almost certain to be unable to manage the children.

Nervousness and fatigue, sometimes resulting from illness or worry or overexertion, change the color of everything. A woman I know, who is recovering from a tragedy in her family, said to me, "I get along quite well if I keep rested. But if I do too much, I'm lost; my poise, my hard won resignation, my surface cheerfulness collapse." That's an example of what I mean.

When you're overtired normal noises seem like unnecessary racket, so you try to quell them, and the children can't understand that. All sorts of little harmless acts make you jump on them.

Ordinarily rather lenient about obedience, you now expect the children to hop to your orders. Mischief and high spirits look like deliberate naughtiness, and you no longer turn off small issues with a laugh.

And tact, that indispensable tool, lies disused and rusty.

Then what happens as a result of all this? The children are bewildered. They don't understand you. Things get confused; there's friction and quarreling and scolding, not because they're "bad" or you're stupid, but because you're all in.

If this is what's wrong with your family, do something about it. Turn over a new leaf. You can.

Thru the Looking Glass

Remember the good old days before the war when you could have perfectly matched accessories? Shoes, hat, gloves, bag, even lipstick and nail polish?

It can . . . it has . . . happened here again. This week one of the shops, at heaven only knows what tireless effort and what pleading with manufacturers and colorists and stylists, has launched a whole line of accessories in a beautiful claret color. What makes beauty news is that the shop has even obtained a lipstick, cheek rouge, and nail polish that harmonize perfectly.

These three are in a shade with the descriptive name of "red grape," and in color they're almost exactly that, tho perhaps not so starkly bluish as you might visualize. The color is quite divorced from the pinks and the light reds that have been so popular, tho, and if you like a softer, somewhat darker shade you'll pounce on this. These have that purple-red vibrancy that is interesting and immensely flattering on some women, especially when the face and finger color accents pick up or harmonize with the right color in the right costume. They can be wonderfully effective as a contrast with black, too, or browns.

If you're ensemble minded, as you should be if you want suavity of makeup as well as of wardrobe, you can buy this in what's known as a "harmony box," with all three items at hand. Or you can buy them singly. You'll love the texture of the lipstick and the cheek rouge, and the luster and the clinging quality of the nail polish. Best of all, if you're not much of a fan for the bright, rather harsh reds, you'll like the lush richness of the color.

Movie of War in Philippines Lacks Reality

"BACK TO BATAAN"

Produced by RKO-Radio, directed by Edward Dmytryk, featuring John Wayne, Anthony Quinn, Beulah Bondi, Fely Franquelli, Richard Loo, Philip Ahn, Ducky Louie, Lawrence Tierney, Leonard Strong, Paul Fix, Abner Biberman, Vladimir Sokoloff, and J. Alex Havier. Presented at the Palace.

No one can deny that truth is sometimes stranger than movies, and during a war that may seem an understatement—certainly the raids on the Jap prison camps in the Philippines had all the drama in the world. Nor can there be any doubt about the bravery and loyalty of the Filipinos who were the core of the guerrilla bands which never stopped fighting and dying for the United States, even tho cut off by the Japanese. But this film, altho based on dramatic deeds we know were facts, is not the convincing document the history should provide.

I hope I'm not callous, but the only time it seemed entirely realistic to me was when a man referred to the domineering school teacher [Beulah Bondi] as "old pickle puss." Press matter refers to "Back to Bataan" as a "thundering epic—told on a flaming canvas of mighty action and thundering thrills," and that's exactly the trouble with it.

No pictorial representation can ever truly show the stay-at-homes the suffering, the weariness, and the plain torture of such warfare—but this seemed much too pat and easy, in my civilian opinion. I don't enjoy seeing suffering—either real or movie variety—but I doubt very much whether the work of the guerrillas was as simple as it is made to seem. I also doubt that a child could wrest control of a heavy army truck from two wary Japs seated on either side of him.

There is no fault to be found with the cast, a capable group led by John Wayne but bogged down with poor lines and direction and smothered with handling that is trite and melodramatic. We know the Japs were inhuman and glib and occasionally stupid; we also know the Filipinos are sincere and honest and sentimental people, but this story is heavy-handed and unconvincing, and not the moving tale it could be.

Perhaps spies and guerrillas did meet in confessionals and have other unusual devices for giving and receiving messages, but certainly experienced agents would not abruptly discontinue a supposedly innocent conversation between a monk and a girl every time a bespectacled Jap walked thru the church gardens, as depicted in the film. Even the dumbest Jap wouldn't be deceived by the behavior of John Quinn and Fely Franquelli in that scene!

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 11 Warners have found another starring picture for Dane Clark—an original by Charles Hoffman titled "A Guy from Milwaukee." Fred de Cordova will direct and Alex Gottlieb will produce it. . . . "The Umpire's Daughter" at Paramount will have that same unbeatable box office combination that brought home the bacon with "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek"—Eddie Bracken, Diana Lynn and Bill Demarest. They'll have Johnny Coy's dancing too, and George Marshall will direct. . . . I hear J. Arthur Rank hopes to buy Bill Walsh's story, "Queen Mary," which is the grand hotel of the high seas, but try and tell that to our boys who traveled in her—"Grand Hotel of Podunk," say they.

That Annual Party of Sonja's

Sonja Henie gives only one party a year, but it's always a dilly. The guests, decorations, and food are certainly just right. This time she had a fish pudding, made in New York and flown out to Hollywood as a piece de resistance. Louis B. Mayer had a portion, then ate roast beef and all the trimmings, then turned to his hostess and said, "Sonja, do you think I'd be piggish if I had another portion of that fish pudding for dessert?" . . . Bob Cummings was introducing his pretty wife to a lot of us who hadn't had the pleasure before. Mary Livingstone wore a gorgeous white gown with gray hand painted figures all over it. Cary Grant was advising Betty Hensel not to make a screen test—her folks, he said, wouldn't like it. He was so convincing, I knew right away he wouldn't like it. Nunnally Johnson and Van Heflin swapped fabulous stories about Ina Claire and Laurette Taylor. I don't know whether you heard that yarn about opening night of "The Glass Menagerie" in Chicago, but when they were taking curtain calls, Julie Haydon knelt down, grabbed Laurette's hand, and kissed it. Later Laurette said, "Don't do that any more, Julie, it's too embarrassing." Julie did it again the second night—ditto the third. But never again. Fourth night Laurette slapped her right before the customers.

Victory B'Gosh—Hollywood Style

Charlie Morrison's victory party at the Mocambo got the men's dinner jackets out of mothballs, and all our stars into new evening gowns. He served barbecued filet mignon [it was out of this world]. Yes, it was the best party ever given at that establishment. Even Errol Flynn and his Nora were billing and cooing on the dance floor. The Roosevelts were well represented by the Jimmys and the Elliotts. Faye is a knockout in her new dark hair and short cut. Marie [The Body] McDonald wore a white satin shepherdess costume that would have gotten first prize if they'd given one for dresses. The guests were all indulging in that old guessing game—how Mrs. Duncan McMartin kept her strapless evening gown up. Cobina Wright Sr. wore out six dancing partners. Emil Coleman, who furnished the music, tells me he goes back to the Waldorf for eight weeks while Phil Ohman takes over for him. Pat Nerney was showing off to Diana Lynn. The following night he proposed marriage [and was accepted] to her best friend, Mona Freeman. Yes, it was quite a night. Hooray for victory.

John Is Big Stuff, He Is

When 20th Century made a test of John Hodiak for "Lifeboat," it had to borrow him from Metro. He was so little known there that only about three people realized he was under contract. Twentieth could have taken over that contract at a bargain price, but how could it foresee what a hit that husky body without clothes would be opposite Tallulah Bankhead? So 20th muffed the deal. Now you all know where Hodiak is sitting. Well, 20th's borrowed him again for a picture. This time his leading lady will be the new find, Nancy Guild [rhymes with "riled"]. But before Metro would allow its star to do the picture it had to see Nancy's test and approve of the little lady. It's a bit involved, but no more so than the shenanigans that go on there 25 times a day.

Captain Looks After His Boys

Most people think that Capt. John Ford, one of our finest directors, already is out of the navy. Well, it ain't true. He's off his crutches, and on Saturday he left for Washington, D. C. He then goes on to Germany, around to India and China, thru the South Pacific. He's really going to see that all his boys get back. Hopes to have them all home by Jan. 1. His boys are those guys who did such jobs as underwater demolition, Commando—they worked under the office of strategic service. They're small groups and could be the forgotten men. But not with Jack Ford on the job. He's going personally to see that they get home. Only then will he be out of the navy and back making pictures.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

School Marm

Little boys in overalls
At recess watch the girls,
Who, in turn, but give a toss
Of bright, disdainful curls.

Little girls in clusters stand
Flaunting grownup airs,
Watching teacher, wond'ring why
Silently she stares.

Teacher seems to look their way
With a dreamy glance;
She is lost in memories
Of summer's dead romance.

The Boss Replies

"Just over 40" asks what will happen to women of her age in this post-war period. If I had my say, I never would accept a clerk under 35.

In our office we just have been thru a siege of summer help, and I never, in a score of years, have experienced so many headaches. These youngsters, working during vacation, strolled in whenever they pleased. They stayed home with no reasonable excuse. They were so lazy they did not merit retention on the payroll, but with a shortage of help, we hopefully tried to "train" them.

The curious part was the effect on the office as a whole. Previously we had been a happy, harmonious group with social activities and interest expressed toward our employes at times of illness, sorrow, or joy in the family. But this past summer we all reached the stage where we didn't care to have any sort of "extra curriculum." [I might add that the lack of modesty in personal appearance, abbreviated clothing, shoes kicked off under the desk, unkempt hair, slouching in chairs, etc., was unbelievable.]

So, I say I much prefer the WCG over 35, and many of my office executive friends feel the same way about it.

A Career in Market Research

"Interviewing is attractive to the career seeker mostly for the same reason that ambitious young women find stenographic jobs desirable at the beginning of a career. Interviewing is an excellent entry into many branches of research and advertising. . . . Dorothy Vavini, assistant supervisor of research for a famous firm, says, 'Investigating in particular is exacting. Come rain or shine the investigator plods on. She must keep her appearance in top form and put sunshine into her personality—even tho she occasionally hates all humanity. . . . There are many compensating factors, however—the chance to get away from routine work, meeting new people, and the splendid opportunity for advancement. It is believed that after the present chaos, market research will go up as fast as an elevator.'"—From "Twenty Careers of Tomorrow," by Darrell and Frances Huff.

Borden, leave here Saturday, they will bid farewell until Christmas to their home in Libertyville. Mrs. Stevenson and the youngsters are sailing from New York Monday for London, where they will join Mr. Stevenson at his new post. He recently was appointed deputy United States representative on the preparatory commission of the allied nations. While they are away Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ives will stay with their young nephew, John Stevenson, in Libertyville. The boys' grandmother, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, and Mr. Carpenter will return the middle of next month from their summer home in Beverly, Mass.

A house in Essex, England, in which they never have lived, will be the home of Squadron Leader and Mrs. Geoffrey de Freitas next spring, when Mrs. de Freitas and her children leave Winnetka to join their husband and father. Squadron Leader de Freitas still is a member of the royal air force, altho he has taken over his duties as parliamentary private secretary to British Prime Minister Attlee. Mr. de Freitas was returned to parliament on the Labor ticket in the recent British elections and serves as a member for Central Nottingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross J. Beatty are not planning a special observance of their 51st wedding anniversary today, but some night within the next few weeks they will celebrate quietly with their sons and daughters-in-law, the junior Ross Beattys and the John T. Beattys, who also were married in September.

On the Calendar

A three day quarterly meeting of the American Institute of Decorators will open this morning in the Ambassador East hotel. A highlight of today's program will be an educational conference at 2 p. m. Speakers will include Alfred P. Shaw of the American Institute of Architects and Wallace Rosenbauer, director of the Kansas City museum. The Illinois chapter of the institute will be host at cocktails before a buffet dinner tonight in the hotel to which all members of the institute and their husbands and wives are invited. About 100 members are expected to attend the conference.

One hundred and fifty wounded veterans at Gardiner General hospital have several hours of fun in store for them late this afternoon, with 75 members of the JANGOS as their hostesses. Mrs. Ralph A. Bard, who helped to found the JANGOS, has contributed a prize for the games to be played, as have Mrs. Thomas S. Hammond, Mrs. Robert E. Wood, Mrs. Bernard F. Rogers, Mrs. Frederick A. Preston, and Mrs. Henry G. Taylor, wife of Rear Adm. Taylor.

The first of several luncheons and meetings planned by the board of directors of the Woman's Symphony Orchestral association before the coming season will be held today in the Westmoreland Country club. Mrs. David T. Adams of Evanston will be hostess. The symphony's concert season will open Oct. 5.

Members of the Kenwood Social Service club will meet for luncheon today in the Woman's Athletic club to discuss plans for their benefit cocktail party Oct. 5 in the Racquet club.

Miss Kay Lyon Becomes Bride This Afternoon

When Charles Nevitt takes Miss Kay Lyon as his bride at 4:30 p. m. today in the Winnetka Congregational church, he will have as his best man his father, Charles P. Nevitt of Oshkosh, Wis. Mrs. Gordon H. Ewen will act as her sister's matron of honor. Mrs. William Morse and the Misses Margaret Sheldon, Marilynn Morse, Joyce Berry, Theonina Morner, and Kirby Coleman will be bridesmaids, and Lt. Ewen will be among the ushers.

Preceding the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Sheldon will entertain the bridal party at a breakfast in the Indian Hill club. A reception in the Winnetka home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lyon, will follow the ceremony.

Friends of Miss Julia Caroline McHenry were surprised to learn this week of her marriage last Saturday to Carlos A. Moscoso, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guillermo H. Moscoso of Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. The announcement of her marriage in Mayaguez is made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland McHenry of Hubbard Woods. The young bride left here recently by Clipper for a visit with her fiancé and his family. Both she and Mr. Moscoso were graduated in June from Louisiana State university. She attended the Roycemore school and studied art at Stephens college.

GRIDIRON HOPES OF 1945 IRISH REST ON FROSH

Loss of Szymanski Is Heavy Blow

BY WILFRID SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 11—Eight of the football players Coach Hugh Devore tentatively named today on Notre Dame's first and second teams are freshmen. This information is as important in assessing the possibilities of the Irish squad as the recent announcement that Frank Szymanski was ineligible and that Gene Ronzani, back field coach, had resigned to return to professional competition with the Chicago Bears.

Hugh Devore

Devore, pro tempore coach and director of athletics, and Notre Dame face a 10 game campaign which obviously is the most critical in Irish athletic history since Knute Rockne laid the foundations of success with his back field shift. Last year Notre Dame won eight games and lost only two to overwhelmingly superior forces representing the army and navy academies. If Devore and his pupils equal that remarkable record, it will be more surprising than when Rockne shifted Bucky O'Connor to full back in 1930 to blast the defenses of a confident Southern California eleven.

The Team Has Possibilities

The over all picture, however, is not as confusing as many Irish partisans apparently believe. It does not stand clearly delineated because of the almost complete change in coaching personnel, but nevertheless this Notre Dame squad conceivably may merit more praise in December than several of its predecessors which had better material.

Nothing daunts Devore, who takes each day in stride, altho he admitted this afternoon that the opening engagement here with Illinois two weeks from Saturday is something to think about. Illinois is deservedly feared and the result of that game—Notre Dame won 13 to 7 last fall—may affect the course of the campaign.

They'll Miss Frank

Szymanski's loss is tremendous for he was a veteran in whom all had confidence, whose offensive play was excellent and whose defense was to have bolstered the Irish line. Devore is concentrating on the development of Bill Walsh, a freshman from Phillipsburg, Pa., who truly is a great prospect altho now under weight because of illness.

Ronzani, who was engaged to teach any tricks of the T, has been replaced by Joe Sheeketski. Joe won varsity monograms at Notre Dame in 1931 and 1932 and five years ago installed the T formation while head coach at Holy Cross. Ken Stilley, line coach; Harry Jacunski, end coach, and Wally Ziemba, coach of the centers, complete the excellent staff of instructors.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

WHEN and if the Cubs decide to place world series tickets [already printed] on sale, the time, place, prices and methods of procedure will be announced in paid display advertisments in Chicago newspapers, as well as on the sports page. . . . In the meantime, all checks, and there are a lot of them, are being returned. . . . The Palmer House will be National league and Cub world series headquarters if it is held in Chicago. . . . In recent talks to baseball gatherings, Commissioner Happy Chandler, without complaining too much, has described some of the publicity given him as "cruel" . . . Most of it has come from a group of eastern columnists who had candidates of their own to succeed the late Commissioner Landis. . . . Honus Wagner, Pittsburgh Pirate patriarch, says he has seen baseball happenings this season which never had occurred before in his long career. . . . He cites as a prime example: Runner on first and the count two balls and two strikes on the hitter. . . . There is another wide pitch and the batter jogs to first as the runner there takes second. . . . There is no squawk from the defending team but the umpire in chief looks at his indicator and hollers to the man who had just batted that the count is only three and two. . . . The latter returns for another swing but the gent who had gone to second remained there, credited with a stolen base. . . .

The best punter in the south—that's the tag Coach Bernie Moore of Louisiana State has attached to his back field star—Gene [Red] Knight. . . . Moore, starting his 11th year at L. S. U., has been football coach of the Tigers longer than any predecessor. . . . He succeeded Col. Biff Jones in 1935. . . . Allie Reynolds is the Cleveland Indians' only bona fide Redskin. . . . Harry Gumbert, one of the Cincinnati Reds' few winning pitchers last season, expects to be with them again in time for spring practice. . . . He is pitching regularly for an army nine at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. . . . Harland Wetz and Jimmy Plyler, University of Texas tackles, weigh a combined 525 pounds. . . . Wetz weighs 285. . . . Lew Flick of the Milwaukee Brewers, who won the American association batting championship, weighs less than 155 pounds. . . . Coon dog owners of the middle west are invited to enter their hounds in the annual fall field trials of the Southern Ohio Dog and Game Protective association on the East Miami river, between New Baltimore and Venice, O., Oct. 7. . . . Hank Wyse, when he was winning almost every time out, set his season quota at from 27 to 30 victories. . . . He revised the estimate when the Cubs failed to get him a run in the game the Giants won, 2 to 0, on Sept. 7, but still expects to go several games above the 20 mark. . . . Pvt. Joe Wilman, one of Chicago's abler bowlers, will leave Fort Lewis, Wash., tomorrow, headed for home and a discharge from the army. . . . Joe was runner-up for the All-Star championship last December and will join the Monarch Beers of the Classic league on his return.

While on the fourth green at Columbus park, which is a dog leg hole, a ball came flying over the tree and rolled to within six inches of the cup. Just for the heck of it, I pushed the ball into the cup. An

BY EDWARD PRELL

The Washington Redskins, who have a habit of kicking around the Chicago Bears in pre-season warmups, did it again last night before 26,000 in Soldiers' field. The easterners broke a 7 to 7 tie late in the fourth quarter for a 14 to 7 victory over a Chicago team which obviously needs more work until it carries the old-time Bear stamp.

Sammy Baugh and Sid Luckman, who were supposed to be the head men of the old-time National Football league rivals, had little of the brilliance that marks their play when the teams start leveling in the regular season.

Akins Makes 49 Yard Run

Frank Akins, a more or less obscure Redskin full back from Washington State, came up with the tie breaking plays. When it seemed the game was rolling along to a 7 to 7 deadlock, Akins broke thru the line and raced 49 yards to the Bears' 15, where Bob Margarita caught him.

Then Wilbur Moore, an old Redskin standby, slashed to the 6 yard line. Here the attack was turned over to Akins. He drove a yard for a first down, hit for 3 to the 2, and on his next try bulled his way over the left side of the Chicago line, with the finish only three and a half minutes away. Joe Aguirre, who had kicked the point following the Redskins' touchdown in the first quarter, added the point and the Bears' desperate efforts to effect a tie failed. They failed so badly that Luckman was tossed for successive losses by a hard charging Washington line on the last two plays.

Luckman Completes Nine Passes

Luckman completed only nine of 24 passes in bearing out his prediction he would be off form from lack of practice. Baugh tried only five, completing one. The Redskins' ground assault was superior to their rivals, 174 yards to 102.

The Bears stopped the Redskins twice in the first quarter, but were in trouble late in the period when Larry Weldon intercepted Luckman's pass on the Chicago 31. Luckman snared a pass from Frank Filchock, but the Bears were holding and the Redskins had a first down 22 yards away. Moore made a leaping catch on the Chicago 5 and on the next play Bob Seymour smacked over with 58 seconds remaining.

Fordham Sparks Scoring Play

The 7 to 0 advantage held up until Gene Ronzani master-minded the plays after the Bears had returned the second half kickoff to their 40 yard line. The big play was Jim Fordham's 15 yard run down the middle which put the ball on Washington's 23. Here Luckman came in and pitched a pass which Tipp Mooney caught on the 10. He ran out of bounds on the 4. Fordham required three plunges to score, finally finding a soft spot in the middle. Pete Gudauskas kicked the point for a 7 to tie which prevailed until Akins started his game winning parade.

Sox Rally in Ninth to Beat Senators, 2-1

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11—The usually innocuous White Sox rose up today in the ninth inning and fed the second place Senators what probably will be recognized eventually as the pennant knockout punch. Quite unexpectedly, the James Dykes' boys, when thought to be properly subdued, 1 to 0, turned loose some ninth inning trickery that caught the would be champions completely flat footed and converted impending defeat into a 2 to 1 victory.

The setback dropped the Senators two games off the pace being maintained by the Detroit Tigers, but the margin is all confined to the losing side, meaning that the Senators, with four more defeats, have lost four games that the Tigers still have on their schedule. For this unhappy situation, at least the part of it that developed today, the Senators can thank, in part, Johnny Dickshot.

Lee Abhors Niggeling

The meeting started as an argument between two venerables — Thornton Lee of our side and the 40 year old Johnny Niggeling. The latter, even tho the Sox caught up with him eventually, made them look like chumps for eight innings, during which they produced only three hits, two of them representing the futile portion of John Dickshot's work for the day. Lee, while pretty good considering that he came back after being knocked out in less than inning last night, couldn't dodge damage beyond the seventh inning. It was at that stage that a triple by Fred Vaughn and old Rick Ferrell's fly scored the run.

The knockout punch in the ninth started to take from when Wally Moses led off with a pass, promptly retiring to let Bill Mueller do the running. The rookie stole second on the next pitch and stayed there while Floyd Baker was tapping to Niggeling. But this was where Niggeling made what proved to be his big mistake. With a throw to second he could have nipped Mueller there before he could return from the start he made for third.

There's Dickshot Again

With one out and Mueller brushing off his clothes as the result of his stumble while getting back to the bag, who comes up again but Dickshot, author of two of the earlier hits. Dickshot knocked one straight back thru the mound and into center for a single, Mueller scoring the tying run. Dickshot didn't quit with that. He stole second. Vaughn tried to pin him down when the throw escaped and Dickshot shook him off, reaching third safely but not without a plunk in the back by the recovered throw. He scored the winning run on a perfect squeeze bunt engineered by Guy Curtright.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 11 (AP)—The second place Cardinals rallied in the last of the ninth for a sixth straight victory today, 6 to 5, at the expense of the New York Giants.

Whitey Kurowski's single to left with the bases loaded broke up the game, giving the Cards a clean sweep of the four game set with the Giants. Marty Marion walked to open the winning ninth. After Johnny Hopp beat out a bunt, Pep Young moved the runners to second and third with a sacrifice. Mel Ott ordered Ace Adams to pass Red Schoendienst, after which Buster Adams fanned. Kurowski's hit then upset the strategy.

Bill Crouch, the fifth Cadinal hurler, was credited with his first victory since his recall from Rochester. Adams, who replaced Sal Maglie in the eighth, was charged with his eighth loss.

BY EDWARD BURNS

The Cubs, who have had unearned run trouble on several occasions this season, used an oddly spurious marker yesterday in the ninth inning to beat the Braves, 5 to 4, in the 1945 Boston-Chicago final. They needed the victory, too, the second place Cardinals remaining only two and a half games behind by beating the New York Giants.

Hank Borowy went all the way for his eighth Cub victory in 10 starts, all 10 of which he has completed. But Hank had much rougher sailing than in his two losses, 2 to 1, to the Braves, and 1 to 0, to the Cardinals.

The victory windup presented the unheard spectacle of a pinch batter going up for Bill Nicholson. The precedent was all the more striking because Bill, who had made only one single in 21 trips after knocking his No. 12 homer on Sept. 6, had given Borowy a 2 to 0 lead in the second inning with his No. 13 after Andy Pafko had singled.

Cavarretta Starts Rally

The victory ninth got under way when Phil Cavarretta knocked his third straight single. Pafko, who previously had hit two productive singles and a productive triple in his first three times at bat, rolled a double play grounder to Dick Culler. When Culler fumbled, Cavaretta was safe at second and Pafko at first.

Don Hendrickson had struck out Nicholson in the seventh but when Nick stepped up to the plate in the ninth, Manager Del Bissonette called in Lefty Bob Logan to replace Hendrickson. Manager Charley Grimm countered by sending up Frank Secory to bat for Nicholson. Logan walked Secory, loading the bases. Bill Schuster went to first to run for Secory and Eddie Sauer batted for Paul Gillespie. Logan's first three pitches to Sauer were wide, then he got one over. On the next pitch Sauer topped one which bounced away from Third Baseman Tommy Nelson for a scratch single, Cavarretta scoring the winning run for the Cubs' 85th victory. [They won the pennant with 89 in 1938.]

Braves Tie It in Seventh

Borowy's troubles were concentrated in two innings, the fifth and seventh. The Braves made 10 hits in all, four each in the two bad sessions. They mde two runs to cut down a 3 to 0 Cub lead in the fifth and tied the score in the seventh at 4 to 4 with two runs on four hits, one a homer by Phil Masi.

Tho their ninth inning attack was somewhat anti-climactic, the Cubs emerged with a fine batch of personal statistics. For instance, Pafko's triple was his 12th of the year and two runs batted in lifted his

ALL OF VARSITY BERTHS AT N. U. UP FOR GRABS

Newcomers Pushing Few Veterans on Squad

Coach Lynn Waldorf put Northwestern's young football players thru another intensive scrimmage yesterday in an effort to determine which will win starting berths for the season opener with Iowa State college a week from Saturday. A heated fight is being waged for every job and only two or three positions are anywhere near being settled.

With the exception of the ends where the veteran Max Morris and a sophomore, Ken Wiltgen, have the call, the line positions are the scene of some spirited battles. Herman Stegen, only letter man guard, is being strongly pushed by a pair of freshmen, Francis De Pauw of Lake Forest and Archie Eddy of Rock Island.

PURDUE TRIES TWO UNITS

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 11 [Special]—Possible Purdue back field combinations began to take form this afternoon as Coach Cecil Isbell ordered a lengthy drill on pass defense in preparation for the season's opener with Marquette here a week from Saturday.

WOLVERINES EASE DRILLS

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 11 [Special]—The hard work which has marked Michigan football practice for nearly three weeks will be eased tomorrow when Coach H. O. [Fritz] Crisler will give the Wolverines opportunity to build energy for Saturday's opening game with Great Lakes here.

SHIFT ILLINI FULL BACK

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 11 [Special]—George Sibbons, 205 pound Westville sophomore, was moved from full back to center today on the University of Illinois football squad. Sibbons is a willing, hard tackler, and the switch will make little change in his defensive assignment as he still is a line backer.

GUARDS JOIN BADGERS

New Men Hold Key to Irish Title Chances

ent—is common in intercollegiate football this fall, but there are two more important reasons why this Irish squad will not be as good as that last season: Notre Dame lacks team speed and there is no breakaway runner like Bob Kelly, who last season was constant threat to all enemy defenses until he was injured in the Navy game in Baltimore. Kelly was a great player. He inspired confidence because he usually produced required yardage.

Kelly played right half. Elmer Angsman, regular full back last year, has been moved to this position. At the close of 1944 Marty Wendell, from St. George High school, Chicago, had taken over the full back duties. He is one of the best line backers in collegiate football and this signaled Angsman's shift.

Quarter back, the most important position in the T formation, is capably manned by Frank Dancewicz, two time monogram winner. He is a great leader, fine passer, excellent defensive player and is the team's No. 1 kicker.

Bill Leonard, freshman from Youngstown, O., is at right end, the third position where varsity players have had no previous experience. The others are center and left half back. Leonard is a rugged defensive man, offensively, Mike Bush, a sophomore from Davenport, Ia., is a better pass receiver.

Veterans Play Guards

NAME EIGHT FOR $3,500 OAK PARK HANDICAP TODAY

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Eight thorobred sprinters which raced with varied success at Washington Park this summer, have been nominated for today's Oak Park handicap at Hawthorne, a $3,500 allowance event for older campaigners at six and one half furlongs.

Top weighted are J. H. Miles' Rush Act and Mrs. E. E. D. Shaffer's Porpoise, the former with three straight triumphs to his credit and the latter victor in two of seven outings this year. Each will carry 119 pounds, two more than the Murlogg farm's Bergolater and A. and R. Craig's My Tet Rambler.

Bergolator Is Pretty Good

Bergolator, owned by Mrs. Robert J. Murphy and Miss Susan Kellog of Evansville, Ind., is a stablemate of the American Derby winner, Fighting Step, and is quite a horse in his own right.

The $3,000 Hi-Jack purse, feature race on yesterday's program, went to the Shady Brook farm's Duquesne, a three length winner over Mrs. L. B. Muschal's Cherry Trifle in a field of seven older horses at six and one-half furlongs.

Double Returns $85.60

Duquesne, a 12 to 1 shot, provided Steve Brooks with his fifth triumph of the meeting and rewarded his backers in the crowd of 13,862 with the formidable return of $27.40, $11.60, and $5.80 across the board. Cherry Trifle, piloted by Billy Nichols, paid $9.20 and $5.40. Silver Star Stock farm's Volcano, guided by Willie Hawksworth, took the show at $4.20.

Mrs. H. J. Damm's Halcyette [$8.-80], ridden by Steve Brooks, and J. B. Rigney's Our Memory [$11.20], with N. L. Pierson up, won the first two races and provided an $85.60 daily double.

The mutuel handle was $999,626.

THREE TEAMS SWEEP CLASSIC LEAGUE SERIES

Classic league bowlers' second Tuesday division meeting was held last night at Faetz's recreation and at Pla-Mor Lanes.

At Pla-Mor, John Petri's Mobilgas and Doc Hattstrom's Jiffy-Ball-Kleens swept their respective series against Sunkist Pies and White Shirt Colognes.

At Faetz's, Jerry Skovie's Prima Beers swept their series against Congress with a 3,110 total.

HOUSE EXPERTS TO START WORK ON CUT IN TAX

Need Quick Action to Revise Forms

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—Tax reductions on 1946 incomes—individual and corporate—were virtually assured today. The tax initiating house ways and means committee voted unanimously to proceed quickly with writing the first post-war tax bill.

Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] told newspaper men, "I hope we can give some relief to individuals and corporations both, but I can't say in detail just what we will do."

The tax revisions must be on the statute books by Nov. 1, he said, if they are to affect 1946 individual incomes. He explained that the early date is necessary to allow preparation of new tax forms by the treasury.

Push Elliott Inquiry

Before proceeding with the tax revisions, however, the committee decided to take another look tomorrow into the financial affairs of Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the late President.

Doughton said he expected the tax study to begin within two weeks.

The chairman indicated his support of President Truman's admonition to congress in his Sept. 6 message, which recommended early tax changes, that "we must reconcile ourselves to the fact that room for tax reduction at this time is limited."

"I want as much relief as we can give under sound economic considerations," Doughton said.

However, a drive is underway to slice deeply into war time pocketbook burdens. There appeared virtual unanimity among tax leaders for repeal or sharp trimming of the 95 per cent excess profits tax.

Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.], senior ways and means Republican, has proposed a cut of 20 per cent in all individual 1946 tax liabilities.

May Free 10 Million of Tax

Knutson's proposal is certain to encounter rough opposition, its opponents arguing that it would be unfair to give a $100 tax man relief of $20, while a $50,000 tax would be reduced by $10,000.

A bloc appeared to be forming behind a proposal to wipe out the 3 per cent normal tax. Elimination of this tax would remove about 10 million lower income persons from the tax rolls.

The committee did not indicate what action it might take in the Elliott Roosevelt inquiry. It already has heard behind closed doors a statement by John Hartford, president of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea company, who was reported to have loaned Roosevelt $200,000, got back only $4,000, and listed the remaining $196,000 as a bad debt deduction on his 1942 income tax return.

It probably will hear tomorrow Roosevelt's own statement, on file with the committee, giving his account of the Hartford transaction. Roosevelt asked the committee to make public the full report, but the committee replied that law forbids publication of such matter unless a formal report is submitted to congress.

SPEED SURPLUS OF ELECTRONICS ITEMS TO PUBLIC

Speeding the flow into sales channels of new and used electronics and radio communications equipment originally produced for military use is expected by disposal agents in the industry, William J. Halligan, president of Hallicrafters company, Chicago, said yesterday. Hallicrafters is a general agent for the Reconstruction Finance corporation, to dispose of part of the estimated 3 to 5 billion dollars of surplus electronics material.

Approximately 100,000 square feet of floor space have been set aside in the company's Clearing plant for the disposal program.

Civilian reaction to the disposal program so far has been negligible because much of the more spectacular war time equipment, such as massive radar sets, has not reached the market. The advancements represented in the equipment should prove attractive for peace time uses, he said.

Strikes Slash Production of Chicago Firms

Ten Chicago employers who have sought to manufacture products for civilians since the end of the war have met with losses of production thru strikes of 2,348 of their employes, Capt. George Barnes, head of the police labor detail, said yesterday. The strikes have affected 11 plants.

Three hundred fifty of 600 employes of the Harlich Manufacturing company, 1417 Jackson blvd., paper specialties maker, were on strike again yesterday because of accumulated grievances. The strike started Monday and was believed settled that night, but officials of the Bindery Help and Specialty Workers' union, local 182 [AFL], said there had been a misunderstanding over the settlement.

60 Strike for Closed Shop

Sixty employes of the Samuel Bingham Sons' Manufacturing company, 636 Sherman st., went out on strike to obtain a closed shop. The company produces rubber printing rollers. Most of the strikers are members of local 120, United Rubber Workers' union [CIO].

In protest against slowness of the war labor board in returning a decision on their contract demands with Clawson & Bals, Inc., in two of its plants at 2508 Michigan av. and 4701 Lake st., 130 employes who struck Monday remained away. The bargaining union for the employes is local 3278, United Steelworkers [CIO].

A strike of 75 to 85 employes of the Briskin Manufacturing company, 4243 Ogden av., continued. The strike was called by local 286 of the United Automobile Workers' union [AFL] in a dispute over the terms of the union's contract.

Five hundred employes of Wilson-Jones company, 3300 Franklin blvd., many of them members of local 148, United Paper Workers' union [CIO], who struck Sept. 7 to obtain wage increases, remained on strike and tied up the company's production of loose leaf ledgers and forms.

On the same day 313 members of local 284 of the United Packinghouse Workers' union [CIO] struck and paralyzed the production of meat packing machinery and equipment at the Globe company, 4000 Princeton av. The strike was called by the union in a dispute over incentive pay and continued yesterday.

Pickets Keep 100 Out

A mass picket line established Sept. 7 by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' union [CIO] at the Cutter-Crosette company, 529 S. Franklin st., men's tie manufacturer, continued to prevent 100 non-union workers from entering.

Altho Cribben & Sexton company, 700 N. Sacramento blvd., has remained open for the return of 500 striking employes who left their jobs July 27, none has returned, and the company's manufacture of gas appliances has been interrupted.

A strike which was started Sept. 5 at the Bucyrus-Monighan company, 931 N. Kilpatrick av., is still in effect. It was begun by 160 employes in protest against a two weeks' disciplinary layoff given the president of local 2942, United Steelworkers [CIO].

The General Chemical company, 12260 Carondolet av., also remained tied up by a strike of 160 employes, most of them members of the International Chemical Workers [AFL].

GRAINS TURN UP DESPITE LARGE CROP ESTIMATE

Grain futures advanced fractions to more than 1 cent a bushel yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade and closed near the top despite the department of agriculture report late Monday indicating a record aggregate yield of leading grains.

Wheat rose ¾ to 1 cent, corn ¾ to ⅞, and oats ⅞ to 1⅛ on the late upsurge. Rye, after dropping about 1 cent, rallied to close ⅞ to 1⅛ higher. Barley finished ¼ higher to ¼ lower.

Reports that the Commodity Credit corporation had raised its buying price for wheat at Atlantic coast ports had a substantial market influence. Commission houses with eastern connections were aggressive buyers of wheat futures, mainly to remove hedges against sales of grain to the government.

Egg Futures Rise 2 Cent Limit; October Up to 36¼

October and November egg futures prices on the Chicago Mercantile exchange closed the permissible limit of 2 cents a dozen higher yesterday, recovering from Monday's decline to new seasonal lows. The October future closed at 36.25 a dozen and November at 36 cents. The December contract rose 1.95 cents to 34.75. The higher prices apparently reflected reports the army and navy will need 2 million additional cases of shell eggs between now and the end of the year.

Nation's Strike Idle About 100,000

Seek $2 a Day Hike

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 11 (AP)—The wage policy committee of the CIO United Steelworkers today announced plans to seek a wage increase of $2 a day for its 800,000 active union members. The committee took the step in a resolution authorizing the union's officers to seek the increase thru collective bargaining conferences. It said a "steadily rising cost of living" has "seriously undermined" the living standards of steel workers. Basic minimum pay in the industry is 78 cents an hour.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

A back to work movement among 12,000 Westinghouse Electric corporation salaried workers in the east fizzled yesterday and the country-wide total of persons made idle by labor disputes leveled off at about 100,000.

Members of the Federation of Westinghouse Independent Salaried Unions struck Monday morning for a bonus or incentive wage program. Monday night the walkout was called off at the request of the war labor board, but was renewed again yesterday morning and President Truman was asked to intervene. Plants in six eastern states were affected.

Ask WLB Commitment

The federation said it sought a definite commitment from the WLB on the strikers' wage case. "The employes have little or no faith in the WLB because of its handling of this case, because it is on the way out, and because it has given different stories to some affiliates," said Leo F. Bollens, federation president.

The bonus incentive wage proposal had been turned down by a WLB hearing officer. The action led to a strike vote taken under supervision of the national labor relations board.

Elsewhere there were few strike developments, with more than 50 continuing tieups, many of weeks' duration.

Ford Sends 7,500 Home

New layoffs of 7,500 by Ford Motor company because of parts shortages resulting from the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company strike and a new strike boosted the Detroit area's idle to more than 26,000. The new strike was at the Murray Corporation of America's Ecorse plant, where 1,100 employes joined 2,000 who had walked out earlier at the Russell plant. Other strikes included 4,500 at Kelsey-Hayes, 6,500 at Hudson Motor Car company, and 4,500 in various other disputes.

At Windsor, Ont., leaders of the CIO United Automobile Workers awaited a report from the government appointed board of conciliation in its dispute with Ford Motor Company of Canada. A strike of 11,000 Ford workers, which has been approved by the UAW-CIO executive board, hinged on the report, which was expected momentarily.

EASING OF HOME REPAIR CREDIT CURB EXPECTED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—The government next week is expected to ease credit restrictions for the purchase of building and home repair materials.

It was learned today that the federal reserve board will meet in a few days to consider proposed relaxation of regulation "W," restricting consumer credit. Elimination of the credit control over such items as roofing and new household plumbing and electrical wiring supplies for certain purposes is expected to foster repairs and new construction.

Some controls may be removed from department store and similar charge accounts. Credit controls would be continued, it was reported, on so-called "hard" goods such as washing machines. The present rule is that such bills must be paid by the 10th of the second month after purchase.

Stocks Run Up in Heavy Final Hour Trading

New York, Sept. 11 (AP)—Late bidding for steels, motors, rails, and specialties rallied the stock market today after early irregularity in virtually all departments. Demand in the final hour lifted favorites fractions to more than 2 points, with the over-all average attaining another peak for more than eight years. Transfers of 1,120,000 shares, 460,000 in the last hour, compared with 1,100,000 Monday.

Revival of the metal group was encouraging and was attributed partly to improving peace time prospects for steel makers. Automotive issues achieved popularity despite labor troubles.

Pressure of idle investment cash again was a dominating factor. Inflation prospects, earnings, dividends, and hopes for tax cuts also were helpful. The possibility of a technical reaction, however, remained a brake on buying.

CHICAGO STOCKS MIXED

Prices closed mixed yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in a turnover of 43,000 shares. Among issues rising a point or more to reach new 1945 highs were General Motors, Borg-Warner, Montgomery Ward, and Paramount Pictures. More active stocks included Chicago corporation common, down ⅝, Libby-McNeill-Libby, down ⅛; Domestic Industries, up ⅛, and Commonwealth Edison and Miller-Hart, unchanged.

BONDS SLUMP, RECOVER

New York, Sept. 11 (AP)—The bond market slumped, then recovered today on a late buying flurry in rails which lifted favorites fractions to about 1 point. United States government and foreign dollar loans were quiet. Trading expanded to $5,420,000 face value from $3,760,000 yesterday.

CAR LINE GROUPS MAY AGREE SOON ON SALE TO CITY

Investor groups in the Chicago Surface Lines have been conferring and there are prospects for an early agreement among them on the proposed sale of the system to the Chicago Metropolitan Transit authority, the authority's governing board was told yesterday. Atty. William J. Friedman, representing first mortgage bondholders of the Chicago City Railways, a surface lines unit, said in a letter to the board that such agreement was near.

It would be contingent, however, on permitting the lines to retain all earnings up to the time a sale is made and on the city of Chicago waiving its claim to a compensation fund of 5¼ million dollars held in escrow by the street car company. This was recommended recently in a report by the securities and exchange commission on the fairness of the authority's offer for the lines. The board decided to hold a meeting next Wednesday afternoon with the investing groups.

WPB CONTROLS OVER WOOD PULP WILL END SEPT. 30

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—Control over the delivery and use of wood pulp will be removed Sept. 30, the WPB announced today. It said estimates indicated wood pulp can be expected to match requirements in the fourth quarter.

Revocation of the control order ended 3½ years of war time wood pulp allocation, and WPB said an early decision may be expected on the question of continuing wood pulp subsidies after Sept. 30. The pulp allocation office will be discontinued Oct. 1, its remaining functions being taken over by the forest products bureau.

PATMAN BLASTS OPA CONVERSION PRICES AS FARCE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—Reconversion price schedules announced recently by OPA were criticized today by Chairman Patman [D., Tex.] of the house small business committee. In a letter to Price Administrator Bowles, he asserted the prices were "a farce and an injustice to small business."

"Our small manufacturers do not deserve the sort of treatment they are being afforded under your so-called reconversion pricing orders," he said. "We need their output and we need the jobs they can supply if permitted to operate at a profit."

Certain-teed Clears Back Dividends on Preferred

Directors of Certain-teed Products corporation yesterday cleared the dividend arrearage on the unexchanged 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock with the declaration of $49.50 a share, payable Oct. 1. In July a dividend of $1.50 a share for the period ended Sept. 30 was declared, also payable Oct. 1.

125 MILLIONS OF SO. PACIFIC BONDS OFFERED

Consumers Power Sells Big Issue

Southern Pacific railroad yesterday awarded 125 million dollars of first mortgage bonds to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and associates on the basis of their "basket" bid—the only one submitted for all securities offered for sale at competitive bidding. The bonds were reoffered immediately.

The group's winning bid was 98 per cent each for the 25 million dollars of series A bonds due in 1961 with a 2¼ per cent interest coupon, 50 million of series B due in 1986 with a 3¾ per cent coupon, and 50 million of series C due in 1996 with a 3¾ per cent rate.

Bidding for the issues separately, Kohn, Loeb offered 98 for the series A as 3s, and 98 each for the B and C series as 4s. Halsey, Stuart & Co. bid 99.41 for the series A with a 3 per cent rate, but did not make an offer for the other two series.

Reoffered at 99½ to Par

The syndicate reoffered the bonds at 99½ for series A, par for series B, and 99¾ for series C.

A Halsey, Stuart & Co. banking group today will offer $113,825,000 of Consumers Power company first mortgage 2¾ per cent bonds due in 1975 at 102.37 and interest since Sept. 1. The issue, one of the largest by a utility this year, was awarded in competitive bidding Monday.

Proceeds, with 15 million of bank loans and other funds, will be used to retire 191,924 shares of $5 preferred stock and all present funded debt—3¼ and 3½ per cent bonds. Including redemption premiums the financing requires $140,803,720.

Offering of 50,000 shares of $2 preferred and 22,560 shares of common stock of Crown Cork and Seal company to finance new plants will be made today by an underwriting group led by Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis. The preferred, priced at $47.50 a share, is part of a 275,000 share issue, of which 225,000 shares are being offered in exchange for old preferred until Sept. 24. The common, priced at $44, is part of 86,270 shares on which present common holders have waived subscription rights.

RFC Offers New Industry Lending Plan

A seven point program of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to aid banks and industry thruout the country in financing reconversion and post-war expansion was announced yesterday by M. O. Hoel, acting manager of the Chicago loan agency of RFC. He said RFC wished to emphasize it was not in competition with banks.

"The program is predicated on bank coöperation, but in cases in which bank loans cannot be arranged, for one reason or another, RFC loan agencies will endeavor to work out means whereby deserving business enterprises can be supplied the needed credit by RFC directly," said Hoel.

Phases of Program Outlined

The Chicago loan agency is prepared to consider directly or in cooperation with commercial banks applications for:

1. Loans for working capital, for completion of civilian production orders.
2. Loans against canceled war contracts and subcontracts.
3. Long term loans to finance plant reconversion.
4. Financing surplus property purchases.
5. Veterans loans under its own loan program or under the GI act.
6. Commitments for future loans so industry may proceed with plans for rehabilitation and reconversion.
7. Automtically guaranteed bank loans to industry up to 75 per cent with a ceiling of $250,000 for each loan, in participation with banks.

Seek to Aid Employment

"RFC's part in the reconversion and post-war period," said Hoel, "is to assure industry and commerce of the availability of adequate credit to competent business men who are unable to obtain such credit from local banks, particularly when the credit will assist employment and the economy of the country.

"In addition to credit extended by banks, substantial government assistance may be required in financing industry and business during and after the reconversion period. RFC will assume the responsibility of supplying the required credit to the full extent intended by congress."

INDUSTRIAL USE OF SUGAR HELD TO PRESENT RATE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—Industrial sugar allotments will be maintained at the current rate during the last three months of this year, the OPA announced today. Most industrial users will continue to operate at a level 37½ per cent below last year.

"Supplies allocated by the department of agriculture for all civilian uses during the fourth quarter will not permit raising the current rate of industrial allotments," OPA said.

PRICE CEILINGS DELAY OUTPUT, SAY FOUNDRIES

Shortage of Labor Remains Acute

Ceiling prices imposed on gray iron foundries by the office of price administration have created a serious situation which threatens to delay reconversion by many manufacturing plants, officials of Chicago foundries said yesterday. The foundries are held to their October, 1941, pricing basis and have found it almost impossible to get relief from the OPA, said the executives.

"The OPA seems to have the idea that it should encourage the immediate reconversion of consumer goods industries, and that the foundries can wait to get help from Washington," said one official.

Little Castings Important

"The men in charge of reconversion so far haven't understood that the foundries make little castings for hardware as well as big ones for capital goods plants. The little ones are vitally important to the manufacture of washing machines, flat irons, electrical goods, bathroom scales, and other items for which there is a pent up demand."

Other foundry men said most of them had given up trying to obtain price relief, which at best would be limited to a break even basis.

Labor shortages have restricted foundries to 60 per cent of capacity operations in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Iowa, said Samuel J. Campbell, deputy regional director of the war production board.

Not Improved Since V-J Day

Industry sources said the man power situation had not improved since V-J day and that many workers, able to draw unemployment compensation, had not attempted to resume their foundry jobs, on which wages were fixed at a lower scale than those paid by the big war plants. Unlike the steel and nonferrous industries, the foundries obtained few draft deferments.

Even if they had enough man power, the foundry executives said, they would not be able to meet the demands for castings. The lag was made more acute when many plants were closed for a month because of a strike by the AFL moulders' international union.

August Steel Production Smallest for 62 Months

New York, Sept. 11 (AP)—August steel production dipped to the lowest point in 62 months as the war ended, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today. Total output of ingots and steel for castings amounted to 5,712,770 tons.

ARGUE MERGING OF TWO MIDDLE WEST UTILITIES

Stock Distribution Plan Is Criticized

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 11 (AP)—The securities and exchange commission heard oral arguments today on the proposed amended plan for the merger of American Public Service company into Central and Southwest Utilities company. Both are subsidiaries of Middle West corporation.

The plan was supported by George Roberts, New York, representing both American and Central, and Ralph Stevenson, representing Middle West. Leo O. McCabe, of the SEC's public utilities division, told the commission he believed it was "within the limits of fairness and equity as required."

Says Middle West Gets too Much

Opposing the plan was Stephen S. Bernstein, New York, representing 11 holders of 33,000 common shares. Bernstein charged "Middle West is getting much more than it ever put into the deal," and said the earning power of the stock was "far in excess of the figures presented by the plan's proponents."

He requested that hearings be reopened so company officials could be cross-examined by stockholders.

Under the amended plan the stock capitalization of the two companies would be changed into a single class of $7.50 par value common stock in a new corporation, with 6,605,000 shares authorized. Publicly held shares of Central and American would be exchanged for new shares and the new company would issue to Middle West 3,368,686 shares in exchange for all its holdings of Central and American stock.

Preferred Holders Object

Middle West would distribute most of the 51 per cent of common in the new company to its own stockholders on a share for share basis and sell the remainder.

Other opponents were Benpamin Mahler, New York, representing Central preferred stockholders; Albert E. Turner, Philadelphia, representing prior preferred stockholders of both American and Central, and Edward Mead, Philadelphia, representing his wife, owner of 25 prior preferred shares of Central.

The commission granted the SEC staff 30 days in which to file its findings.

RECEIPTS OF ALL LIVE STOCK DIP; CATTLE WEAKEN

Only 8,500 hogs were received at the Chicago stock yards yesterday, including direct shipments to packers. The total was 17 per cent below the 10,304 handled a week earlier and 43 per cent less than a year ago.

Chicago buyers gave the $14.75 a hundred pounds ceiling price for almost all barrows and gilts, in most cases disregarding quality, weights and sorting. All packing sows and stags sold at $14, their ceiling.

The market for cattle dragged, despite a dip in receipts. The 7,700 total was smallest for a Tuesday in four weeks. However, the supply was augmented by a fair sized carryover from Monday's big receipts, and prices for steers ruled weak to 25 cents lower.

Receipts of sheep and lambs also were smallest for a Tuesday in four weeks, at 4,500. Old sheep held steady. Lambs and yearlings were steady to 25 cents higher.

DAIRY INDUSTRY SALES VOLUME NEEDS RELATED

Prosperity of the dairy industry depends on its ability to maintain fluid milk consumption at the war time level and to increase butter sales to the pre-war level, W. A. Gordon of St. Paul, Minn., editor of the Dairy Record, told the Chicago Dairy Technology society last night in the Continental hotel.

Production of fluid milk has expanded 10 billion pounds from the 1940 rate of production and most of this has gone into the fluid milk market, he said.

An expanded advertising campaign and sale of quality goods at reasonable prices will help pull the dairy industry thru the reconversion period, he said.

Three Million Workers Needed to Harvest Crops

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—The department of agriculture said today peace has not eased the farm labor problem. Three million additional men, women, and children will be needed during September, October, and November.

U. S. AIRPORT AID VOTED TO STATE, NOT CITY PLANS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 11 (AP)—The senate voted 40 to 33 today to channel a projected 500 million dollar federal aid airport program thru state governments.

It accepted an amendment by Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] overturning part of a bill by Sen. McCarran [D., Nev.] who wanted the money distributed 65 per cent to state programs and 35 to urban airport programs.

Brewster told the senate the fundamental purpose behind his amendment was to recognize the responsibility of the states. He said he opposed "city states" cutting loose from state control.

Joel Goldblatt, president of Goldblatt Brothers, Inc., announced last night that the company was providing hospital care for all employes. The plan is one of the few provided by an employer which is without cost to the employes, Goldblatt said.

His announcement was made at a dinner in the Stevens hotel attended by 960 of the company's executives, buyers, and others. Presented at the dinner was a series of sketches portraying growth of the business which was started in 1914.

Used Car Dealers Urged to Let Vets Buy Freely

The Chicago Automobile Trade association yesterday urged car dealers not to require "trade-ins" of veterans who wish to purchase automobiles. In most cases these men sold their cars when they entered service, and should not be penalized for this when negotiating for another automobile, the association said.

DRY GOODS

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 [AP]—Many manufacturers of textiles and apparel items were actively engaged in applying to the OPA for price adjustment on their lines, which come under the latest government order permitting them to do so. If mills find that they cannot produce certain items at prices without a loss, they can, under OPA instruction, apply for increases which will go into effect September 15.

Meanwhile, merchants in the cotton gray goods market were withdrawn from selling until definite news was forthcoming regarding their ceiling prices. It was generally agreed, however, that when price uncertainties were clarified a broad civilian business in cotton textiles would be booked.

Woolen and worsted goods markets are confronted with heavy inquiries. The rayon market was inactive.

THUGS' VICTIM PICKETS UNION FOR ASSAILANTS

Carter Olsen, 30, an auto mechanic beaten by union agents last Saturday, is keeping daily vigil at headquarters of local 701, Auto Mechanics union [AFL], 113 S. Ashland av., in an effort to identify his assailants. He is accompanied by Sergeants Harold Enger and Peter Dolan of Capt. George Barnes' police labor detail.

The policemen are armed with warrants charging Frank Carroll, business agent of the union, and three unidentified assailants with assault and battery.

Uncaught After, 3 Days

The three days had elapsed since the slugging, the police had failed to find Carroll or the other men who knocked out three of Olsen's teeth, split his lip, and kicked him after he was knocked down.

Barnes said a union officer had a petition for the employes in the plant to leave the AFL union to join the CIO. The business agent had been sent there, they explained, "to try to stop circulation of the petition and got into a fist fight with Olsen, who threatened Carroll with a wrench."

reported Carroll was on "vacation."

Olsen, who lives at 2500 N. Washtenaw av., accused Carroll and his three unidentified companions of beating him after they had chased him from the Greyhound Motor and Supply company, 916 N. Kilbourn av., where he is employed.

Union Leaders Admit Quarrel

PAROLE VOIDED, VETERAN GETS 2-4 YEAR TERM

Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court yesterday revoked the probation of Dominic Mirabella, 23, of 1131 S. Whipple st., and sentenced him to two to four years in the penitentiary for robbery when he learned that the probationer committed a burglary Sunday.

Mirabella was granted probation last month on the robbery charge at the request of his victim, Lawrence Winner, 3113 Douglas blvd. Winner, who recovered the watch and money taken from him in the holdup, said he wanted to forgive Mirabella because they both were ex-soldiers.

A revolver, machine gun, and dress sword, war trophies stolen Sunday from the home of Louis Petrone, 1506 S. Sawyer av., were found yesterday under a porch at Mirabella's home. Mirabella ad-

HOW WOULD YOU PREVENT CRIME? STATE AID ASKS

BY JAMES DOHERTY

What would you do to prevent crime?

You are being asked this question by Harry A. Ash, newly appointed state superintendent of crime prevention. He appealed for help and advice yesterday from any and all sources, and from the Chicago crime commission in particular.

"The country is being flooded with pistols, rifles, shotguns, and machine guns of all kinds, sent home by our soldiers, sailors, marines, and members of the merchant marine," Ash said.

Five Million Guns

Ash told the crime commission executives, Virgil Peterson, operating director; Rudolph Dvorak, assistant director, and Fred Pretzie, chief clerk: "Lt. William Balswick of Police Commissioner Allman's office estimates there will be five million guns of foreign make in this area by the time all our boys get back.

"Lt. Balswick, who is in charge of the Scotland Yard detail, believes many of these souvenirs will find their way into the hands of criminals. Detective Morris Friedman was slain recently with such a gun."

Asks for Coöperation

Ash, a lawyer who served for eight years as an assistant state attorney general, said the state bureau will need close coöperation from all public and civic agencies in combating post-war crime.

"I invite the public to make suggestions," Ash announced. "Let them tell me what they would do to prevent crime? Gov. Green and T. P. Sullivan, director of the state department of public safety, are wholeheartedly back of the crime prevention program authorized by the legislature. Letters on the subject will be most welcome."

Distillery Blaze Wrecks Building, Destroys Malt

Pekin, Ill., Sept. 11 (AP)—Fire today destroyed the six story mill building of the American Distilling company, six carloads of malt and grain unloading equipment. Damage was estimated at $200,000 to $300,000. Six fire trucks from Peoria were called to aid in fighting the blaze. Malt in the bins is expected to continue burning for two or three days.

WEAK DDT SOLD FOR EXCESSIVE PRICES: WARNING

The public has been so completely sold on the wonders of the insecticide DDT it is rushing to buy any product claiming to contain the chemical and often excessive prices are paid to obtain weak and ineffective solutions.

This warning came yesterday from various sources, including manufacturers of DDT, the office of price administration, and the Better Business bureau. Profits as high as 1,000 per cent on products containing DDT were reported by the OPA. Manufacturers complained that DDT solutions of proper strength which they sold wholesale were being cut by retailers below the point of effectiveness.

Some firms are selling solutions for as much as $5 a gallon which contain only 2 per cent DDT or less. Some wholesalers are selling solutions containing about 5 per cent DDT for $3.50 a gallon. OPA officials said DDT sprays should sell in the same price category as other insects sprays containing pyrethrum or rotenone.

$2,800 AND 500 LB. SAFE STOLEN

ARVEY DELAYS OWN ELECTION TO MERIT BOARD

Jacob M. Arvey, former alderman of the 24th ward, blocked his election to the park district's civil service board yesterday as he attended his first board meeting since the death last month of Philip S. Graver, whom Arvey succeeded as a commissioner.

Arvey was nominated by R. J. Dunham, board president, but he refused to vote for himself and moved to delay the election until the next board session. Stephen I. Witmanski, a commissioner since 1934, was elected to Graver's unexpired term as vice president of the board.

Dunham announced that the first 6 million dollars in bonds to finance a 24 million improvement and expansion program would be issued after Jan. 1.

Meanwhile, Dunham denied reports that he plans to resign on the ground of ill health. Drafted by Mayor Kelly to head the new park board in 1933, he said, "A man does not retire because has had a tummy ache." He added that he is "not the kind of a man to recommend a 24 million dollar program to the public and abandon it a few months later." Mayor Kelly confirmed Dunham's denial of the reports.

4 PACKING FIRM AIDS SUMMONED IN MEAT INQUIRY

Subpenas were issued yesterday in Circuit court calling for the appearance of two packing house sales managers and two other persons before Judge Michael Feinberg next Tuesday for questioning on charges that salesmen made overceiling sales of meat to butchers.

Eugene T. Devitt, office of price administration enforcement attorney, was assured that representatives of the internal revenue bureau intelligence unit also will attend as he requested.

Two butchers who testified before Judge Feinberg Monday said they were compelled to pay overceiling prices in order to obtain meat. One said he paid a packing house salesman $20 a week to be certain of getting what he needed.

Those subpenaed are Walter Reese, area sales manager for Wilson & Co.; Frank Fenton, area sales manager for Armour & Co.; Lloyd Grubbs, a salesman for Armour & Co., and Jerry Krupa, a meat peddler living near 61st st. and 16th av., Cicero.
